

BIG NATIONS RULE TERMS,
WILSON SAYS

Answer Objections to Peace Treaty By Some Smaller Countries.

Great Powers Must Foot Bill and Will Supervise Pact He Asserts.

PARIS — President Wilson, addressing a secret plenary session of the peace conference Saturday afternoon, declared that the great powers are determined to supervise the working out of the peace settlement, since they are responsible for the world's peace.

In case the settlement should fail, the president said, it will be the men and money of the great powers that will be called on to restore peace. He spoke in reply to the objections of the representatives of several small nations to certain terms of the Austrian treaty and made plain that no amount of argument would change many degrees the great powers' sense of responsibility.

COMPLAINTS MADE
Premier Paderewski, of Poland, former Premier Bratiano, of Rumania, and others objected particularly to the provision of the treaty intended to safeguard the rights of racial, religious and linguistic minorities. While accepting the provisions in principle, they argued it would foment discontent. Bratiano said it would make all signatories to the pact guarantors of protection of minority peoples, thereby infringing on the sovereignty of such nations as Rumania.

The objection to this provision, however, as well as those of some of the financial conditions, will be formally taken under advisement by the big four. When the treaty is handed to St. Germain Monday noon, the financial, reparations and military terms will be held in reserve.

REPLY TO FOE SOON

PARIS — With their military and economic machines in readiness to force acceptance of the peace terms, the allies are expected to make known their replies to the German counter proposals early this week.

The Germans then will be given five days or a week in which to decide finally whether or not to sign the treaty, it is understood. The belief prevailed in peace circles Saturday night that the signatures will be affixed to the document before June 15—providing Germany's decision is affirmative.

In the counter proposals, according to Berlin dispatches, the Germans reiterate their determination not to accept anything which they cannot fulfill. The present German government has placed itself on record with its people as irrevocably opposed to signing the treaty as at present constituted. "This situation will be met, it is understood, but certain minor concessions which will not materially affect the terms, but will permit Chancellor Scheidemann to point to the fact that his peace delegates obtained "modification" of the provisions. It is regarded as significant that some of the counter proposals followed closely the lines of suggestions made by the less radical allied delegates.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN
In spite of the optimism over Germany's acceptance, apparently every precaution has been taken in the event this optimism is unfounded.

Reports are in circulation that the French already have received orders to advance 50 miles into Germany immediately upon receipt of information that the Germans have refused to sign, while the British are said to have been instructed to occupy the Ruhr industrial district.

President Wilson conferred with other members of the American delegation Saturday regarding American occupation of the Rhine district. Ambassador Davis was summoned from London to attend the meeting.

Provisional recognition by the allies of Admiral Kolchak, dictator of the Omsk government, together with the advance of the Estonian and Finnish armies on Petrograd, has entirely changed the complexion of the Russian situation this week. Every indication points toward disintegration of the Bolshevik power both in the east and the north.

While the Adriatic question is understood to have been settled through establishment of Fiume's independence with commensurate concessions to both the Italians and the Jugo Slavs, the Italian press and people continue to rail at the "compromise."

The Jugo-Slavs, according to unofficial reports, are now experiencing internal difficulties. Belgrade is said to be in a state of siege as the result of socialist agitations. Several clashes are said to have occurred between the radicals and government

WILCOX WINS AUTO
RACE AS THREE DIE

Two Men Burn to Death at Indianapolis When Car Catches Fire.

Third Victim Killed as Machine Turns Over—125,000 in Attendance.

MOTOR SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Three automobile race drivers were sacrificed on the altar of speed in the 500-mile Liberty Sweepstakes here, won by Howard Wilcox in a Peugeot.

Arthur Thurman was instantly killed when his Thurman Special overturned on the 45th lap. Louis Leocq and R. Bandini, his mechanic, were burned to death when their blazing car rolled over, plunging them in the midst of the flames.

Wilcox, Indianapolis taxi owner, made the 500 miles in 5:44:21.71 an average of 87.12.

Eddie Hearne, driving a Durant, was second 5:46:15.05, average 86.64. Jules Goux, Peugeot, won third, time 6:06:54.55, average 85:51.

Louis Wagner in a Ballet was fourth, time 5:53:33.5. He averaged 84.85 miles.

Tom Alley, Bender special, fifth, time 6:06:54.55.

Ralph De Palma, sixth, time 6:11:36.33.

RECORD ATTENDANCE.
Thirty-four drivers wheeled their way around the circuit, banked by the largest crowd ever attending an event at the Speedway. The attendance was announced as 125,000.

Ralph De Palma, record holder of the track, with an average of 89.85 miles per hour, led with his Packard for 275 miles. He lost 19 minutes in the pits and never made it up.

Leocq and his mechanic met their death after he had fought his machine 96 times around the circuit. His car in full view of screaming thousands, swung across the track, slowly overturned and burst into flames. The bodies were black masses when ambulance men and spectators finally lifted the machine.

Thurman drove a cool race for his first appearance on a track. Hard pressed by De Palma the youth opened the throttle wide at the neck of the south turn in an effort to draw away from the veteran. The car lunged, swerved quickly and shot to the embankment. As it struck the sward, it overturned. Thurman died instantly. His mechanic, M. Molinaro, was seriously injured. Surgeons had little hope he would live.

DEATHS HALT SPEED.
The speed for the first half of the race surpassed De Palma's record but with the deaths there was a slackening of speed, that the masses of spectators could feel altho the machines sped by in huge clouds of dust, with as resounding roars as before. In the latter half of the race, with more frequent stops for tire changes, water and gas, there was a natural slowing.

Only 16 of the 34 starters finished. Beginning with the first lap when Cotey was forced to withdraw, there were continual desertions. Wilcox the winner, maintained a place near the front throughout.

WILCOX NATIVE HOOSIER.
"Howdy" Howard Wilcox, winner of the rich stake, entered the racing game in 1912, connected with the national racing team. He was a student of Johnny Aitken and Joe Dawson. He quit the game a year later when financiers backed his taxicab enterprise in Indianapolis.

Wilcox is 39 years and six feet tall. He is a native Hoosier. De Palma, probably most favored of the drivers in American cars by the big crowd, maintained an average speed of 91.66 miles an hour during the first 250 miles. Following his mishap, a broken valve spring, he was thrown back to tenth place, but he gradually crept ahead until he took sixth place. He had broken all speed records during the first half of the race, beating his own speed of 1915 when he drove a Mercedes.

Barney Oldfield, veteran of the bowl, characterized the race as one of the hardest fought and bloodiest motor battles ever held. Oldfield was on hand with Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace of aces, and former automobile speed artist. Rickenbacker sat in the referee's chair.

Speedway officials said the crowd was the largest that ever attended a race here. War tax receipts showed more than 125,000 persons paid admissions.

BONDS GONE, DIES

Farmer Kills Himself Following Banker's Suicide.

ZOAR, Ohio.—The suicide of Levi Ackerman, retired farmer, was Saturday attributed to the shortage of D. O. Van Kirk, Mineral City bank cashier, who killed himself.

Ackerman was ill at the time the bank was closed. He brooded over the fact that $500 in Liberty bonds belonging to him could not be found among the bank's assets.

His body was found hanging from an apple tree on the farm of Samuel Duerr, near here.

Protests High Rent;
Told To Eat Less

NEW YORK.—Cut down on eggs for the children and pay higher rents, or clear out, is the advice one New York landlord gave a tenant who protested a rent raise, according to a complaint received Saturday by the mayor's committee on rent profiteering. The landlord said one egg per day less for the kids would enable the tenant to pay the rent raise.

OMSK REPORTED AS CITY OF MOST HORRIBLE SCENE

Heavy Toll of Life is Taken by Disease and Privation.

OMSK, Siberia.—If Vladivostok is the waste-basket of humanity, then Omsk is a huge cauldron in which human life is being "fried out" like pork fat in a packing plant.

Survival here means nine parts luck and part constitution, for one may brave typhus, Siberian plague, smallpox and other deadly diseases only to be blown up in a Bolshevik plot, shot in a street fight or run over by an automobile.

Omsk, before the revolution, was a city of about 60,000. Refugees from Russia fled here in the hope of getting thru to Vladivostok, Japan and even America.

There was no transportation, and they were forced to remain, with the result that a city ordinarily capable of housing a transient population of 25,000 finds about 450,000 people seeking roofs.

Fifteen and 20 people, men, women and children are forced to live in a room, 10x12. They sleep on tables, on the flat brick stores, the floor, boxes, or anything with an even surface.

Many of the quarters are only dugouts—holes scooped out of the snow, with a few trunks as beams and clinders or ashes for the floor.

Epidemics spread like fire in a match factory.

And the people who have had to submit to this sort of an existence were for the most part women from families that had lived in every sort of luxury before the revolution.

An admiral's wife and daughter arrived in Omsk in a box car. They had only the clothing which they wore—nothing to change with.

They could find no rooms, and they have had to live in that boxcar during the whole bitter winter with the thermometer at 59 and 60 below zero the greater part of the time.

An American Red Cross worker found them. They were in a pitiable condition—half dead from ill nourishment, hardships and lack of clothing.

PANIC REIGNS AS INTERURBAN CAR
STARTS TO BURN

Women and Children Crowd Exits, Seeking Safety—None Badly Hurt.

Passengers on a crowded south-bound interurban car on the Western Ohio were panic-stricken when the floor of the car caught fire as it was nearing the city limits Saturday night. Chaos reigned as the passengers, mostly women and children on their way to their homes in the suburban districts and the surrounding territory crowded to the doors in a mad effort to reach the ground. Exits were jammed and car windows smashed in their attempts to leave the burning car. No serious injuries were suffered, chiefly cuts from the ragged edges of the car windows which had been broken.

Cooler heads prevailed and order was finally brought out of the mad scramble for safety.

The car which leaves Lima at 11:45 was discovered to be burning when Motorman H. Kelly saw smoke rolling from the bottom of the car. He immediately stopped and reversed the direction of the car and backed to a water plug, calling the fire department. The West Side house responded and laid two lines of hose on the car from which flames were leaping up the side and threatening to reach the roof.

Prompt action on the part of the fire fighters saved the highly sensitive motors, although the wooden sides and floor were practically destroyed.

Occupants of the car were carried by a city line car to their homes nearby. Others were forced to await means of transportation from another car from the barns at Wapakoneta.

U. S. AIRMEN GET A NOISY WELCOME
IN GREAT BRITAIN

Bands Play, Whistles Screech and Thousands Cheer as NC-4 Lands.

Commander Read and Crew Hailed as Heroes—Two Ohioans Aboard.

PLYMOUTH, England.—The famous navy seaplane NC-4 lay snugly in Plymouth harbor Saturday night after carrying the Stars and Stripes from America to England in the first trans-Atlantic flight in history.

Lieutenant Commander A. C. Read and five men who took the great skyship safely thru the perils of the Atlantic air lanes, were hailed as the heroes they are when they skinned into the bay at 2:26 Saturday afternoon, climbed from their places in the cockpit and boarded the cruiser Rochester.

There they were greeted with hearty hand grasps by Admiral Plunkett and British Admiral Thubby, and by their comrades of the NC-1 and NC-3 who failed to get across, while the stirring strains of "The Stars and Stripes Forever," played by the ship's band, blended with the screeching of many steam whistles and the cheering of thousands on the heights of the town.

START AT 6:27 A. M.
The Nancy-4 was berthed within a short distance of the spot, where, nearly 300 years ago, the Pilgrim Fathers embarked for the new world, on the Mayflower, to settle the land whose sons who have just returned to Old England thru the air. At 6:27 o'clock Saturday morning, the NC-4 started away from Ferrol, on the northern coast of Spain, where she had lain overnight, after having been forced to descend in the middle of the Lisbon-Plymouth lap of the flight, to have a leaky radiator repaired.

Soaring under bright skies, the giant seaplane crossed the Bay of Biscay, being reported with clock-like regularity by the American destroyers, stationed along that stretch of her 3,000 miles flight. Over Brest, the famous American military port in France, she circled at an altitude of 1,000 feet, at 11 a. m., then purred away northward across the English Channel, on the last dash—140 miles.

GREETED BY THROGG
At Plymouth, a great crowd was waiting. The people had seized all points of vantage. Thousands clustered on the Hoe, the historic eminence where it is told, Drake calmly finished a game of bowls before going forth to fight the Spanish armada. Intercepted wireless message, rushed to London, had told Britain of the progress of the flight and the word spread that the Americans were rapidly approaching their goal. Three British seaplanes dashed away to meet the conquerors of the air.

A navy observer constantly scanned the sky and water for some trace of the NC-4 after the British machines had disappeared. At 7:30 he saw her and shouted to a telegraph operator, who flashed the news over a British admiralty wire to London, then to American navy headquarters and to Paris, Brest and Washington by cable and by wireless.

The weather had cleared and the NC-4 was plainly visible to the thousands who watched. The humming of her motors was heard, first faintly, then rapidly growing louder and mingling with the purr of the British seaplane engines as they followed the Americans.

ALIGHTS AMID NOISE
The NC-4 circled, then alighted outside the breakwater. The roar of cheers and of whistles increased as the machine taxied over the surface toward her berth, the spray flying, a navy launch racing alongside, ready to remove the crew.

Smiling, seemingly a bit abashed by the noise of the welcome and the sight of hundreds of waving hats and handkerchiefs on every vantage point ashore, the crew boarded the Rochester.

Ensign H. C. Rodd, radio operator, asked the United Press to send the following message to his mother in Cleveland:

"We had a wonderful trip and a good time. I worked the wireless constantly during the entire trip. I sent you a message when we were off New Foundland."

Lieutenant Walter Hinton, of Van Wert, Ohio, relief pilot, said:

"We're ready to fly across the Atlantic again," and his sentiments seemed to be those of his companions.

Welcoming the Americans, the mayor made a short address, dwelling on the historical significance of their landing at Plymouth, lauding their daring and courage.

The motors, the aviators said, were flawless.

COMMANDER TALKS
Here is what Lieutenant Commander Read had to say regarding his history-making trans-Atlantic flight:

"The trip wasn't a great physical strain, altho I thought we were up

Winnipeg Closes Twenty-Second Day With Deadlock Still Unbroken.

Government to Investigate Sources of Outside Financial Aid.

WINNIPEG, Man.—Winnipeg closed Saturday its twenty-second day of the general strike with the deadlock unbroken. The twenty-second day was marked with the first parade—the only mass demonstration of any sort during the walkout. Over 1,000 marched to the parliament building to ask Premier Norris to have collective bargaining given a place in the provincial statutes.

Strikers Saturday night claimed they were stronger than ever with 4000 hitherto unorganized workers added. Employers were as certain a break is coming. They pointed to the return of many postal and telephone employees to work.

Mayor Gray announced an effort to resume street car service will be made Monday.

Provincial and municipal governments have refused to make another move until the strike is abandoned. Employers announced they will adopt that policy also.

DEMANDS OF STRIKERS.

As a prelude to peace, strikers say, the demands of metal workers must be met. Further, they say, all striking employees must be reinstated.

Financing the strike has caused the leaders trouble, but it was said money was coming in from outside places. Government officials said they will investigate the source. Meanwhile benefit performances, dances, and festivals are held in all corners of the city to raise funds.

Individuals are cared for by the strike committee. Women are given three meals daily at a hotel. Men are fed at the labor temple. Rent money also appears from somewhere.

Insurance brokers thrive when business men took out riot insurance totalling $20,000,000.

MILITARY DRILLS.

Strikers find humor in the military drills of volunteers.

"Returned soldiers will take your guns away from you, and spank you, if any shooting starts," they jeered.

Both sides have avoided violence and strikers say they will start none. Officers have been discreet in showing authority.

Cavalry troops center through the streets, occasionally in practice hikes. Motor trucks lined with sand bags, with machine gun snouts protruding frequently roll into position on street corners. Their crews are generally grinning and the crowds smile back.

The royal mounted police, stroll clanking along the streets. Their scarlet tunics, blue trousers with broad gold stripes and wide sombreros supply the color for the quiet but crowded walks.

WINNIPEG 'BIG FOUR'

WINNIPEG, Man.—There's a "big four" in Winnipeg, just as in Paris. They hold the reins of the general strike and forty thousand men and women do their bidding.

R. B. Russell, central figure of the "big four," is a slender, dynamic little man, self-educated and possessed of a genius for driving home his arguments with an economy of words. He was a machinist.

An old man shuffled past the window.

"Dye see that chap?" broke out Russell. "Well, he's 65. He works 14 hours a day as janitor, furnace man, elevator operator, and window cleaner. In his spare time he does a few odd jobs. Dye know how much he is getting—sixty dollars a month?"

This was his way of telling the story.

"Don't you see we cannot afford to lose this fight?" he demanded. "The men and women must have a fair living wage; proper representation in industry; the right to bargain with their employers and the right to live decently. We must have some sort of change and that change will come, if not now, then later."

"Yes and we will win," interrupted James Winnie, president of the Trades and Labor Council.

"Why did we call the sympathetic strike? Heretofore we have had to settle our differences individually and by craft. But we've been licked. The sympathetic strike is a strong weapon. With it we shall win."

A rather stubby, unclerical appearing man began to pace the floor. Three years ago he was a preacher in one of the smaller Winnipeg

Wedding Ceremony
Is Held in Mid-air

HOUSTON, Texas.—Huddled together in the cockpit of a Handley Page airplane, a thousand feet above the earth, an aviator from Ellington field, and a young girl from Indiana pledged themselves to "love, honor and obey," and determined to sail through life high above the clouds of unhappiness here late Saturday.

The aviator was Lieutenant Robert Mead, of Cumberland, and his bride was Miss Marjorie Dumont, of Yorkville, Ind.

It was believed the first airplane marriage on record in the world. Colonel W. A. McIntosh, commander of the post, gave the bride away at a perilous height.

MOTHER APPEALS FOR BODY OF SON
SLAIN IN FRANCE

Plea is Made By Indiana Woman, First to Raise Gold Star.

EVANSVILLE, Ind.— "Only a mother knows how hard it is not to be able to see the spot where a son is sleeping the last long sleep; never to be able to kneel in prayer at his grave; never to be able to lay one flower with one's own hand upon the earth which covers him."

A mother is talking. The first Gold Star War Mother, Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, mother of Jimmy Gresham, first American soldier killed in action on the fields of France.

HIS GRAVE IN FRANCE
Jimmy is sleeping now in a grave in France. It was the first of our hero graves in France. His mother may never see Jimmy's grave—unless his body is brought back home.

"I have a place picked out for him," his mother said, "here in the cemetery, where I can go and pray by the side of the mound every day. I hope they bring him back while I'm still alive. That's all I think of now—when my boy's body is brought back to me."

The first Gold Star War Mother couldn't say more.

Yet it was this mother who refused to wear black when her son was slain in battle because she didn't want to depress the hearts of other war mothers whose sons had gone to serve their country, and of still others whose sons awaited the call to arms.

Some months ago, Mrs. Dodd was asked by the war department if she wanted her son's body brought back. She wrote and told them that nothing would now please her more than to have her son's body brought back to his old home and buried there.

NO WORD RECEIVED

Since then she has heard nothing. She is living in a daily anticipation of hearing that her son's body is on the way home.

Other Gold Star War Mothers have received the same formal inquiry from the government.

But thus far no hero's body has been returned. The government has not announced when the first will be brought back.

In the meantime the government is wondering what it will do with the merchant marine. There are many ships not now being used which might be used to bring back the bodies of those whose parents ask that they be returned.

COL. HOUGH TO ORGANIZE GUARD

Call for the Ohio Boys to "Join Up" Will Be Issued Soon.

COLUMBUS.—Colonel Renshaw W. Hough of Delaware, commander of the 166th regiment, Rainbow division, has been chosen by Adjutant General Roy E. Layton to reorganize the Ohio national guard.

Colonel Hough will use the Ohio units of the old Rainbow division as the nucleus for the formation of the guard. General Layton believes that the Ohio guardsmen who fought longest should have first choice in the guard.

It is expected that most of Colonel Hough's old 166th infantry regiment will endeavor to rejoin him en masse when he issues the call of reorganization.

According to present war department orders received at the adjutant general's office, Ohio is authorized to organize two infantry regiments of 1,500 men each. Recent plans of the war department that are being discussed may allow Ohio a whole division of guardsmen totalling 7,280 men.

Colonel Hough will issue a call for his boys to "join up" soon. The state camp at Camp Perry, will be given back to Ohio by the federal government soon. It is expected that Ohio's new guard will be formed in time for an encampment there this summer.

Walkout May Result From Outing of Hundred Girls in Atlanta.

Reinstatement Demanded by Union Chiefs—200,000 Members Involved.

WASHINGTON.—The fight of union telegraphers in Atlanta to have telephone workers there reinstated, had assumed national importance Saturday night, when it was stated by union officials that unless the Atlanta situation is satisfactorily adjusted, a nation-wide strike of telegraph and telephone workers will be called.

President S. J. Koneenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America, with which the telephone workers are affiliated, is said to have authorized an ultimatum tendered Atlanta companies, demanding reinstatement of the discharged telephone workers under threat of a general walk-out Monday afternoon.

Some 100 girls were discharged in Atlanta and the proposed strike there would be general call thru-out the country, officials here estimated Saturday night. If the railroad telegraphers also struck 200,000 would be added. President Koneenkamp, who is in Canada, is said to have sent word to the Atlanta workers that he is ready for the show down threatened. Recently, when here, Koneenkamp declared "the next move to meet these continued violations of faith on the part of the companies will be by us. There will be no more talk."

WOULD INVOLVE 200,000.
Union officials said a national strike would involve more than 200,000 members of the Telegraphers unions. He declared that the railway telegraphers unions, with 13,000 members, is prepared to back the other unions if the companies attempt to send commercial messages over railroad wires.

The C. T. U. A. in entering this fight is putting aside its own grievances in favor of the telephone girls, they said.

A. W. Carter served the ultimatum on the Atlanta officials. Carter is general chairman of the C. T. U. A.

The girl operators are members of both the C. T. U. A. and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The latter includes linemen, signallers, clerks, cashiers, book-keepers and practically every class of employe of the telephone companies.

COMPANIES INCLUDED.
The nation-wide strike would affect, McDowell, a union official said, both the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which includes the Bell system, the Postal Telegraph Company and the Western Union Company.

Koons' telegram will not cause a postponement of the strike of the telephone and telegraph workers, scheduled for Monday afternoon, unless all of the members discharged have been reinstated before that time. Mann said Saturday, following a conference with other union leaders. He said that a reply has been dispatched to Koons, informing them that the local union would accept nothing less than full reinstatement before noon Monday and that no further discrimination will be permitted against union members.

PROBE IS ORDERED.
ATLANTA, Ga.—An investigation of the alleged discharge of eight workers by officials of the Southern Bell Telephone Company because of their affiliation with the Commercial Telegraphers Union and Telephone Operator's Association, has been ordered by Postmaster General Burleson.

A telegram received Saturday night by Charles F. Mann, general organizer of the union, from Assistant Postmaster General Koons, stated that "the situation would be probed immediately and that prompt action would be forthcoming."

FEAR VILLA, FLEE
Many Americans and Wealthy Natives Leave Mexico.

LAREDO, Texas.—An exodus of American and wealthy Mexicans from northern Mexico was under way Saturday night.

Spurred by fear of widespread Villa depredations thruout Chihuahua and Sonora, reports of trouble during the past two days, hundreds of refugees came into Laredo on the Mexican National railways Saturday.

Parties of Americans from Vera Cruz, Mexico City and Tampico arrived. None of them reported any actual violence in sections. They came from, but all declared persons known to have supported Carranza are in grave danger.

DAYLIGHT REPEAL BILL IS DELAYED

Rider Expected to Be Stricken From Agriculture Measure.

WASHINGTON.—Daylight saving advocates in congress, representing strong sentiment for repeal of the law which has been developed, are now planning to delay its abandonment until next year. When hearings on Representative Esch's repeal bill are commenced by the interstate commerce this week, efforts to lengthen these out will be made. Many requests for hearings have been made for various organizations.

Chairman Haugen of the agricultural committee is still determined to effect the Sunday after its cultural appropriation bill, but this is certain to be stricken out of the bill on a point of order. The Esch bill provides the repeal shall go into effect three Sunday after its passage, but strong efforts will be made both in the committee and in the house to change the date to October 31 when the change to the old time is made.

With sentiment in the senate more evenly divided, it is probable that the repeal can be greatly delayed there or become mixed up in a legislative jam that is certain to come when the peace treaty is presented for ratification.

against it good and proper several times, as the result of fog before we reached the Azores. The trip from Lisbon was easy. The crew is in perfect health.

"When we circled Brest harbor, I don't know whether they knew we were passing or not. We heard no whistles or other noise to indicate they did, although it may have been because of our altitude.

"I believe a similar plane has a fine chance of getting across the Atlantic by way of the Azores. If the same planes made the trip again, I believe a larger portion would succeed."

NEXT TRIP DIRECT

"The next American attempt to cross the Atlantic by plane will be a direct voyage to England," prophesied Lieutenant Commander Towers, who started off in command of the group of seaplanes. "And I hope to make that jump myself," he added.

Welcoming the plane and its crew, Admiral Thurbur, of the British fleet said:

"It is an Anglo-Saxon characteristic to do things first. We honor those who have crossed the Atlantic first by airplane."

Responding, Lieutenant Commander Towers said:

"We have had many fine receptions, but this is the best. We are now confident that we can fly across the Atlantic directly. Our idea this time was to gain the experience with no attempt at spectacularities."

"Crossing the Atlantic was fine," said Lieutenant E. P. Stern, pilot of the Nancy. "I am very sorry the other two were forced to drop out. They grabbed us here with such hearty greetings that we forgot what sensations of a trans-Atlantic flight really are like."

Lieutenant James L. Breeze, engine officer of the plane, praised the victory motors which pulled the huge machine across the ocean.

"The motors are 100 per cent perfect and ready to start again tomorrow," he declared. "They show no signs of wear. I regard the trip as a real advance in aerial navigation. Our type of machine is better than the best type because of its stronger construction, enabling it to weather rough seas."

"Once our motors were started we had nothing to do except see that they were filled with oil. They hummed without a miss."

Interviewed in the Grand Hotel, Read said a luncheon tendered by the R. A. F. Lieutenant Commander Read told the United Press that he does not want to try it again.

"No sir. Not me," he said in reply to a question. "Some other fellow can go to it. I'm not going to try it again."

Read paid a compliment to Harry Hawker.

"His attempt was a fine, nervy stunt," said Read.

Crews of the NC-1, NC-3 and NC-4 all of whom are here, will go to London Sunday.

Lieutenant Commander Read said the Nancy Four had some trouble locating the English coast because of fog. Plymouth harbor was not sighted until the plane was only a few miles off.

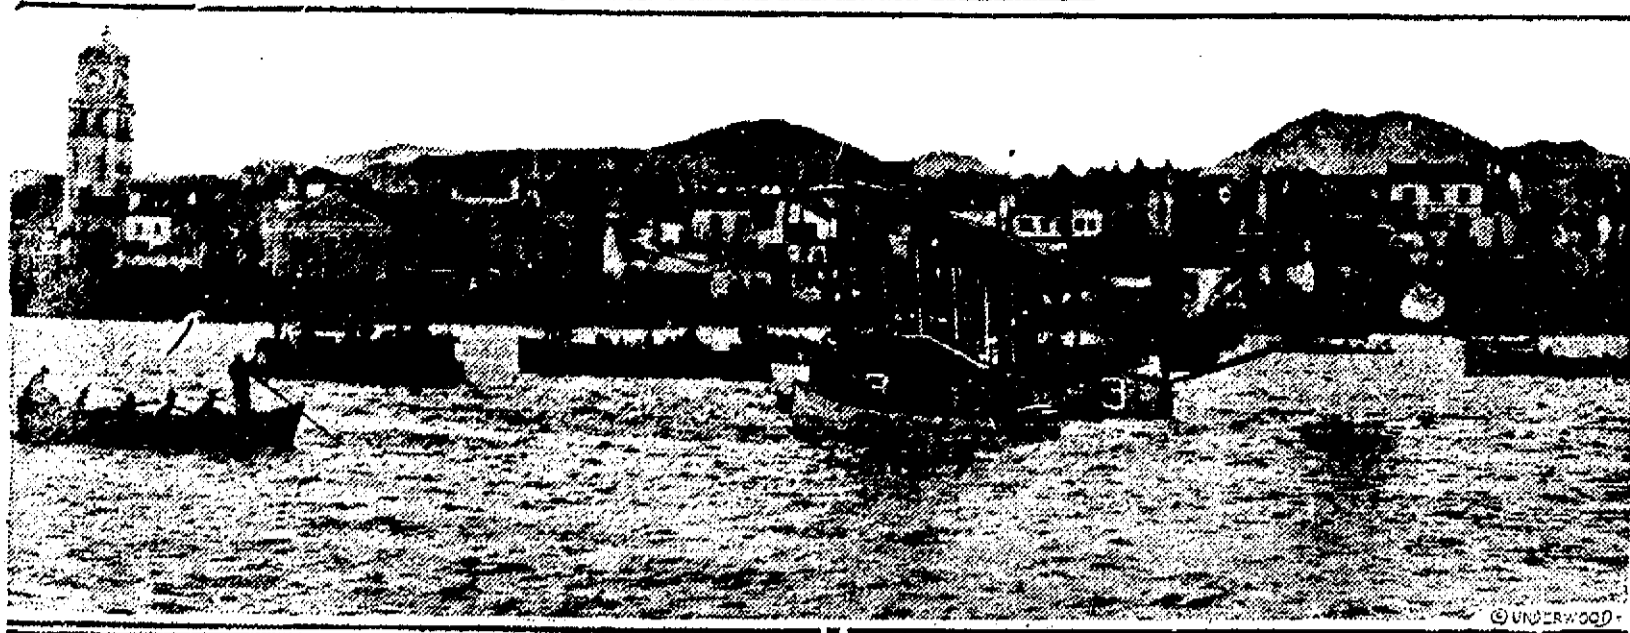

Letters Read gave the United Press with a request that they be posted bore addresses of Mrs. De Lonnquist and Orsiobel Winslow, both of Lynn, Mass., Charles Range, Greenfield, Ill., and Frank Jackson, Brockton, Mass.

Lines of cheering residents of this old city welcomed the fliers as they rode through streets. They turned in after the automobile and followed it to the hotel where luncheon was served. British soldiers, with fixed bayonets, formed an escort.

SEES VICTORY FOR NATION LEAGUE

Supporters of Covenant Believe Strength Grows in Senate.

WASHINGTON.—League of nations supporters were convinced Saturday night, it was announced, that enough senate republican votes are assured to prevent either vital amendment of the league covenant, or separation of the league from the peace treaty. This calculation based on a careful survey of the senate situation, carries the assumption that all but one or two democrats will vote against all attempts to amend as well as against separation.

Viewing the situation in this light, league supporters predicted that enough wavering republicans will vote with the democrats on final ratification to provide the needed two-thirds.

The week-end survey showed five republican senators strongly unfavorable to any course endangering the successful ratification of a league covenant. Four of the five made it plain that if separation or amendment appears to them to endanger the league, they will oppose each action. Though none of the five accepted the amended covenant as perfect, they all said "a league" must be brought into being and all indicated willingness to accept an admittedly imperfect covenant rather than run the risk of killing the whole world peace project.

The five senators are: McNary, Oregon; Norris, Oklahoma; Capper, Kansas; McCumber, North Dakota and Spenser, Missouri. McNary said he plans "to support the league rather loyally. I shall vote against separation of the covenant and the treaty and against amendments."

Declaring that efforts had been made to pledge him to vote one way or another, which he had spurned, he declared:

"It is a league to prevent war. The present covenant does not go far enough on disarmament, in my opinion, but it is a serious question: whether present amendments would not kill the league. We must have a peace lagu. Of that there is no doubt."

"I shall vote the covenant in exactly its present form. The only reason I see for amendment would be to prevent ratification and I would not want to see that."

OCCUPATION ARMY NOT PROVIDED FOR AFTER SEPT.

WASHINGTON.—Present plans of the war department do not provide for an army of occupation after September, it developed at the house military affairs committee hearing Saturday. Major McKay, representing the department's finance division, told the committee the plan now is for an army of occupation of 600,000 men in July, 400,000 in August and 200,000 in September.

STORE EXPANDS

The Sector Motor company, handling a line of automobile accessories have moved into its new quarters at 224 south Main street. The store was formerly located at 119 west North street. Larger space due to a greatly increased business necessitated the change.

MEN AND MATTERS

Pvt. Robert C. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward King, north Jackson street, arrived in this country Friday from where he served with the 33rd aviation field hospital corps and later the army of occupation.

PEDDLERS ARRESTED

Sam Renalla, 24, 612 north West street, and Gust Mamateekos, 55, both peddlers, were arrested Saturday for alleged peddling in the restricted downtown districts. They were arrested by Market Master Herbolzheimer. Both men were released to appear in police court Monday morning.

One of the interesting angles of the trans-Atlantic flight of the U. S. navy seaplanes was the enthusiasm over the attempt which the people all along showed. This enthusiasm quickly grew to an earnest desire to see the intrepid fliers succeed. The photo shows how boatloads of islanders greeted the NC-3 when it taxied into the harbor at Ponta Del Gada, one of the Azores islands, after being forced to land on the water when they became lost in the fog. Although the plane failed to complete its flight to the islands, the crew was given a great reception, as were the men of the NC-4, which completed the flight, and of the NC-1, picked up at sea.

Mercury Climbs To Record Mark

Lima sweltered yesterday when the mercury climbed to what is believed a record for May. It reached the high mark 97 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, with the lowest at 4 o'clock when the thermometer registered 64.

Straw hats and Palm Beach suits for men came into their own during the past few days while the women sought the filmy stuff. Drug stores, candy shops and other places where cooling drinks are quaffed did a rushing business in an attempt to keep Lima people cool.

Old timers who hark back some 30 or 40 years say this is "the hottest ever" in their recollection.

churches. He lost his pulpit and became editor of the Western Labor News, official publication of the strikers. He is Rev. William Ivens.

"I'm not an old man," he said, "about 45. I've been talking the needs of workmen and women and their children for many years."

"We don't covet the homes of the rich; their automobile; their hundreds of luxuries. All we want is what we earn fairly."

Alderman Ernest Robinson, fourth strike leader, broke in nervously:

"We can't convince the wealthy we have nothing in common with what they call bolsheviks and soviets. We have no sympathy with riot, bloodshed, fire and pillage. We are all Canadians, fighting for the right to bargain collectively."

Robinson formerly was a carpenter. Tall and slender, he fairly vibrates with nervous energy when he talks.

When he had finished, Russell and the others scattered to different parts of the city to address strike meetings. They are the "big four" of strike-ridden Winnipeg.

MORE TO STRIKE

TORONTO, Ont.—Union leaders served notice on Mayor Church Saturday that the fire brigade would strike at 8 a. m. Tuesday, unless a wage increase is granted before then. City council will meet to consider the matter. Strikers expect thousands to be added to their ranks at meetings Saturday night and Sunday through Canada.

A threatened strike of telegraph operators in the United States will not affect Canadian workers, according to S. J. Koenekamp, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, in Montreal Saturday night.

At Toronto Saturday night several big unions were voting on a strike. Railway, water, transportation and cartage employees have not responded.

ONE KILLED AND TWO ARE INJURED IN BLAST

LATROBE, Pa.—One man was killed and two others were seriously burned here Saturday afternoon when a gasoline blow torch exploded in the plant of the Railway Steel Spring Company.

John Ramsey, 28, of Latrobe was fatally burned, dying en route to the hospital.

Edward Kiefer, 32 of Youngstown, Ohio, and George Kunkle, 37 of Latrobe were seriously burned about the face and hands.

The men were working over some machinery when the torch exploded. Flaming liquid was showered over their clothing which was soaked with grease and oils. They were burned before fellow workmen could extinguish the flames.

After broiling steak spread it with creamed butter, mixed with lemon juice and chopped parsley.

LUXURY TAX BILL HALTED IN HOUSE

Adjournment is Forced by Opposition to the Measure.

WASHINGTON.—Efforts of both republican and democratic leaders to rush through the house the repeal of the so-called luxury taxes failed Saturday night after a six hour debate.

Scattering opposition, the strength of which surprised the leaders finally forced adjournment, although Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee, in submitting the repeal, expected its passage in two hours.

Admission by Fordney that the luxury section is expected to yield $100,000,000 brought out many opponents to repeal. The bill will be called up again Monday.

Representatives Kitchen, Hull,

Moore, Longworth, and Green spoke for the repeal, claiming the tax would be difficult of collection and that it was passed primarily to curtail the manufacture of luxuries during the war. The people are now entitled to these products without tax, they asserted.

Pointing out that the tax of ten per cent is only on extra high prices opponents, led by Representative Sims, Tennessee, claimed the government should not lose the revenue at this time and that persons who purchased the articles above the tax exemption figures are able to pay the tax. Sims was backed by Fess, Ohio; Haughen, Iowa, and Thomas, Kentucky.

Thomas directed his attack against smoking jackets, claiming that wearing one is "no way to smoke anyway."

Articles that will be affected by the repeal if it passes, are high priced carpets, rugs, picture frames, trunks, valises, traveling bags, purses, lighting fixtures, umbrellas, fans, smoking jackets, bath robes, waist coats, hats, caps, shoes, neckwear, shirts, underwear, pajamas, night gowns, kimono, skirts and walsts.

U. S. EMPLOYEES MOST ADVANCED METHODS OF TREATMENT TO RESTORE SOLDIERS' HEALTH

Portable electric stove used for baking stiffened and inflamed joints.

How would you like to be cooked for an hour or two every day when you were supposed to be convalescing? People usually think of convalescence as a period during which the patient sits around waiting to recover full strength. Judging from the photograph which was taken in one of our largest military hospitals the process of "waiting" is a strenuous one for a wounded soldier. The United States, however, is using the most advanced methods which science has found for the treatment of wounded soldiers. Here nurses are shown baking a convalescing soldier. The portable electric oven is highly beneficial in its effects upon stiffened and inflamed joints. These modern therapeutic methods have saved many a veteran from lifelong mental and physical disability.

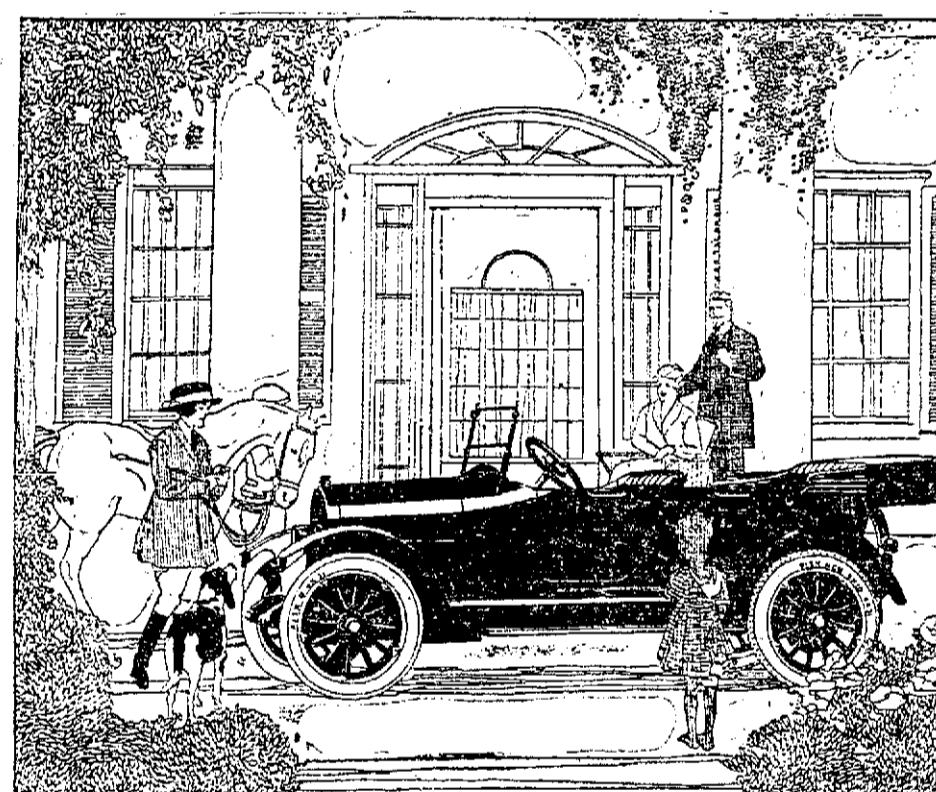

DISCOVERIES.

Next time you cook prunes add a few slices of lemon to improve the flavor, or you may prefer the flavor of spices in which case place a small bag of spices in the saucepan while the prunes are cooking.

Any of the following vegetables will go nicely with beefsteak: Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, onions, squash, peas, beets, tomatoes, (either stewed or scalloped,) zalsify and macaroni. Have the potatoes baked, fried or creamed. Sweet potatoes are a savory accompaniment if baked or broiled.

You can seed raisins in half the usual time if you pour boiling water over them.

Overland

Why Model 90 Makes Friends of Owners

The Overland Model 90 is not a stunt car. It was built for long, continuous, every day service, but—

One day last month an Overland Model 90 stock car rolled out, by way of diversion at Oklahoma City, and broke all previous records in a most extraordinary non-stop high gear test.

This car will meet your ideals of motor car appearance as well as your ideals of efficient and dependable service.

It couples luxurious riding comfort with power and reliability on steep hills and rough roads. To build such a car for $985 is possible only with the Overland facilities for volume production which public appreciation of Overland cars has built up. Order your Model 90 now.

A. G. WINTZER MAY BE "PUSHED" IN AT WAPAKONETA

Citizens "Urge" Him to Enter Race for Mayor, Says Report

Republican Candidates Expected to Be Plenty When "Flag Drops" June 12

(STAFF SPECIAL)
WAPAKONETA—It is generally expected among Democrats locally, and among Republicans, as well, that if the Democrats should succeed in getting G. A. Wintzer to stand pitched a sufficient length of time to be the party's candidate for the little to be desired position of mayor, that there will not be a ghost of a show for anybody else in the primary election, and that no matter whom the Republicans nominate, it will be safe to predict that the next mayor of Wapakoneta will be a Democrat.

new with any degree of accuracy. However, he may succumb to the blandishments of those who realize that a strong man must be nominated this year, if the party of Jefferson is to continue to rule the roost locally. And this Gus Wintzer person is all to the good as the one best bet for the boys who want to keep their feet in the path of public office control. G. A. Wintzer is one citizen who has succeeded in keeping himself free from cliques and clans, from "revolutions" and "counter revolutions" in his party. He is best little old mixer and applier of oil to troubled waters that ever happened, "his said. He's a man of convictions, strong and erect, broad minded and liberal, a very glib talker of strength among his fellow citizens. If anybody can bring anything to bear against Gus Wintzer, he hasn't breathed it out loud.

ders would be to toss himself until after June 12, go dozing, pay a visit to another part of the state or country, or hunk a cool cellar somewhere and remain in hiding for a week or two. Unless Wintzer leaves town, he might as well make up his mind to permit his friends to shove him into the limelight, as they seem determined to do it, whether he wants it done or not. The situation is just this: Whenever any question of public moment comes to the fore, the inevitable question from citizens is this: "What does Gus Wintzer think about it?" If he is against it, the thing is a dead one. If he's for it, it's a go. Such is the confidence the people have in his good judgment. It does not require a stretching of the imagination to guess that such a citizen could walk away with most anything he aspired to in a political way. And finally, here is the dope: "Watch Wintzer."

can nomination of city auditor, to succeed City Auditor Fred A. Klipfel, who listened to the siren voice of the political tempter and took a shy at the Democratic nomination for mayor, with successful results. Newcomer was hailed with delight by the Republicans as a candidate for City Auditor. He was the candy kid with all the faithful of the G. O. P. KENNY "TROTTERED OUT"

Recognizing that it would be necessary to have a strong man to come anywhere near drawing a shroud of ballots over the aforesaid "Pickles," the Democrats hustled around and trotted out the very best material they could find, in the person of John J. Kenny, who by the way, is just now waiting for the expiration of the second term of E. S. Lusk as county clerk, to step into his shoes, having been elected last fall, after a second chase after the political will of the wisp in that direction.

Kenny was known the city over, and gave "Pickles" a run for his money, but the quiet mannered Western Ohio ticket stamper won out. Smarting under the idea of having a Republican city auditor in a town with a Democratic "family," the adherents of the party of Jefferson, two years later, in 1917, determined to retire the accommodating City Auditor with the "wrong" political affiliations, pitted against him Clarence Wanamaker, owner of a candy and popcorn business next door to the Western Ohio station, where Newcomer held forth, and where he still holds forth. Of course, relations between Clarence and Elmer were not the most cordial during the campaign, but they managed to abide in close proximity without coming to the pistols and coffee stage. Wanamaker

VICTORY ANNOUNCEMENT

More Mileage Adjustment on Goodrich Tires

Fabrics--6,000 Miles
Cords--8,000 Miles

To automobile owners and drivers--to Goodrich Dealers--the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company herewith declares a more mileage adjustment on Goodrich Tires--6,000 miles for SAFETY TREADS, and 8,000 miles for SILVERTOWN CORDS.

Fix these new Goodrich Adjustment figures firmly in your mind--6,000 miles for SAFETY TREADS--8,000 miles for SILVERTOWN--instead of the 3,500 and 5,000 miles respectively heretofore in force.

This new adjustment stands back of all Goodrich Tires, including tires already purchased in the hands of user or dealer.

Goodrich Tires in actual usage on road and pavement are today unfolding such matchless mileage, regularly in excess of adjustment basis, that Goodrich knows it has the strongest, most durable tires the rubber industry has produced.

The Goodrich adjustment mileage is increased because Goodrich knows the mileage in its tires, and it wants to give every motorist a share in their economy, and all-around benefits.

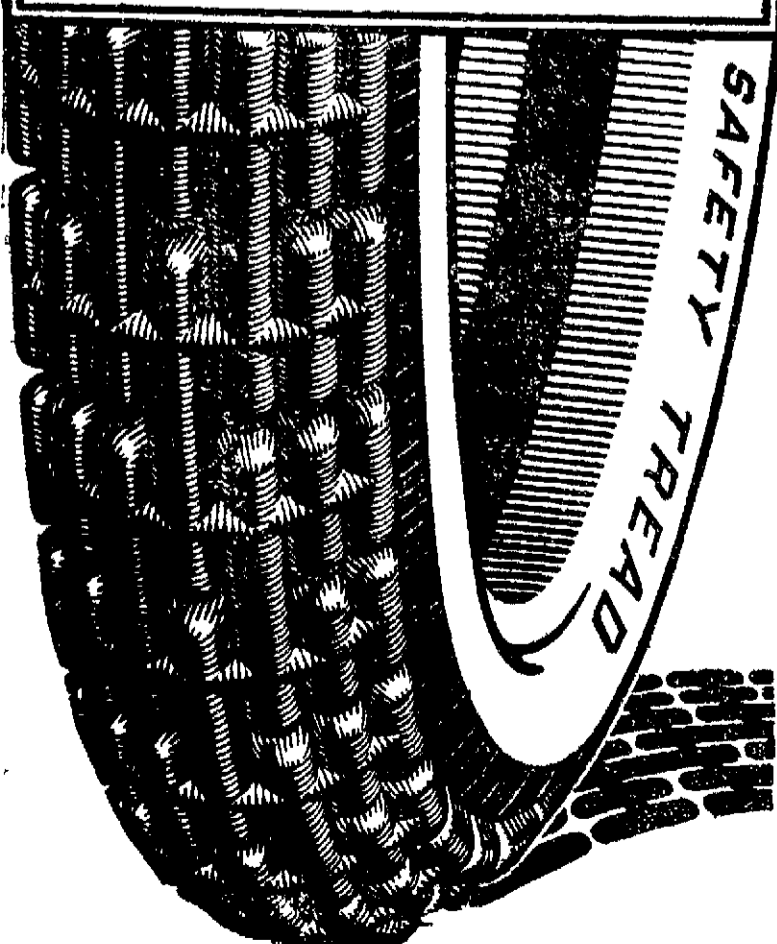

Go to a Goodrich Dealer, and buy a Goodrich Tire--or buy four Goodrich Tires--sure that with fair and square usage a Safety Tread will render you at least 6,000 miles; and a Silvertown Cord at least 8,000.

"BEST IN THE LONG RUN"

A. G. WINTZER MAY BE "PUSHED" IN AT WAPAKONETA

was defeated, and took it gracefully. And "Pickles" proved himself a "good" winner. He didn't crow. And therein lies the secret of the success that has attended his political aspirations.

LAY ASIDE PARTY

In these latter days the "boys" have learned to lay aside party principles when it comes to selecting men for municipal office, and Newcomer apparently has grown in popularity and in the esteem of the "home folks." And that fact has impelled his friends to "crowd" him as a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor. Modest soul that he is, "Pickles" just giggles when the subject is mentioned in his presence, and colors up like a bashful school girl. He wants to, and he doesn't want to. He isn't a coward and he isn't a hero. But he dislikes the idea of getting himself in a position where he may become the "goat" in a serious situation. For he it knows that whoever is fortunate (or unfortunate) enough to be elected mayor the coming fall, is going to have some hefty problems howling about his political domicile. And they can't be sidestepped.

As previously predicted, Newcomer has announced as a candidate. He has the backing of the "rank and file" of the Republican party, and he can draw more votes from Democrats than most any other individual who could be thought of.

Likewise, Charley Kantner, saw mill owner, at present councilman, and a power in Second ward politics, hasn't stated that he won't be a candidate for mayor. And there's Charley Bibler, former egg and poultry packer, former councilman, suave and polite, clean minded and cautious, a gentleman and a good citizen, who hasn't altogether renounced allegiance to the Republican party. He also is among the "prominently mentioned." Also, Dr. W. S. Stuckey, one of the best running, hardest hitting and persistent vote getters the Republicans ever trotted into the arena, may desire to take another whirl at the political thimble. Doe is an ardent fisherman, a successful medical practitioner, was formerly a councilman and has "run" for mayor almost as often as he has fingers and toes. In fact, he fairly loves the excitement of the thing, and is always ready for an election day marathon. In grooming candidates for mayor, not all of the Republicans are going to overlook Doe.

The "threatened" caucus, to be held by the Republicans, has not yet taken place, and there is reason to believe that there will be a minimum of friction when it does come. Locally, the Republicans have the reputation of being able to slate a ticket without getting into a wrangle about it. And therein they have it all over their friend, the enemy.

TIME DRAWS NEAR

In view of the fact that the time for the filing of declarations of candidacy for municipal office expires at midnight on June 12, in this year of grace, the fellows who are harboring attacks of political "rash," are not letting anybody know anything about it very strong. Which means that there is nothing doing in the candidate line so far as the deputy state supervisors of elections have been able to learn.

Many a boom, started on its merry way in past weeks, in favor of this or that fellow for this or that office, has apparently died a bornin'. There is simply no excitement, and none can be stirred up. The folks have been so busy watching the death struggles of John Barlevorn, and later attending the "wake" after his demise, that they haven't had time for anything else, save to work and scheme to circumvent the machinations of old High Cost of Living. And then there is the peace treaty situation to detract attention from local affairs. It is doubtful if a brass band and a company of hired shouters could stir up a great amount of interest right now in things political.

WANAMAKER MAY ENTER

C. E. Wanamaker, who in 1917 endeavored to throw the switch and sidetrack City Auditor Newcomer when he was a candidate for a second term, is figuring up his chances and may decide to inform the party leaders, after satisfying himself that his inventory is promising, that he will again submit his cause to the people, and abide by their decision, whatever it may be. Wanamaker, better known as "just plain" Pete, hasn't any money to throw away on a forlorn hope, but that city auditor job sure does look good to him from afar, and if he's kept out of the running, somebody will have to use a good stout club.

If Pete does decide to do a "political fox trot" for city auditor, he'll have to make up his mind that he's going to have Rolland Heinrich pitted against him when election time comes--provided Pete succeeds in lassoing the Democratic mule. Rolland is a son of John G. Heinrich, who used to run like a horse as a candidate for anything, but who was effectively laid on the shelf two years ago. Rolland is one of those likeable young gentlemen, square and honest, standing for the best interests of Wapakoneta. He is "in right" with the younger element, as he is an ardent devotee of the sports in which young men are interested, such as pocket billiards, etc. Rolland is formally announced as a candidate, but has not yet "squared" himself with the board of elections. Right now it would appear that the Republicans have no particular designs on anything save the job of mayor and auditor.

Wanamaker, should he decide to again kick p the political dust, will prove an opponent for Heinrich of no mean dimensions, and Pete will have the advantage of being the candidate of the majority party and of having made a previous effort along the same line.

PLANS AT ST. MARYS

It seems to be all fixed over at St. Marys as to the plan of procedure for the coming primary election, when the old parties will again trot single, after several years of fusion effort, while the socialists were being mangled.

"Yokey" Smith and a coterie of other "regular" republicans, are determined that there shall be no question this year about the people of the town on the "raging canawl" and the big pond having the opportunity to vote for Republicans for municipal office. And Frank Folk and various others of Democratic persuasion, are just as determined that if there's going to be a division of forces and a divorce granted to the adherents of the Citizens' Party, that the Democrats likewise have an opportunity to present their claims before the people. David Armstrong, Jr., city solicitor of St. Marys, a Democrat by choice and a Citizens' party adherent by necessity in the previous election, was sent to Wapakoneta last week to secure the necessary blanks to be filled out for Democratic candidates in the neighboring city, declaring their intentions. "Yokey" Smith has the necessary "passports" for the Republican end of the new three-ring show that is about to be staged in St. Marys, and Scott Wilkins, former mayor, again has the neighboring city on his visiting list, to revive, resuscitate, unify, inject fighting pep into the wavering and scattering and depleted tanks of the Socialists. Scott is bent on putting a Socialist ticket against the old party selections in the election next fall, and he won't sleep well until he does it. Just where Scott is going to "come in" isn't plain, but Scott probably knows his business. He isn't in politics for fun any more than he is in business for his health, but no one has ever accused him of being other than honest in his dealings. After all, maybe it's just an innate desire to advance the "cause" that impels Scott to dig in at St. Marys. There'll be an exhibit of candidates from "over the way" very soon.

FERNANDO IN RACE

As time flits along, it becomes more and more apparent that Fernando C. Layton, judge of the common pleas court of this county for two terms, and the father of the adjutant general of the state of Ohio, intends to become a candidate for a third consecutive term. Auglaize county and the state of Ohio have always been kind to the Layton family, and Judge F. C. Layton is one of the most honored and respected members of that family. Advancing of names of possible candidates for the judgeship hasn't created anything like unusual attention, for the reason that just what Judge Layton expects to do isn't apparent, although his attitude bears all the earmarks of indicating that he would be more than half willing to serve another term. There is an old saying that Democrats never resign and seldom die. While the judge isn't a young man, he has no expectation of dying soon, and every man, woman and child in Auglaize county hope that he will be spared for many years to come, as he is held in the highest esteem by everyone.

In fact, so strong is the Judge entrenched in the hearts and minds of the people that even the rabid local Republican "organ" is boosting him for a third term. However, the Judge ought to remember that in the past Auglaize countians haven't taken kindly to third terms, no matter how capable or highly respected. It would be regrettable to have such a fine character as Judge F. C. Layton meet the same fate that has befallen many a man before him in seeking a third term. As a candidate for a third term, the Judge will be dallying with fate, in the light of previous similar cases. No matter what may occur, it is considered more than likely that Hon. C. A. Stueve and Major R. B. Anderson will seek the Democratic nomination for common pleas judge. Major Anderson is now in the service of his country, but expects to return soon to his legal practice here. Judge Stueve was some years ago probate judge of the county. These two men are on an equal footing in the matter of thoroughness and painstaking care in their work, and either would make a worthy successor to Judge Layton.

SON DIES OVERSEAS CAUSES MOTHER'S DEATH

WAPAKONETA.—Grief over the death of her son, David A. Fisher, a member of the American Army of Occupation, at Andernach, Germany, in February of this year, from pneumonia, and the shock of the receipt of the death message, caused the death of Mrs. Mollie M. Fisher, wife of County Auditor Charles Fisher here, aged 47. In the last days of her illness she developed the same malady that caused the death of her son, whose remains lie in a little German cemetery, near Andernach.

BIG REAL ESTATE DEALS PENDING

Boom in Lima Goes on and Much Property Is Changing Hands.

The real estate boom, prevalent in Lima for the past three weeks, let up a little the past week although it is estimated by several prominent operators that a number of big deals are now pending and may be consummated at any time.

A lot located at the corner of Elm street and Garfield street and the residence property of Dr. Henry H. Johnson were purchased by R. L. Fletcher for a consideration of $8,500. Four residences will be built on the lot.

A three apartment terrace, plans for which have been completed, will be erected by Lee C. Faurer, real estate dealer, on south Cole street, between Spring and Elm streets. Stucco with brick trimmings will be the material used and the cost is estimated at $25,000.

Reports current in real estate circles are to the effect that a number of new homes are being planned for the north end of West street. The season for house seeking is now in full swing and a great scarcity of dwellings for renting purposes is noted.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN COLORED CIRCLES

The Allen Busy Brotherhood will meet Monday evening at the home of Brother Glover, Allentown road.

The Cheerful Workers will have an entertainment Wednesday evening at St. Paul A. M. E. church at which time a silk crocheted rug will be given away.

The negro alumni will meet Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Paul A. M. E. church. All members and graduates are urged to be present. Business of importance.

The Daughters of Conference will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Mines, west Elm street. The Morning Star Lodge No. 15, K of P. will meet Tuesday evening at Castl eHall at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present, as there is business of importance. Election of officers will take place.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Golings have received word of the arrival of a baby girl, born to Mrs. Harris (Gladys Golings) Cleveland, O. Jess Bizzel had as guests the past week his mother, Mrs. Blue, and brother, Thoma, of Detroit, and sister, Mrs. Bessie Whitfield, Chicago. Mrs. Anna Morin has been quite ill and under the doctor's care, the result of a splinter entering the palm of her hand.

HOTEL AND POOL ROOM BOUGHT BY LOCAL MAN

With the sale recorded Saturday, Connie Hersberger acquires the Manhattan Cigar Store, one of the largest pool-rooms in the city and the Oakland Hotel occupying the two floors above in the building on west High street. Possession will be taken immediately by the new owner. The consideration was unofficially announced at $10,000.

J. L. Jenkins, the former proprietor, has not announced in what business he will engage in the future.

Hersberger has been connected with the L. Lewenstein Co. with the Lowenstein Clothing company on the Public Square for more than twenty years and is widely known about Lima.

The terms of the sale do not affect the building containing the billiard hall and hotel.

THE BOSTON STORE LIVES UP TO ITS REPUTATION! WE UNDERSELL!

Seventeen-year Locusts Are Due; Their Bark Worse Than Their Bite

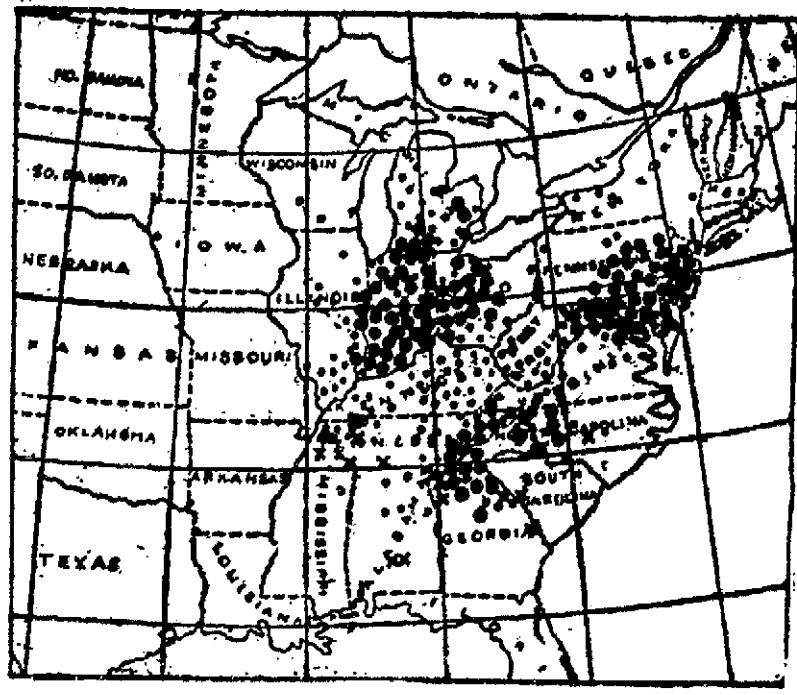

WASHINGTON—The United States department of agriculture predicts for early June a horde of locusts over a territory embracing Alabama on the south, Indiana on the west, Vermont on the north and the ocean on the east. They will be of both the thirteen and the seventeen-year varieties. The department issues a series of maps showing in what parts of the country these insects will turn up each year. The maps prophesy for many years to come. Some years show infestation for only a small section; others will have the locusts widespread. Thus 1919 is scheduled as a great locust year; 1923 will be the next one.

The sudden incidence of the cicada at stated intervals and in fabulous numbers suggests the terrific onset of the true locust, which has become a legend. This one striking feature has given the gentle insect the fearsome name of locust. In every other respect the cicada is as little like its namesake as an insect can be. It does not migrate, as the locust swarm does. It is destructive only in the slightest degree. And it is another kind of creature entirely.

Rural parts this year will enjoy excellent opportunities to observe the cicada in its short, merry life in the air and sunshine. The female uses the branches of trees as receptacles for her eggs. These she deposits by thrusting them into the tender shoot. The fact that the cicada is a fruit tree is selected, is liable to put one of the big two-legged mammals a few dollars out of pocket disturbs the eager mother not a bit. She blithely performs her duty, then tranquilly falls to the earth and dies.

The cicada's egg hatches in a couple of weeks. A tiny larva, something like a flea, emerges and runs around on the branch. Then, quite deliberately, it drops off and floats lightly to the ground. With none of the helplessness of infancy the mite seeks the nearest crack and descends into subterranean parts. It wanders and digs its way about until it locates a tender rootlet, usually a foot beneath the surface of the ground. To this the larva fixes itself and sucks the juices.

Quite immobile the cicada's young remains, feeding and growing until it has developed its adult form. The metamorphosis requires seventeen years in one variety and thirteen in the other, and during this—to the insect—enormous period the larva remains underground. Finally it is ready to emerge. It digs its way to the surface where it sheds its larval skin and takes to wing for its brief spell of airy life.

Government map showing the localities and area in which swarms of the periodical cicada (erroneously called locusts) are due in the eastern United States this summer.

The timing is accurate to a miracle. Thirteen or seventeen years—no more, no less—are required for the lingering metamorphosis underground, and simultaneously millions of the insects swarm out of the ground into a locality that has not seen a cicada for many seasons. It is scant wonder that the unsophisticated ruralites attach to the phenomenon curious explanations and ominous portents.

The larva has tarried long years buried in the dark damp earth, waiting for its life in the light and breeze. This life lasts for a few weeks, devoted solely to mating. The next generation put under way, the cicada dies, usually within a few feet of the point whence it emerged from its years of subterranean probation.

The ounce of prevention involves no scientific complication. The newly emerged cicadae take to the trees and shrubs. They swarm onto bark, branches and roots, unable to fly until they have dried themselves out, for which ten days or so are required. This is the period in which to attack the insects, else the females, when they gain strength, will cover leaves and twigs with their eggs, which are deposited in grooves chiseled by the insect. This sometimes kills young fruit trees. The dying locusts can be picked off trees by hand and destroyed by burning or in buckets of water. Also there are insecticides purchasable in stores or recipes to be had, on application, from the department of agriculture.

The possible damage is slight, though, and the urbanite need not tax his digestion with worry about any great danger to the food supply growing on farms or at his cottage in the country.

LIMO IS POPULAR

Local Concern Has Soft Drink Expert Making Beverage

Limo, the new drink manufactured by the Lima Beverage company at the old plant of the Lima Brewing company, is fast gaining in popularity, the makers declare. It is on sale in practically every Lima shop serving soft drinks and is declared to be meeting with popular approval.

The company has secured the services of a soft drink expert from St. Louis who is looking after the manufacture of this product.

It is expected that within a short time the trade will be greatly expanded. The plant is working a large force.

Funeral services for Matthias Spees, who died at Battle Creek, Michigan, Thursday, will be held from the First Christian church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Hance of Spencerville will officiate. Burial will be at Woodlawn.

THEY SWAM AND THEN TOOK RIDE

Youngsters Forget Bathing Suits and Shook Spectators—"Pinched" and Released.

The cool inviting waters of McCullough lake proved too great a temptation to a crowd of tired and dusty youths. After a day's round of fun the lads decided on a plunge in the pond.

Their splashing attracted park policemen. All went well, until several of the boys appeared near the bank where the water was a bit shallow. The sight shocked the guardians of the law—the boys had failed to bring along their bathing suits. Garbed only in their "birthday suits" they were forced to don their clothing and await the coming of the police patrol.

At the police station they were counted off to the number of twenty-nine. The bighearted desk sergeant, himself a father and not too old to remember hot days when a swim was enjoyed, gave them a reprimand and sent them to their homes.

WELTY IS MEMBER OF COMMITTEE TO PROBE BERGER'S ELIGIBILITY

Congressman Benjamin F. Welty, from this district has been named as a member of the committee to determine the eligibility of Victor Berger, socialist, to a seat in congress. Berger was recently convicted and sentenced to a term of 10 years in the federal prison for violation of the espionage act. Mr. Welty has been appointed on a sub-committee to arrange the procedure.

He is also a member of two other committees this year, serving on the committee of immigration and naturalization and the committee of railways and canals. Re-introduction of his bill to provide for the registration of all aliens until they become citizens and the payment of the sum of $1 annually to be used exclusively to teach the new arrival the basic principles of American citizens, will be made by Welty.

THE HOME OF QUALITY

BOND ISSUE TO BE AUTHORIZED

City's Share for Building Metcalf Street Bridge Will Be Provided.

City council at the regular meeting Monday night will authorize the issuance of bonds to pay the city's share of constructing a bridge to span the Ottawa river at Metcalf street.

The county has agreed to pay $18,000 of the total cost and the city's share is expected to be about the same amount. Metcalf street is listed as a main market road and the county is supposed to pay the costs of all improvements on a highway of this kind. Prosecutor Cable in an opinion handed down to county commissioners ruled that the county could not spend more than $18,000 for a bridge without a vote of the people and the city, rather than question his decision, decided to pay the remainder so that this much needed improvement could be rushed thru.

The present narrow span at Metcalf street make the river improvement worthless, holding back all the flood tide waters and make impossible a rapid flow as the river improvement was intended to give.

It is expected that the contract will be ready for advertising within two weeks.

RAILROAD JACK, NOTED MEMORY ARTIST, HERE

"Railroad Jack" nationwide curbstone philosopher and memory artist reached Lima Saturday night. He assumed this non de plume name ago. His real name is Harry D. Cooper.

He has attained fame thruout the United States as being the only man who is conversant with facts concerning characters of ancient and medieval history and is able to tell from memory dates and anecdotes of these historical personages.

"I sleep out of doors the year around and do not know what it is to lie in a bed," he stated. His bed is the roof of "Y" buildings when making protracted stays in any city, he says.

FINDING AIRPLANES IN THE NIGHT SKY

ALL-RAIL FROM LONDON TO CAPES

AMONG the strangest inventions of the war is the "aircraft finder"—used by the Allies with most satisfactory results for the discovery of Hun airplanes at night.

One hears the drone of a motor in the sky. Whither away? Even in the Apparatus for locating enemy airplanes by sound at night

Sound-reflecting bowl for discovering airplanes at night

Daytime the machine may not be easily located offhand. It is so hard to tell the direction from which a sound proceeds; and one looks above and around for some moments perhaps before describing the flying plane.

At night it is hopeless. Suppose the case of war. The explosion of a bomb near at hand may give first notice that the airplane has passed overhead.

When such perils threaten a city, or an army in the field, guard is kept with searchlights at night, their beams wheeling hither and yon toward the heavens. Once "picked up" in this way, the flier is in danger, though he tries his best to dodge. The searchlights are immediately concentrated upon him and he becomes a target for anti-aircraft guns.

To pick up an airplane with searchlights is always difficult. But they are greatly helped by the above-mentioned invention, which locates the flying foe by sound alone.

An accompanying photograph shows the instrument ordinarily employed for the purpose. It looks like a huge concave mirror of circular form, but in reality is nothing of the kind. Its metal bowl is lined not with silvered glass, but with heavy paper board of the kind commonly used by builders. A wide-mouthed horn is fixed above with its mouth directed toward the center of the bowl's bottom.

Suppose an airplane to be flying in the neighborhood. The sound-waves from its motor are gathered by the bowl and so reflected as to concentrate them and throw them up into the mouth of the horn.

From the horn proceed four tubes—two to the right and two to the left—and each pair terminates in ear-pieces attached to a sort of helmet worn by a man. The men are carefully selected for exceptional keenness of hearing.

The mechanical (and acoustic) arrangement is such that the man standing on one side catches the sounds reflected from up and down the bowl, while the man on the other side catches those reflected horizontally.

This will be understood when it is explained that if the bowl (which is pivoted at both sides and beneath so as to assume any angle readily) has its axis pointed below the threatening airplane, the man who attends to the "up-and-down" part of the business will get all the sound in his right ear and none of it in his left. If the axis points too high the sound will be in his left ear.

It is the same way with the other man, except that his ears give him notice whether the bowl's axis points too far to the left or too far to the right. When there is a balance of sound for both ears of both men, the axis must be pointing exactly at the airplane.

Thus, even though the latter be invisible. It is located. Correction is made for the speed of the flying machine; figures are telephoned to the searchlights, and the latter are concentrated upon the flier, who is promptly assailed by a storm of shells from the "archies."

This apparatus has proved an important development in combating air raids at night. It is very light and portable, and has a hearing range about three and a half times that of the human ear.

Another device for the same purpose employs four enormous horns, resembling gigantic megaphones, up-lifted high in the air by a frame of steel rods. It operates in substantially the same way, and is more accurate. But it has the disadvantage of not being very portable, owing to its great size and weight, and is, therefore, best adapted for defending back areas, hospitals, ammunition dumps, etc.

BY THE time that trains are running under the British Channel, connecting London with Paris—which ought to be within half a dozen years from now—there is likely to be a tunnel beneath the Bosphorus.

With these two borings accomplished, it will be entirely practicable to establish an all-rail route from London to the Cape of Good Hope, running clear across Europe and the whole length of Africa. Cecil Rhodes's "Cape to Cairo" dream may be far outdone by accomplished fact.

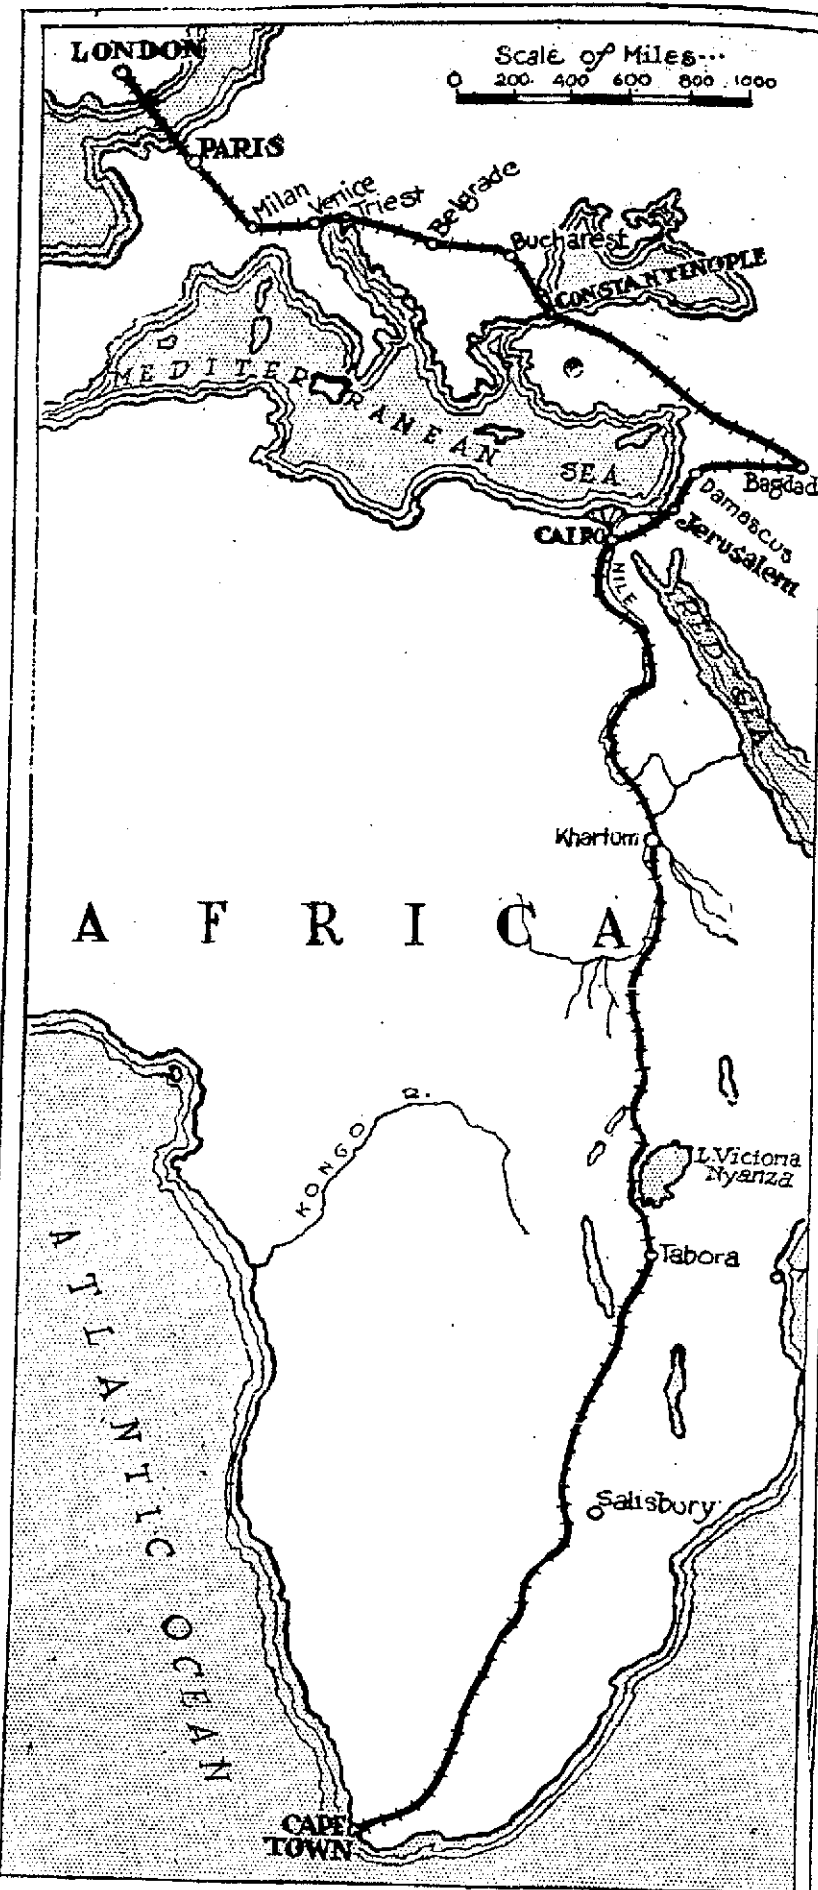

Suggestion has been made of a tunnel beneath the Straits of Gibraltar; but it ought to be obvious that such a scheme, while extremely expensive, would have no compensating value. Its only important usefulness would be to connect France with her African possessions, and, to accomplish this, she would be obliged to pass through Spanish territory.

On the other hand, the Bosphorus route would go by way of Mesopotamia and Palestine, running at all points through thickly populated regions, making Jerusalem an important junction and traffic center, and thence striking for Cairo with a jump over the Suez Canal.

The Bosphorus might be called a natural canal, luckily fashioned by geologic forces in such a way as to connect the Sea of Marmora with the Black Sea. It probably represents an ancient "fault line" in the earth's crust, where Asia was broken off from Europe incidentally to some big terrestrial disturbance.

It is a narrow strait eighteen miles long, at one place only 800 yards wide, but nearly 400 feet deep in mid-channel. Thus the projected tunnel will have to be dug far down to pass under its bottom. In view of the further possibility that the rock-structure beneath the strait may prove broken and unstable (owing to the "faulting" above mentioned), it is possible that it will be found expedient to bridge the Bosphorus—difficult though the problem would be—rather than to bore under it.

The scenery along the strait is unsurpassed in beauty anywhere in the world, the wooded heights on either hand sprinkled with picturesque villages, while on the European side are many palatial residences of citizens of Constantinople.

Creators of the Fashions

Dogs in All the Ages

WHO makes the fashions?

Pretty women make them. Where do they come from? Chiefly from New York, Paris and Vienna. Since the war began Vienna has been rather "out of it," of course, but that gay city doubtless will later resume in this respect an authority rivaling that of the French metropolis.

But new fashions may come from almost anywhere—from Brussels, from Warsaw, or other sources. Many of them are originated in New York and are copied by Parisian dressmakers.

Where fit and finished workmanship are concerned the American dressmakers are superior to the best of Europe. But in the arrangement of colors and other matters demanding a highly developed taste foreign experts have the advantage.

Nowhere else do so many fashions originate as on the stage. The reason why is obvious. Actresses are beautifully and expensively gownned. They are continually seeking novel and striking effects of costume. These are exhibited under the most favorable circumstances to vast multitudes of people, and many of them are sure to be imitated.

Women of social authority who see new fashions thus displayed are not slow to pick them up, thereby giving them acceptance. But of much more importance is the earnest attention which dressmakers and milliners bestow upon the costumes of the stage. They study them as a matter of business, and anything new in the way of a gown or a hat that is notably pretty or becoming affords a useful suggestion.

The costumes of actresses are by no means always modern. They may belong to various epochs. But even a medieval gown may have about it something of special beauty or attractiveness that, properly utilized, will start a fashion anew.

The woman of social position ignores the existence of her sisters of the demimonde, but does not fail to take note of what they wear, nor disdain to copy an item of attire that seems to offer a novel and attractive lure.

Leading actresses on the stage today are, in respect of their costumes, mannequins whose frocks and hats are hardly less interesting to the feminine part of audiences than the plays in which they appear. But the truth is that any pretty woman may, under favoring circumstances, start a fashion.

A story is told of a New York merchant who, some years ago, found himself "stuck" with six dozen costly fur jackets which, owing to a mistake, had been made up in a way that corresponded to no style that anybody had ever heard of. He happened to have a very beautiful sister-in-law, with a superb figure, and he offered her one of the garments as a gift on condition that she would parade up and down Fifth Avenue for two hours on a Sunday afternoon. Within a week all of the jackets were sold.

Twice a year the dressmakers, ladies' tailors and milliners are invited by importers of gowns and hats to "openings" at which samples, newly fetched from abroad, are shown. The public is not admitted. Having viewed the samples, the dressmakers and milliners give their orders.

It is a fact, however, that most of the gowns and hats sold in this country as "imported" are of domestic manufacture, and, at best, copies of imported originals.

'Skeets of Various Breeds

MOSQUITOES of all species prevalent in the neighborhood of our military camps and posts are to be collected this summer for the Army Medical Museum. They will be trapped, chloroformed (so as to be structurally uninjured), and mounted by experts, under glass.

To the every-day person a mosquito is a mosquito, and—like the "primrose by the river's brim"—it is nothing more.

But this is mere ignorance. There are hundreds of species of mosquitoes, which differ widely in size, color, form, habits and methods of breeding. Some are giants of their kind, while others are pigmies.

Anopheles (the carrier of malaria) has a peculiar voice—a deep, contraalto, one might call it, easily recognizable. There are, however, several species of Anopheles, and they fly only at night.

The familiar Jersey "skeet of the salt marshes" has striped legs. Indeed, the only striking characteristic that all mosquitoes have in common is that they—at all events, the females—are bloodsuckers.

Luckily, only a few species are dangerous to man, as carriers of diseases. Conspicuous among them is the common house mosquito of the tropics, which is the sole distributor of yellow fever. Breakbone fever, or "dengue," common in our southern states, is carried by Culex fatigans—the same abominable insect that is responsible for elephantiasis.

The yellow fever "skeet" (like our common rain-bare mosquito) is semi-domesticated, being never found far from human dwellings, and laying its eggs in such casual water-containers as discarded tin cans.

Natural history books used to say that the female mosquito laid her eggs in the form of a raft on the surface of still water. The rain-bare species does that. But other species drop their eggs singly to the bottom; others like the salt-marsh "skeet" deposit them on moist mud.

DOGS are among the most widely distributed of animals. In few parts of the world are they absent or even rare.

There were none in Polynesia, until long after Columbus discovered America, and at a much later period they were so unfamiliar in the Maldives Islands that the natives at sight of them took to the trees.

The dog was doubtless the first animal to be domesticated by man. But its earliest use was for food. Even today its flesh is far more widely utilized as meat than is commonly supposed.

The primitive dwarf tribes of the Philippines, the pigmies of equatorial Africa and the Veddahs of Ceylon, when white Europeans first came to know them, had one domestic animal—the dog.

When Columbus landed on the island of Haiti he found there an excellent breed of dogs, used for hunting by the natives, who, when not employing them in the chase, kept them in cages.

Where dog-eating is customary, great care is usually bestowed upon the young pups. In New Guinea and the wilds of Australia it is no uncommon thing for a father to kill his own child in order that the mother may give suck to puppies.

In Java it is deemed disgraceful to have white teeth "like a dog's," and so the people color theirs. Dogs' eyes, teeth circulate as money in New Guinea and the Solomon Islands; and in the latter archipelago a traveler saw one native whose wealth was made manifest by a necklace of 500 of these teeth, representing 250 dogs.

An extensive trade in dog hides is pursued by the semicivilized natives of northern Asia in two directions—westward to Europe and eastward (by way of Chinese ports) to the United States. In Manchuria and on the eastern border of Mongolia the animals are raised literally in flocks, the severe cold of those regions developing beautiful pelts.

The Australian blacks weave the bushy tails of their "dingo" dogs into their beards to make them longer. Indians of the Puget Sound region make blankets of dogs' hair. Natives of Borneo believe that black dogs are the chosen familiars of sorcerers, and he who laughs when a dog crosses the path will be turned to stone.

Make-up of Our Planet

SCIENCE can only guess what goes to make up the main body of the planet on which we dwell. But it knows what the outer crust is made of—to a depth, say, of ten miles—because the materials have been "coughed up" by volcanoes and are easily studied.

This crust is composed of about eighty primary substances, or "elements," among which are numbered the various metals. Gold, for example, is an element; iron is another, and aluminum is another.

Nearly 8 per cent of the earth's crust is aluminum, which is the most plentiful of all the metals. It occurs in nearly all rocks, every clay-bank is a mine of it. But to separate it from its ores is so difficult that until recently it was a mere curiosity of the laboratory.

Four and a half per cent of the earth's crust is iron. Aside from that metal, the useful elements commercially available before electricity took a hand in the game, such as copper, lead, zinc, silver, nickel and tin, together comprised less than 1 per cent of the earth's crust.

Electricity has made available other valuable elements (aluminum among them), which constitute nearly one-half of the crust of the planet.

The United States is the greatest producer of metals in the world, but we are rapidly using up the sources of ready supply. Our beds of easily accessible iron, such as those of the Mesaba Range, are rich and wonderful, but at no very distant day will be exhausted. We shall be obliged eventually to fall back upon low-grade iron ores, and electric smelting may prove the only means for handling them.

Digging in a Bug Mine in Colorado

FIFTY miles from Colorado Springs is a place where excursion trains in the summer time commonly stop for a half hour to give the passengers a chance to collect fossils. It is a small hill and the railroad cuts directly through it.

The hill is the greatest mine of fossil insects in the world and, its strata being exposed by the cut on both sides of the tracks, the holiday-makers are able to get at them to advantage with hammers they have brought along for the purpose.

There is in the world no important collection of the kind that does not contain specimens from this deposit. It is no exaggeration to say that the hill contains billions of fossil insects, representing practically all of the forms that fly or crawl today. There are even mosquitoes, plenty of them, including one species (thoroughly long extinct) so huge that naturalists have named it Culex dammatorum, or "skeet of the damned."

Among the fossils are bees and wasps, fireflies and blowflies, dragonflies, ladybugs, a few butterflies and any quantity of moths. The hairs that fringe the wings of certain very tiny moths thus preserved are plainly distinguishable under the microscope. Of beetles there is no end—small beetles, blister beetles, seed weevils, click beetles commonly called "skipping pebbles" (because they hop so high), and many others are represented. These latter, indeed, are a large part most ancient of all insects; they have survived through all the ages.

New ones naturally ask: How did all these insects get there? Why so an astonishing assemblage of them in this particular hill? In imagination one repopulates the remote past with their buzzing swarms and crawling myriads, only to feel puzzled to picture the conditions under which they lived and died.

The puzzle is easily explained. There was thousands of thousands of years ago a big lake. A series of volcanic eruptions occurred in the neighborhood. Streams of volcanic mud, carrying vast numbers of dead insects with them, flowed into the lake, drying it up.

The mud hardened into rock, preserving the insects—or, more accurately speaking, "casts" of them. It is these casts, or fossils, that the Colorado excursionists dig out of the hill today.

They find other kinds of fossils also—an occasional fish (which evidently swam in the vanished lake), but, much oftener, casts of leaves and other parts of plants of genera no longer known in that region. These plants (which doubtless grew about the shores of the lake) indicate that the climate in ancient days was far warmer than at present.

HEAT AIDS BARS IN THEIR TRADE

Near-Beer Much in Demand in Lima—No Cases of Bootlegging Reported Here.

Little difference could be noticed last night between the wet Lima that was and the dry Lima that is—that is there was little difference in the crowds around the bars that are still open.

The sultry weather drove hundreds into these soft drink dispensaries in search of relief. They would march up to the bar and order, "A beer." The bartender didn't question them except to the brand they wanted. It seemed they sort of felt better about it when they used the old name.

The new product has been much in demand during the last few days. It has all the earmarks of the real thing and the taste is somewhat the same, but as one sailor was heard to say, "It has a very soft taste."

The police blotter has been devoid of the old familiar story, "Drunk and Disorderly," for a number of days. It is expected to become practically extinct before many moons.

There have been no cases reported of bootlegging or illicit stills, altho this has been the case in other Ohio communities. A number of government secret service men have been keeping their eyes open here, but if they have found anything they have kept the information to themselves.

J. C. HOLLAND, FORMER LIMA MAN, DIES AT HIS HOME IN TOPEKA

Word has been received of the death of J. C. Holland, former Lima man, at Topeka, Kansas. Mr. Holland was one of the prominent architects of his adopted city. He was formerly professor of architecture at the Ohio Northern University at Ada.

Leaving Lima some years ago he achieved success in the western city and many fine buildings and churches there are accredited to him.

He leaves a wife Mrs. Lizzie Holland and two sons, B. A. Holland, who will succeed him at Topeka, and F. O. Holland, a student at the St. Louis Dental College, besides one daughter, Mrs. R. P. Sovers, Topeka.

McCLAIN BOUND OVER

Ward McClain, arrested on a charge of non-support by Detective Bowersock in Columbus Friday was returned to this city and arraigned in justice court Saturday. He pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the grand jury to await the action of that body.

POLICE WILL STOP RIDING ON SIDEWALKS

Chief of Police Roush announced Saturday that he intends to wage a campaign against bicycle riders who insist on using the sidewalks instead of streets. Roush said that there have been many complaints from citizens and that he will put a stop to the misdemeanors.

Riding a bicycle on a sidewalk is punishable by a fine of not more than $10 and imprisonment of not more than ten days, according to city ordinances. Roush says he will enforce the ordinances to the letter.

Are You In Debt ?

If you are, this announcement is of special importance to you.

The American Brokerage Company will open offices next week on the second floor of the College Building and one of their chief functions is to pay the bills of men and women who are indebted to the business firms of this city.

permits the individual to concentrate all of his indebtedness with us. We pay the merchants their money and permit you to repay us in weekly amounts, corresponding with your ability and the amount of money you are earning, and you are given a year's time.

We charge you a small eight per cent per annum interest rate and do not require you to go to your friends for security or deal in chattels.

Many men and women have unavoidably or even foolishly run into debt and are now rated as "dead beats" who are honest at heart. They have not used that good sound business judgment necessary to keep out of the mire, but will extricate themselves if a helping hand is extended.

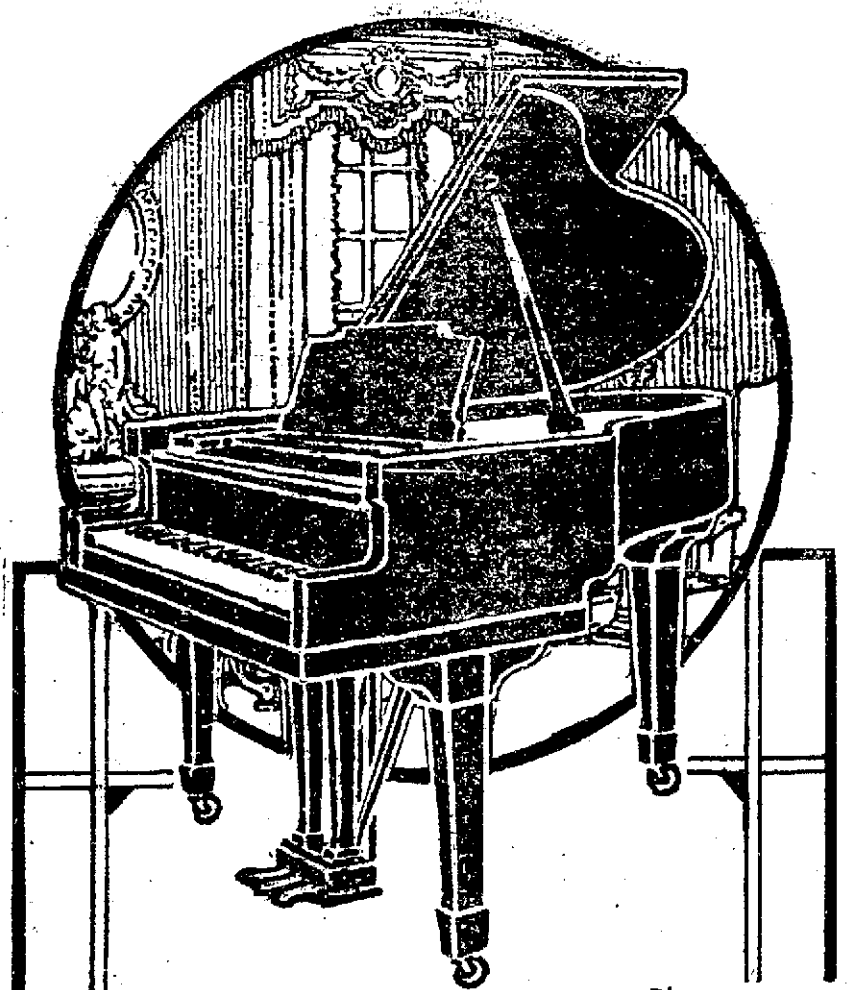

Our service will be of special value to you and likewise the merchant.

The Steck Piano

The Steck is one of the three great American Pianos, the universal demand for which has been so great as to make it necessary to manufacture them both in America and Europe. The international fame of the Steck has been won through sheer merit, the result of the painstaking effort of George Steck, musician and master craftsman. The instrument has made and maintained a reputation that is second to none in piano history. The Steck possesses a wonderful tone—pure, liquid and exquisitely rounded, and a flexible, responsive action.

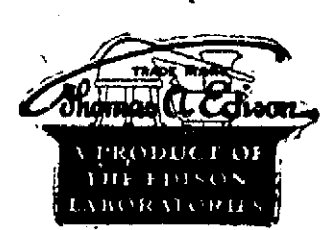

These features, together with its UNEXCELLED DURABILITY, combine to make the STECK without question the greatest piano at its price obtainable today.

THE EARLY RING CAREER OF JESS WILLARD

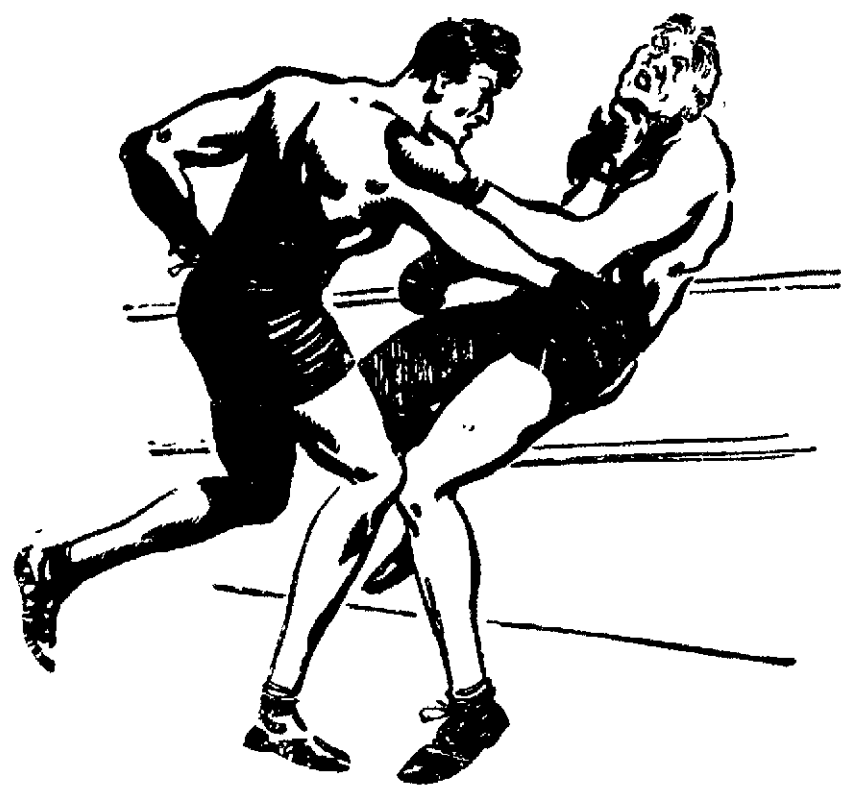

No. 2. By Jack Munroe

Jess Willard is a unique ring champion even though many pugilistic sharpsharps can't figure him in a class with our great kings of the squared circle. For a man who has earned the highest honor the "game" offers along with all its coveted rewards, it is certainly for from being impressive. And yet, strangely enough, it's the underlying secret of his mediocre, and often worse, showing which must catalogue the giant Kausan as one of the most extraordinary title holders the world has ever known. And now let me disclose the afore mentioned secret which has to do with the champions shabby ring feats up to the time he made amends for them all by laying Johnson low under the blistering Cuban sun and restoring again the mastery of the ring to the white race. I think you will then agree with me that Willard's ring talents what they may, as compared to his predecessors of the last three decades or so he is entitled, when we consider the circumstances governing his rise, to more praise for his success than any champion since Sullivan's day. Willard, unlike any other champion never took a boxing lesson up to the time of the Johnson fight and never in his life did he participate in a preliminary or semi-final bout. If you can name any other boxer who ever reached the top with as little ring learning I'll take back my statement that Willard is a unique ring champion. But I don't think even the heaviest dyed-in-the-wool fight can do that. KETCHEL'S CASE SIMILAR TO WILLARD'S

The nearest thing to Jess Willard's case is that of the late and great Stanley Ketchel who almost became the world's champion when his pile driver right put Johnson down and nearly out at Colma. Oddly enough, too, both Ketchel and Willard were formerly cow boys. Jess being the first to honor that calling with a world's pugilistic championship. I happened to be in Marysville, California, back in 1907 when Steve blew down from Montana via the "bumbers" and in some mysterious way convinced "roast promoters" that he could beat Joe Thomas, then holder of the middle-weight crown. Ketchel had never taken a boxing lesson in his life either, although he had received the benefit which comes with many preliminary bouts. Sparring partners, and trainers as in Willard's case, were total strangers to him too, yet he astounded sportdom by getting a twenty round draw with the great Thomas eventually beating Joe for his crown. Ketchel trained for the bout largely on doughnuts in his gym being the back of a saloon kindly donated the "stranger" by a Marysville onifare. I mention this nearly parallel case of Ketchel's because it is the only one to my knowledge which in any way approaches Willard's and because it recalls that picturesque and spontaneous as was Ketchel's every life chapter even he fell in the way of advantages which were denied Willard.

OTHER CHAMPIONS
WELL SCHOOLED
As for other champions of the past four decades their preparation for the final effort which brought them the championship has in every instance been complete. Sullivan had a lengthy list of struggles with some of the most formidable men of his day before he beat Paddy Ryan for the title. Jim Corbett, although the greatest natural born boxer the ring has ever known, was tutored in the elementary principles of boxing by Prof. Walter Watson, the famous professor of the Olympic Club of San Francisco. Corbett too scrapped some of the hardest of Sullivan's contemporaries before facing the Boston Strong Boy at New Orleans. Bob Fitzsimmons was a veteran of thirty-five with seventeen bitter years of milling behind him when his great solar plexus punch vanquished Corbett at Carson. Jeffries picked up a lot of ring knowledge as Corbett's sparring partner. Johnson had been through eleven years of all descriptions of ring work when he met Jeffries for the championship.

WILLARD LEARNED BY FIGHTING

But how different with Willard! A somewhat shiftless cow puncher on the Kansas prairies he never thought of boxing as a career until the "white hope" craze was inaugurated by Jeff's downfall. There was never any atmosphere of the ring in Willard's early life for few prominent ringsters ever visited the Kansas plains where Jess ended out his living branding cattle. Most great fighters have been born or have lived in a "squared circle" environment so to speak and this is a hereditary advantage not to be scoffed at. The late Luther McCarty who was the recognized white heavy weight at one time was a cow puncher like Jess on the Nebraska plains but he later became a "globe trotter" and mixed in with the boxing fraternity during all of his stops at various points on the map.

Willard was plying his cow punching trade in Oklahoma when the idea of becoming a "White Hope" seized him. Jess didn't take himself very seriously however, at least not enough to "immigrate" to New York which was the mecca for all the aspiring heavies who would bear the "White Man's Burden." At that time the burly Al Palzer had won the "White Hope" tourney and Frank Moran and Tom Kennedy were sounding their claims for recognition as an opponent for Johnson. Carl Morris also had gained renown by stopping the venerable Mike Schack. Jess' idea of becoming a hope crystallized into action in the spring of 1911 when he selected one Louis Fink for his victim. The bout was staged in Sapulpa, Okla., and Jess lost out on a foul in the tenth round. Jess was so unspeakably clumsy that in threshing his huge arms through space in an effort to find a vulnerable spot on his opponent he committed a foul. Jess' ardo for ring glory was dampened a bit. He went back to his cow punching for a whole month before donning the mitts again.

JESS' FIRST KNOCKOUT

Our hero then took on Ed Burke, a boxer with some local repute in Oklahoma. In the third round Jess delivered a terrific upper cut with his right and Burke broke the ropes and crashed into the spectators—out cold. In this first knockout Jess told me he discovered that his best punch was the right uppercut and he has employed it with damaging effects ever since. Encouraged by his showing Willard sought out his antagonist of his ring debut. Fink and flattened that person out with the same punch in the same round. Jess now laid his branding iron away for good and concentrated his entire attention on boxing. He had no manager but followed his own simple training rules and fought fairly regularly now. Being a married man with a family kept Jess in a serious frame of mind concerning getting ahead in his new undertaking. However even this early he displayed some of the "timidity" and lack of confidence which marked several of his later battles. Willard didn't feel himself quite good enough evidently, for New York he being around Oklahoma and picked up "small change" meeting third raters like himself. After thrashing Fink he scored successive knockouts over Al Marcano, Joe Lyons, and Ben Shiller and won ten round decisions over Frank Lyon and Mike Gomsky.

WILLARD GOES AFTER THE BIG ONES

Then in 1912 a spirit of rivalry for the Oklahoma favorite prompted Jess to wade out into the deeper waters of pugilism. Carl while Jess was exchanging wild haymakers with Oklahoma "hicks" was making a name for himself in Gotham. True he had taken the most brutal beating a boxer ever received in New York at the hands of Jim Flynn in his first start but he won thousands of friends for his remarkable gameness. He had gone right on fighting and had scored knockouts over third raters and made a good showing with Jim Stewart. Gunboat Smith was attracting attention just then with his famous "occipital" punch. Al Palzer was going great guns too having cleaned up Tom Kennedy, Al Kaufman, Sailor White and Bombardier Wells. Then Lute McCarty snared the spot-light from all of them by dropping Willard's rival Carl Morris in six rounds. That settled all doubt in Jess' mind evidently about attracting notice by his feats in Oklahoma rings. He felt that it was up to him to match his pugilistic wares with the toughest on the market in New York.

NEW YORK VIA INDIANA AND ILLINOIS

But there still must have been a lingering doubt in Jess' unsophisticated mental machinery. He didn't go direct. Instead he hit Ft. Wayne, Ind., and added to his growing store of ring confidence by connecting his powerful right uppercut with the unlabeled Fink and flattened that person made the connection in the fifth round after quite a stubbornly fought bout. Our hero then meandered to Chicago where he loafed about for a month looking for an opponent which suited his discriminating fancy. However, the unquenchable thirst of Mr. Young, who had tasted big Jess' dozy right in Ft. Wayne, decided for him. He gave Young another chance and this time Young met the Sandman a round earlier. Jess by this time had perfected a pretty good stiff job out of his shaggy and ponderous left arm. With it he cropped Young's rushes and then finished him off with the favorite right uppercut. While putting in time around Chicago gymnasiums Jess made the acquaintance of Charles Cutler, the wrestler. Cutler looked Jess over carefully and came to the conclusion that Willard was made of at least White Hope timber. Cutler offered to take the empyro champ to New York after the rings' big game. Jess rather liked the idea of Cutler as his mentor and manager—the first he had ever had—and told him to dig up some sort of a match—"I'm not particular who it's with, just to keep busy" was the way the Rottavatomie thumper put it.

HIS VICTORY OVER PELKEY

About this time Arthur Pelkey a rugged, slow moving Massachusetts slugger had attained some distinction by knocking out the veteran Jim Barry and tough Soldier Kearns. He was fairly well thought of in New York but Cutler who had seen Pelkey perform figured he would find Willard's height and baffling left jab with the separific uppercut too much for him. It was a well made match and Willard owes this following big battles in the metropolis to Cutler's clever management. Willard's box to Knickerbocker's fight fans was quite an auspicious one. Willard was wholly unknown to both Pelkey and New York, the latter taking Cutler's word for it that Willard could make Pelkey extend himself. Pelkey who had never seen nor heard of Willard felt no especial alarm in the match. He regarded it as one more step toward a match with Johnson for the world's title.

JESS ASTOUNDS NEW YORKERS—AND PELKEY

But when the lowering Jess with no bath robe—he hadn't acquired such a degree of opulence yet but just a turkish towel covering his massive shoulders, parted the ropes New Yorkers gasped. So did Pelkey for that matter. Here was a bigger man even than Jim Jeffries and huskier also than the rising Carl Morris who was presumed to run about as large as anything in the way of a White Hope. Everyone was anxious to see what the giant stranger could do. Also what Pelkey who looked like a pygmy compared to his husky antagonist would do. Arthur's first rush told the story. The Chicopee bruiser came out of his corner lickety split intending to mow the big rube down with one fell swoop. But Willard was ready for him and performed a bit of swooping himself. Jess brought his left back almost on a line with his shoulder and thrust it forward squarely into Pelkey's left eye. His rush was stopped short and for the moment he was badly hurt. But big Jess untaught in the art of following up advantages allowed his man to recover. Pelkey recovered physically but from the moment of impact of Jess' first left jab Arthur realized that beating the mammoth opposed to him was out of the question. It was as much out of the question as keeping out of reach of Jess long left. The bout went the full ten rounds and was a slovenly fought affair. Nevertheless the honors went to Willard and New York was made to understand that the big Kansan would have to be considered in future White Hope wrangles.

MATCHED WITH MCCARTY

Cutler immediately got in touch with Billy McCarty, Luther McCarty's manager and suggested a match between McCarty and Willard. McCarty at the time was the reigning sensation owing to his being the first man to put Carl Morris down for the full count. McCarty had seen Willard in one of his Oklahoma "fights" and picked him for a "set up" for Luther, not taking into consideration the fact that Willard had improved some since then. Willard who seemed to have acquired a complete store of confidence was delighted at his New York prospects. A sample of his faith in his ability is found in his answer to a friend who reminded him, in comparison, of Jim Jeffries miserable showing on his first New York bout when he boxed Bob Armstrong back in 1898 before winning the Championship. "Oh I'm a better man than Jeffries was then!" Willard snapped back. (Copyright, 1919, By the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

SCHOOL BOYS GO FISHING

Indication that the fishing game is more than good, was shown when reports from numerous followers of the rod and reel verified the statement from the catches of the last few days. At the various lakes and streams around the city, hundreds of people flocked to try their luck, and the majority of them seemed very successful.

Numberless school boys were among the fisher- and it is predicted that if the warm weather continues a great number of absentees will mark the event. However, the truant officer

TAKE SECOND STRAIGHT

Young Keller, Local Boy, Aids Pitcher Berry in Scoring Winning Run.

Coming from behind in the eighth inning with the visitors three points in the lead, the Lima Independents, Saturday afternoon, tied the score and won out in the final frame after Keller doubled and Pitcher Perry a local artist, clouted the pill, scoring Keller. The game was an old fashioned slug fest and some brilliant plays were enacted by players of both sides.

Keller last year's sandlot artist and erstwhile bat boy of the local club, came to the front as a formidable contender for a meal ticket with the Independents. First up in the final round, the kid landed one into left field and kept on going when the pill bounded bad. Earlier in the game he gained first base on a fielder's choice and stole second. He attempted to make home when Third baseman Swenson bungled up one but was caught at the plate.

The few fans on hand were given an exhibition of good ball playing for seven innings and many grandstand stunts were pulled, first by the locals and then the visitors. Nordquist and Black figured in two double plays; Harrison played a sensational game around third and Reynolds rubbed the bleachers to nab a fast foul fly.

The Independents can well consider the win a lucky one, the game being apparently sewed up when the breaks came their way. Swenson muffed an easy pop up foul and Roos got excited with a straight up foul, both in the same inning. The errors were costly, both batters hitting safely.

Lima scored the first run of the contest in the seventh when Hike stepped into a fast one and gave it a one way ticket to the left-center field fence. In the eighth, Rockport started the leather off the ball when Perry walked Black and Maragi reached first on a fielder's choice. Black was out at second. Swenson connected with a three base hit, scoring Maragi and Brown flied out to Perry. Houck singled, scoring Swenson and Johnson tripled scoring Houck. Johnson scored on Nordquist single. Roos got a life on Malloy's fumble and Kennedy was out on a fly to Reynolds.

With two men down in the eighth, Raushe singled and scored on Egan's double to left field, Costello popped up a foul ball and Catcher Roos muffed it. He landed a nice single on the next ball, scoring Egan. Hike sent a nice little foul fly to third baseman Swenson which would again end the inning but he dropped it. Then Hike singled scoring Costello. Reynolds fanned retiring the side. Rockport lost several chances to score earlier in the game and a total of nine men died on base. They showed their ability to land on the ball, however, in the eighth and should have romped away with the end of the score.

The game was one that a big crowd would have enjoyed but only a small turnout of fans were on hand. Today's game will end the series and the Independents will pitch Pierce again in an attempt to annex all three contests. Berry is only a youngster and for six innings he pushed a wicked arm. He will probably be given another chance later in the season to show his stuff.

TOLEDO MAY NAB PITCHER PREICE

Pirates Win Third Game of the Season From Cincinnati.

Rumors were current about town last night that a scout from the Toledo A. A. club would witness the game at Murphy street park this afternoon to watch Pitcher Pierce work. He was recommended to Roger Bresnahan while he was still pitching for Ohio Northern university and again this week after he had twirled a hot game and a week later a five hit game for the Independents.

Pierce whose real and true moniker is Main made a record at O. N. U. of an average of 19 strike-outs in 12 games and Lima fans hailed him as a comer. Bresnahan is in need of moundsmen and a good showing by this boy today may mean his departure for the big show.

CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE WON BY CORNELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—For the fifth time in succession, Cornell University won the forty-third annual intercollegiate championships here Saturday with a score of 89 1-2 points. The work of the Cornell men in virtually all the events was consistently good, Dresser doing unusually brilliant running in the two mile event, in which he established a new intercollegiate record of 9 minutes 22 1-5 seconds. Pennsylvania University was second winner by points, scoring 29. Michigan was third with 35 1-2, Harvard fourth with 23; Dartmouth fifth with 14 and Yale sixth with 13 1-2. Princeton came seventh with 12 points while Bowdoin had 9. Lafayette and Georgetown tied with four points, while Syracuse and Columbia each made another tie with three points each.

HENLEY REGATTA IS WON BY NAVAL ACADEMY CREW

PHILADELPHIA—The United States Naval Academy annexed the American Henley regatta on the Schuylkill river here Saturday, with Pennsylvania second and Syracuse third. Navy held the middle position with Syracuse in lane No. 1 and Pennsylvania in No. 3. Syracuse got away to a good start but was soon overtaken by Navy and Pennsylvania. Up to the three-quarter mark, Pennsylvania held the advantage, but the big Navy crew forged their shell to the front. They were never headed and when a sprint was called for Pennsylvania was left behind by a length and a quarter. The time was six minutes, 35 seconds.

Jim Thorpe was a tickled Indian when the Giants recently sold him to the Braves. He has always believed that he could soon overcome his weakness as a batter if given a chance to play regularly. He never had this chance with the Giants, e saw his chance with the Braves, who planned to make him a regular outfielder. But Jim has been recalled by the Giants because of the refusal of Davey Robertson to join the Pirates and complete a three-cornered deal.

ATHLETIC CLUB WILL NAME OFFICERS

The Lima Athletic club will take permanent form at an organization meeting to be held Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Election of permanent officers will take place and arrangements will be completed for the first event which is scheduled for June 19.

The officers chosen to serve temporarily will probably be selected as permanent officials with the possible exception of Jobie Kaufmann. He will decline the office of president but will continue to take an active part in the affairs of the club as an ordinary member. Letters have been mailed to all the members advising them of Monday's meeting and it is believed a large attendance will be on hand.

FAST WORK BY FIREMEN SAVES SOUTH SIDE HOME

South Side fire department was called Saturday afternoon at 3:30 to the home of Ernest Kraft, 656 south West street, to extinguish a fire which was sweeping the entire roof of the house which was about ready to fall when firemen arrived. However a cave in was averted by prompt work of the firemen who had the fire under control in fifteen minutes. The damage to the residence is estimated at about $600.

SPEAKER-GANDID BOUT HALTS CLEVELAND-CHICAGO CONTEST FOR 5 MINUTES.

CHICAGO—A five-minute fist fight between Tris Speaker and Arnold Gandid, delayed the Cleveland-Chicago White Sox game here Saturday, but did not prevent Chicago winning 5 to 2.

The battle, which umpires could not prevent, began when Tris slid into first, Gandid robbing "Spoke" of a hit by a brilliant bit of fielding. Gandid hotly accused the Clevelanders of trying the apikes. Gandid's fist flew and as Speaker retaliated, players from both sides formed a ring with a view of letting them fight it out. Gandid was knocked down twice but not badly hurt. Both players were chased from the field. Fans crowded onto the field and extra police were called to prevent trouble. Cioetto easily held the Indians harmless. Score:

DEMPEY WRECKS HIS TRAINERS

TOLEDO—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, is scouring the country for sparring partners to stand up before the terrific punching of the man who will face Jess Willard here on July 4, for the heavyweight title. Dempsey is battling so hard so ferociously and clouting with such force that he is wrecking his present trainers, Bill Tate and Larry Keller. One Round Davis was the first to go by the board.

Kearns has wired to Taylor, Tex., for Texas Harry Tate and to New York for Jamaica Kid. Ray Archer, Willard's business manager, announces that Walter Monahan, now in the army, will get a furlow next week, and will come here to remain with the champion until the Fourth. Monahan has long been Willard's exhibition associate. Willard is expected here either Sunday night or Monday.

UTILITY is no longer necessarily ugly. Our Shelltex Eyeglasses and Spectacles are becoming as well as serviceable. Glasses that "grace the face" are not impossible if we design them.

MANY HAVE WRONG IDEA

Nothing to Get Excited About — Nothing to Make War
About

PARIS — "Russian Bolshevik leaders are dreaming of nights about how to get all the valuable concessions in Russia safely into the hands of American business men."

This was the statement today of Robert Minor, American cartoonist and writer, just out of Russia after several months stay.

"The guarantee that they really meant it," said Minor, "is simply that they haven't any other way of opening up the tremendous resources of the country."

"The world has been awfully kidded about Russia," Minor continued. "There are swarms of gold-laced gentlemen, who have nothing to do but string us along. They sit about tea tables in Stockholm and Melsingfors and make up yarns that are imposed on everybody as facts. The Bolsheviks help their enemies along by issuing hair-raising statements that they seem to regard as necessary, but which they don't mean at all. It's a political stye of theirs. The result is that we get nothing but nonsense from both sides.

German delegates returning from church services along picket fence which prevents them from stepping foot in Paris.

"Take for instance the story of Chinese mercenaries holding Theater Square against the Moscow populace in bloody artillery battles. On the days when the battles were reported to have occurred, I used to doze on benches of Theater Square and wish something would happen. The whole thing probably was based on the grandiloquent boast of the Bolsheviks.

"A recent press dispatch said that bourgeois women and girls of Moscow were dragged out of their homes and given over for workmen to break their lust upon, in celebration of the Revolution's anniversary. I happened to be in Moscow that day and all the daughters of the bourgeois I could see were thumping typewriters for the Bolshevik government.

"It is amusing to hear the reports from outside sources that anarchy is raging in Russia. The real trouble is that there is too much law. The Bolshevik government is the most air-tight, waterproof, noiseless, ball-bearing law and order machine that anybody's artistic temperament ever had to write under. Chief of Police Shatsoff, of

The German delegates to the peace conference must keep on their own side of the fence. The aforesaid fence is a picket one erected on the boundary between Versailles, Paris suburb and Paris itself to indicate the boundary and prevent the Germans from actually setting foot in the French capital. The Germans are quartered in a hotel in Versailles and all conferences with them are held in the Trianon palace in Versailles. The photo above shows French and American soldiers and civilians watching the German delegates on their return, on their side of the fence, from church in Versailles.

Petrograd, knows how to tie a public down to perfect obedience. Shatsoff learned it in New York and Chicago.

"The real surprise about the Russian government is how much like all other government it is. I can see only two important differences between it and any other republic—first, that it has more than the us-

Gossip of the Movies

We fooled you, didn't we? You thought the printer had made a mistake and called Alice Brady by the wrong name. But you are wrong, because Alice has changed her name. She did not change it to suit some manager or press agent, but because a certain young actor asked her to. It was not because the young actor did not like the name of Brady, but he thought it would be much nicer all around if she would consent to changing her name to his.

Alice decided to be obliging and so it happened that father William A. Brady announced her marriage to James L. Crane. Mr. Crane is an actor and the son of Rev. Dr. Frank Crane, the well-known journalist and former minister, who is now editor of the magazine Democracy. Dr. Crane performed the ceremony. Miss Brady needs no introduction to photoplay fans. She had some success on the stage before entering the silent drama and her first picture was made for the World Pictures of which her father was head. She studied for grand opera before entering the drama.

WHAT THEY'RE DOING

Marion Davies will appear next in "Getting Mary Married."

Wheeler Oakman, recently back from service overseas, plays opposite Viola Dana in "False Evidence."

E. K. Lincoln was once upon a time right guard on the Johnstown college football team.

In "La Belle Russe," Theda Bara, it is announced, will wear a costume made of swan feathers.

William Farnum is at work on "The Joyous Troublemaker," adapted from the novel of that name by Jackson Gregory.

In "The Hornet's Nest" Earle Williams is supported by Viola Valz, Brinsley Shaw, Ogden Crane, Kathleen Kirkam and Edward McWade. This Vitaphone production is being made at the Brunton studio.

Charles Arling has just returned from Calgary, Canada, where he played with the Nell Shipman company.

Roger MacKinnon, a young Australian actor, is in the cast that supports Madge Kennedy in her newest Goldwyn production.

Mrs. James L. Crane

Walter Percival is leaving the Metro company. Mr. Percival will spend the summer on his farm in Connecticut, during which time he will read some dozen of books to try and find a suitable vehicle to star in next fall.

WHAT WE'RE DOING

I bet you wish you were us. We are going to take a day off next week and spend it blushing in the Sennett Bathing Girls. Yes, indeed; we are going to go right up and talk to Harriet, 'n Phyllis, 'n Marie 'n all the rest of them. We'll tell you all, or almost all, about it later.

"Love Laughs" Fails to Cause Excitement—Little Activity On Broadway

By Dixie Hines.
NEW YORK (Long Broadway)—Mrs. Fiske has voted aye and closed her season, a new musical play called "La, La, Lucille" taking her place at the beautiful Henry Miller theatre. Mr. Miller, by the way, departed this week for an extended all summer tour, commuting between the points west of Chicago. He will present "Moliere" with the original New York cast except Clark, an intelligent and effective character actor succeeds him. "A Marriage of Convenience" is the other play to be produced, and Ruth Chatterton will join the company at Chicago and journey west with it to appear in this romantic comedy.

"Love Laughs" and "Who Did It?" were the two scheduled plays for last week, and one of the two was postponed at the last moment. The postponement of "Who Did It?" was for the purpose of changing the play. It is a mystery melodrama, and has been mysteriously cast, staged, rehearsed and almost produced. There is a chance that the sought for solution to the inquiry may be answered this week. But they are elusive, these mysterious producers, and it wouldn't be safe to predict.

"Come-On Charlie" has been added to the plays closing. This is the George Hobart farce which failed to vitalize public interest. Robert Rendel, who acts in this play, goes at once into another play which may

IF YOU WILL PRESENT THIS AD AT MY OFFICE MONDAY, JUNE 2ND

Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments will successfully remove the cause of Stomach, Liver, Heart and Intestinal Trouble, Headaches, Backaches, Lumbago, Catarrh, Constipation, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Nervousness, Weak Eyes, Deafness, Gout, Gall Stones, Appendicitis, Hay Fever and many other abnormal conditions of the human system in a majority of cases.

You Should Not Hesitate to take advantage of my offer in this ad. You have only to come and let me take the time to explain how and why Chiropractic Spinal adjustments remove the cause of disease. You are under no obligations to me to continue with the course; you may use your pleasure. If you think it looks reasonable and wish to give it a trial, you may do so.

SCIENCE

Accumulated, established knowledge of principles and rules regarding the function of living tissue in health and disease, systematized and compounded from ascertained facts.

ART

Ability to give a spinal adjustment that will release impingement on the nerves where they exit from the vertebrae.

DON'T BE SICK

What you want is good health, and you can have it if you use the right methods. There is only one way to eliminate disease from your system and that is to remove the cause. The different parts of the body are weakened by improper nerve force, and there is where disease is located. Why is it that medicine does not cure you? Simply because this agent will not remove the cause. You can not expect to be relieved of any disease unless you remove the cause. This nerve force is retarded at the spine, where the nerves exit from between the vertebrae, the vertebrae being out of line forms a pressure on the nerve, thus causing the impulse from the brain to be diminished less than its normal force. Naturally this will weaken the part of the body within which this nerve terminates.

95% of diseases are contributed to impingements on nerves where they exit from the spine.

If you have tried other Chiropractors and did not get results, try me, I may do something different that will give results. If you have tried me without results, then try some other Chiropractor. "Results is what you want; let us co-operate."

HEALTH

A condition resulting from the unimpinged flow of health energy from the brain to all parts of the body.

DISEASE

A condition of devitalized tissue resulting from interference with the normal flow of health energy by bony pressure against the spinal nerves.

Chiropractic is Successful because it is constructive and tends towards regeneration and life.

Chiropractic is Successful

because it rests upon a universal biological law.

Chiropractic is Successful

because it concentrates upon a removal of the primary cause, thus removing the symptoms and the possibility of lasting diseased conditions.

Chiropractic is Successful as after the cause is removed and the diseased parts restored to perfect health that condition of perfect health continues permanently.

"Ask Your Friends"

Ask your friends what Chiropractic has done for them. They will tell you of how they have been relieved after suffering for a long time.

They were just like you at one time, they were advised by some one to give Chiropractic a trial. They hesitated for a long time, but at last concluded to try it as the last resort. They received results and are now trying to advise you to follow their footsteps, and you hesitate, too.

Don't put it off any longer, cut out this ad and bring it to my office tomorrow and become a Chiropractic booster with your friends.

You should understand I do not accept patients unless I feel sure I can show you results. I only want satisfied patients leaving my office, and if you will give me a trial I will do all I can to make you satisfied. "Try me."

SCREEN PRODUCTIONS AT THE LOCAL THEATRES

come into the same playhouse in the fall. George Broadhurst is the producer, and three excellent players are the chief members of the cast.

There will be little excitement on Broadway until the warm weather forces the hands of the producers. It is generally believed that the present summer season will be the most active yet known in the history of Broadway theatricals. Instead of having ourselves confronted by an almost complete circle of filled playhouses. Those which are closing will soon open again, and all lines dividing the two periods, winter and summer, promise to disappear leaving us with a continuous season.

Summer is evidenced by another feature, however. That is the opening of "stock" companies in the city. Two are now in operation, which is a condition which has not existed in this city for several years. Others are scheduled to open later. Stock companies are more or less a novelty to playgoers at present. The one which has "The 13th Chair" for its bill this week is introducing an interesting stage personality in Helen Van Hoose, a well known society woman in a noted Southern city, who has acted the role of Rosalie LaGrange, the medium, in this mystery play, on tour, and won such high esteem from the critics that the Broadway managers, scenting a new dramatic "find" are flocking up-town to see how accurate the judgment of the out of town critics has been. It appears to have been confirmed to the highest degree, as she is a rare character actress, possessing intelligence, dramatic instinct and charm, with a keen sense of humor. If for no reason than to develop players destined for Broadway who otherwise might be lost on the desert of touring, these stock companies are institutions deserving support.

The group of French theatres in New York grows apace. No less than five have been announced for next season, most of them slightly visionary. The former Vieux Colombier, which has done more than any organization in years to develop French dramatic art in this country, will be continued, and further up-town, at what will be known as Theatre Parisien. This is one of the real events of the coming season, as it will seek to interpret to American playgoers and music lovers, the light, amusing entertainment redolent of the Boulevards of gay Paris, the Paris which is remembered with such affection by those who were her guests during ante-bellum days. Richard G. Herndon will be the director of this enterprise, Robert Casadesus being the art director.

This week the Actors Equity Association will hold a meeting in New York to determine the question of unionizing all the actors and actresses in the United States and then affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. The managers are also meeting to oppose this move. From present outlook, if the actors carry through their determination, and the managers remain firm in their own decision, there will be much excitement next season. The actors insist that they will force the "closed shop", refusing to appear on any stage with any person not a member of the actors union, and the managers insist that before they will permit such dictation they will close their theatres. It is easily seen that if each holds to this programme, the public will have much to read about in the very near future.

"The Crowded Hour" brings its long season to a close in New York this week. Therapist Jane Cowell goes to rest and write a new play.

AT THE EMPIRE TODAY AND MONDAY.

and Georges Plateau, the French actor goes to Paris. Happily the latter returns next season because he is an actor whom we cannot afford to lose. He represents a different type of the French actor from the one we have been accustomed to seeing, and we prefer his type.

Ethel Barrymore continues to play "The Off Chance" with remarkable success on tour. Harry Ashford, one of the best English comedians who ever won a laugh from an audience, has been added to the cast, which suggests that Miss Barrymore is on an extended "See America" tour.

New York has a new popular idol Elsie Bartlett, who acts gracefully in "Please Get Married" and when not thus engaged perpetuates her pleasing countenance on the screen.

ber and Ben Wilson will star in the six reel feature attraction, "When a Woman Strikes." This is unquestionably one of the best motion pictures yet shown in Lima and with the two real special comedy film starring Fay Tincher and the Follies beauties in "Sally's Blighted Career" makes this a good program.

Thursday and Friday Paula Shay and James Cooley will star in another of the famous Ivan productions "The Immortal Flame" and which is an absorbing society drama. Saturday will be offered the usual Saturday program consisting of a Western feature, a Tom Mix production, a two reel comedy sensation as well as a comedy film.

AT DREAMLAND—Dreamland today has a specially arranged Sunday program, consisting of Westerns, dramas and comedies. Anne Little and Jack Richardson in the Western feature "Beyond Reproach" tells the story of a young Easterner who goes out west to make his fortune, but instead falls in with habitués of the gambling halls and dance halls of the West and is on the downward path when a new acquaintance steps in his path. Tom Mix in "The Stage Coach Driver and the Girl" gives thrills and laughs. Ray Hughes in "Beauties and Bombs" give some interesting peeps along the refreshing beaches and peaches on Eastern shores.

Tuesday and Wednesday William Duncan and Edith Johnson in the eighth episode of "The Man of Might" serial story entitled "The One Chance." Another of the big V two reel comedies as well as other features "A Child of the Prairies." Also will be shown one of the Vitagraph productions.

Saturday the sixth episode of the "Hand of Vengeance" serial stories will be seen.

AT THE STRAND—At the Strand today will be shown the fifth of the famous "Hand of Vengeance" stories entitled "The League of Silence." Mabel Normand in the Keystone comedy hit, "A Touch of Rheumatism" is very clever in her little skit and makes many new friends. The two reel "The Portrait" as well as another comedy complete the bill. Tuesday and Wednesday the five reel feature production "The Flaming Omen" is regarded as one of the best Western productions yet offered Strand patrons. This in addition to a big V comedy entitled "Bathing Beauties" will please the most critical.

HINTS TO SUMMER WIDOWERS

If you sleep on top of the bed every night and don't get inside of it, you won't have to make the bed all summer long.

The hardened summer widower can eat boiled eggs three times a day, and for variety can piece out on bananas and doughnuts.

The summer widower can have but one steak during the season, because after he uses the frying pan once and gets it full of grease he doesn't know how to clean it. It is best to wait several weeks and have the steak when you are good and hungry.

As for laundry, it is best to live near a good gent's furnishing store.

It is best to go to the restaurant once a day and get measured for a square meal, and after you have eaten said square meal go home and boil a few more eggs and cut into another section of boiled ham.

The way to sweep a floor is to push the carpet sweeper ahead of you like a lawnmower, and not pull it behind you like an express wagon. When the carpet sweeper is full and won't hold any more sweepings, put it away in the closet until the wife comes home.

The Undertaker is not a lazy man. He is never known to shirk; still he has a motto—No Bier, No Work.

THE DEPARTED HAIR.
I knew a man who was quite fair, but wasn't very smart. Whenever he would comb his hair he'd try to make a part.

He wouldn't take his friends' advice. For brains he seemed to lack. His hair stayed neat, and looked quite nice. When he would comb it back.

But still he said, "A part I'll wear. No matter what I'm called." He tried so hard to part his hair that soon he was quite bald.

So now the imbecile has started to visit many a quack. For, tho at last his hair has parted, the fathead wants it back.

CONVERSATIONAL CAROMS
Modesty is the fear that same one knows how easy it was to do it. Mock modesty is inability to speak the English language.

A dramatist is a man to whom there are no happy marriages. Our county jails don't have to advertise for business.

Broadway is ten thousand times longer than it is wide, but few actors get across.

There was one thing never held against Nero; he didn't take an encore.

Women view with suspicion the automatic stop on the photograph. Self-assurance is confidence multiplied by clean linen.

Never talk about yourself—shout.

Boom Just Starting

ACCORDING TO THE BEST POSTED financial houses of the East the industrial boom, now considered fairly well under way, is only starting. The stock market at its present height is the starting point, from which higher levels are to come. The Street is discounting business conditions in September and when September is really reached and business is on the real go, prices will still further reflect earnings to come. Motor companies have not yet reached the peak of production and demand for new cars is twice as great as present deliveries. These companies are swinging into quantity production but they will not reach it until late in the summer, bankers say.

HERE AT HOME all lines of trade are optimistic, except steel and locomotive and in these orders are beginning to come thru as well as for the truck companies and next fall is expected to find our largest factories going full speed. Labor, despite the quiet resulting among the factories is still scarce. Mechanics are hard to get, common labor remains aloof and there is not the seemingly out-of-work situation which had been forecasted when the boys returned home.

BUILDING TRADES are hunting for men; one firm of architects reports over $2,000,000 in new work on their books and contractors unable to secure the necessary men. All around town new residences are springing up like mushrooms; out in a corner of the West End can be counted 22 new homes on two streets. Plans are out for several new structures in the business district and there seems no end to the future. Retail merchandise is moving rapidly, collections are good, and the trend of prices is now again upward, so that there is no reason to wait on any buying you contemplate.

The Cafeteria Meals

STATISTICS OF HOTELS show that ninety-nine out of every 100 patrons order more than they do or can eat under the a la carte plan. This over-payment for food, taken together with the ten percent for a tip, makes a meal in the first class hotels and restaurants not only cost a goodly sum but causes a big waste of food materials.

AGAINST THE extra ordering from the a la carte menu, the Cafeteria records show that patrons only pick out what they want and the portions are such that very little is left over. At the same time the tip is eliminated entirely.

WHILE FOR THE WEALTHY and for all those who patronize hotels and restaurants partly for the social side, the a la carte menu will always be in vogue, yet in the number of people taking meals out from necessity it is a sure forecast that the Cafeteria will continue to grow in popularity and will serve a national purpose in actually feeding as many people at less drain upon the food-stores of the country.

Racing In Vogue

THOUSANDS WERE AT THE AUTO races in Indianapolis yesterday and the old interest reigned supreme; the hotels and restaurants did a land office business; everybody was in holiday mood.

HUNDREDS ATTENDED the races at Findlay Friday, it being the largest race crowd ever known on the track; hotels were deluged with business; refreshment stands near the driving park did a land office business.

NO LIQUOR WAS SOLD at either Indianapolis or Findlay, thus proving that while liquors may have originally caused the social side, they are not necessary for maintaining sport and amusements and that we shall continue to have our racing, our boxing, our baseball, our cabarets and our good times.

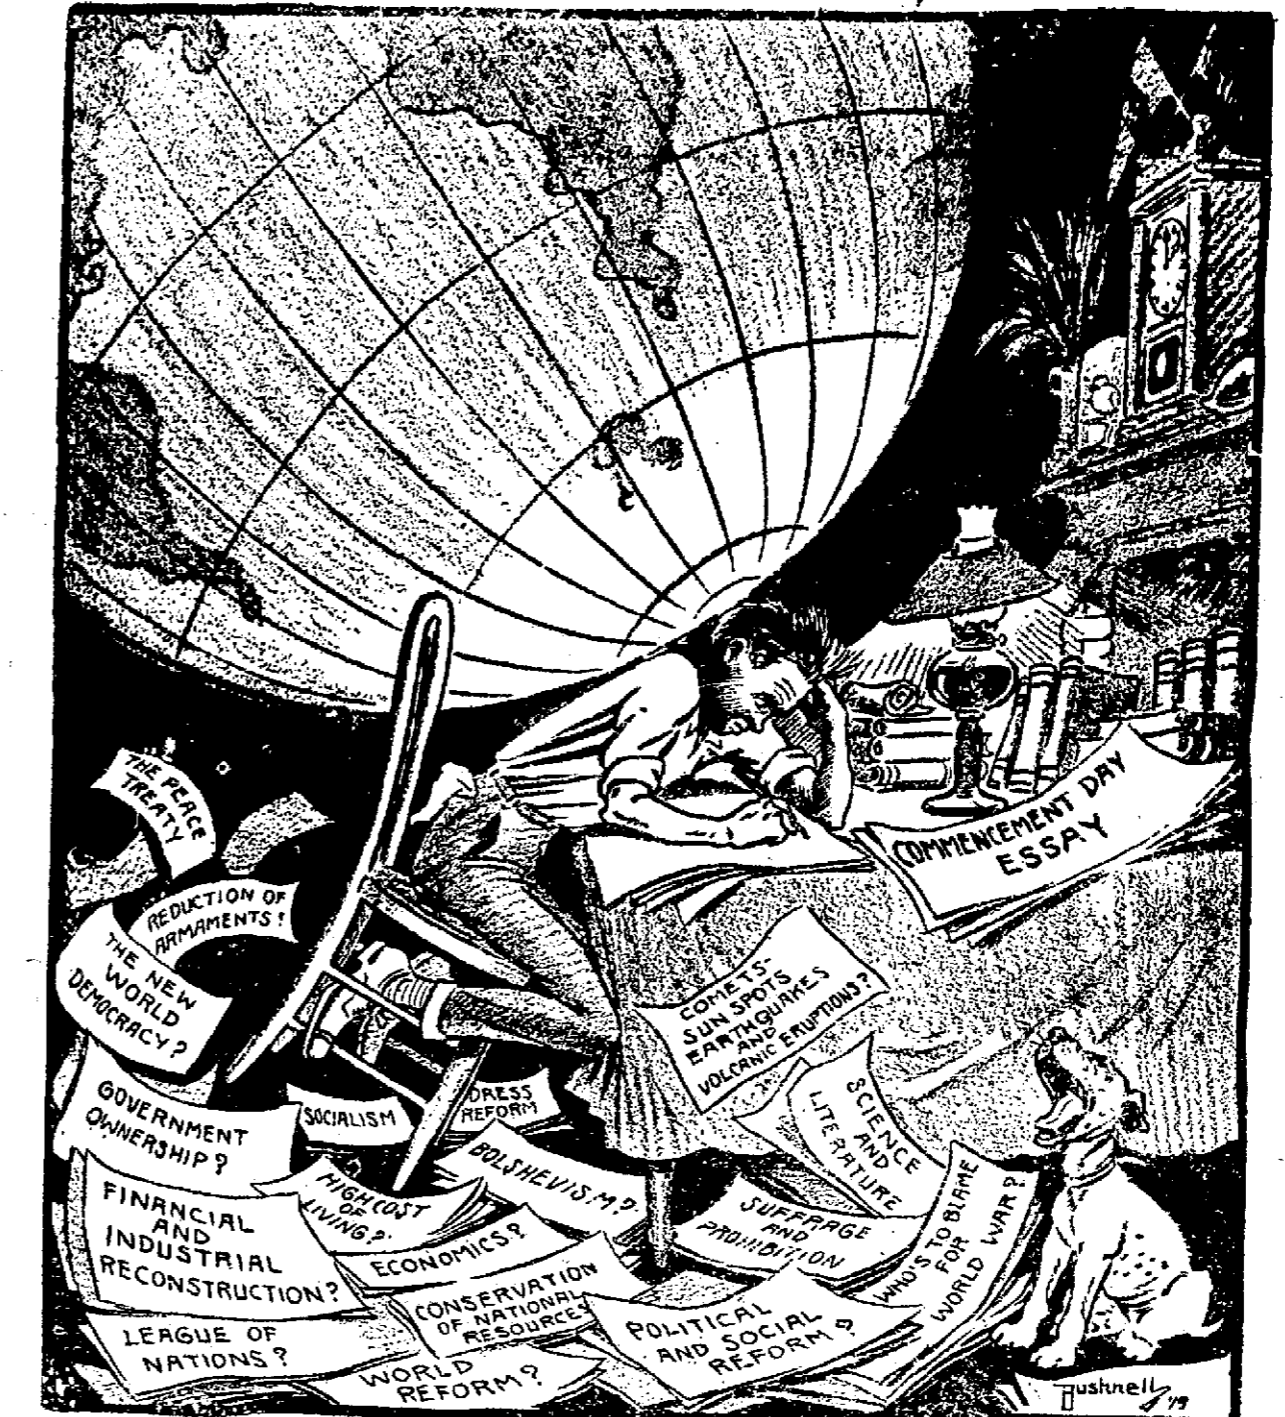

Mid-Summer Comes

MID-SUMMER WITH ALL its warmth and flowers and grass and bugs and flies came down upon us with a crash at the weekend, and for all who have been wishing for sunshine, Old Sol was answered. While it is a lethargic period it can be a health-building period, if one will but stay in the outdoors and enjoy the full ninety-day run, which has opened with a promise for white flannels, canvass shoes and no underwear at all.

MISS LIMA: "Near-beer has the double purpose of neither cheering nor incubating."

Vacations and Life

PHYSICIANS TELL US that the two-weeks vacation is a necessity for longer life; that we store up enough vitality to make it possible to do more and do it better. Now comes John O'Day, a Baltimore & Ohio employee, who after serving 52 years for his road without a vacation, up and dies at the tender age of 78 years, 7 months and 3 days. We wonder if he ever drank or smoked.

CONFESSIONS of an EVERY DAY WIFE

BY IDA B. GILSON

MRS. CHARLTON IS JEALOUS

By the slight contraction of the muscles of Mrs. Charlton's face I saw that she sensed, as I did, that the Major's most cordial hand-clasp meant nothing more than good comradeship and the cordial liking that sometimes comes from long acquaintance.

She looked at me suddenly and suspiciously as though wondering if I were the cause of his cooling ardor. And although of course I was perfectly innocent I felt the color rise to my face, for I did know about the Major's proposal to Eliene.

All this was wholly lost on Theo and the Major, but both Mrs. Charlton and I knew immediately that because she thought I had taken the man she cared for away from her, she had begun to actively suspect and dislike me.

Instantly I determined to keep her thinking I was the reason for the Major's defection because it seemed to me that Eliene would have enough trouble to steer her love-laden craft through the troubled waters that were before her without any obstacles that Mrs. Charlton might throw in to wreck her happiness.

I rose so quickly and went forward so very cordially to greet the Major that I saw he was a little surprised until I found a chance to whisper, "Eliene has told me." His face became transfigured and he reached out to clasp my hands.

"Do you think she will consent?" he asked.

"I am quite sure Mrs. Symone makes everyone happy," said Mrs. Charlton, who to my surprise I found standing near and I knew she had caught the "consent to make me happy" of the Major's sentence and she thought that he was asking me to make him happy or that I had promised to do so.

Because I saw that Mrs. Charlton was going to make a fight for what she considered her own, at the next chance I had for speaking to Major.

Gordon, I said: "You must be very careful not to let Eliene or anyone else realize that you are so greatly in love with her, for Eliene is very shy about her personal affairs and until she definitely accepts you I would not act more than friendly to her."

At this moment Theo said: "What are you doing tomorrow, Margot? Why don't you take Mrs. Charlton out to the camp?"

"Yes, do," said the Major quickly.

"All right, if Mrs. Charlton wishes," I said. "But I think I had better take the big car and perhaps Eliene will go with me."

Communication from a live reader:

"I am a woman fifty-eight years old and have been turning somersaults now for nearly two years. At first I could hardly turn six, as they made me so dizzy and sometimes caused severe nausea; but I persevered and took them easy, and now I can turn twenty or more at one time without any trouble, and bound up on my feet after each one.

"I turn them on two large hair pillows laid on the floor lengthwise. Then I lie flat on the floor with pillows on my feet, hands on my hips, and raise my body to sitting posture ten times, always inhaling a deep breath and holding it a few seconds before raising.

"Then I take the pillows off my feet, and lie flat again, raising my legs to the vertical ten times without bending the knees, and I am ready for my day's work. I do this mornings instead of evenings, as I found morning exercise agreed with me better. I will not try to tell you how much my health has improved under this regime, but close to the near edge of the nearer pillow, and over I go, imparting an accelerating twist to the body as I go over. I land on my feet, and the momentum carries me upright.

"My sons, recently discharged from the army and navy, tell me I do it as gracefully and easily as a circus tumbler. The snap with which I perform ought to throw that old splanchnic blood to my very toes. And oh, my method in elysium for the spine and body." (Signed, but not for publication.)

Now, then, do you think somersaults are safe only for persons under ten years of age? I don't want to strain your brains, but these communications prove that is isn't necessary to be old at fifty.

Take two pillows and half a dozen rolls before breakfast and at bedtime. It keeps you young.

PEOPLE STARVING BY THOUSANDS IN BALTICS, REPORT

American Officers Tell of Frightful Conditions in Provinces

BERLIN — The Bolshevik fighting in the Baltic provinces is the most hateful of all, according to American officers returning from missions there, who tell of the ghastly and almost unbelievable cruelty on the part of the Bolshevik mercenaries. Neither side is showing mercy now, according to latest reports.

A number of phases are cited to account for the exceptional bitterness of the Courland and Lithuanian fighting. The Bolsheviks are faced around Riga, by German volunteer divisions, with whom a number of Letts are fighting.

The German divisions are known as the Baltic army and is supported from German headquarters. The campaign is conducted in accordance with the armistice terms, say the officers. Part of the Germans are from German proper, and the rest are known as "Baltics."

The "Baltics" are the German population of the Russian provinces north of Prussia. They are descendants of a wave of Germans which swept into the Baltic provinces of Russia in the thirteenth century. In the course of time the Germans, though a very minor portion of the population, have come to own practically all the property.

They are called the "Baltic

Barons," and own everything through a feudal system which has lasted from the middle ages. The people are mostly Letts, some of whom are in favor of the "Baltics" and many of whom are not. The "Baltics" lean toward Germany in their sympathies and are hated especially by the Bolsheviks of Russia.

When the revolution came in Russia, the "Baltics" organized and began a telling campaign against the Bolsheviks. During the last year they have held the Bolsheviks out of most of the "Baltic Baron" territory, and since the armistice have been materially helped by the volunteers recruited in Germany.

Their resistance has especially angered the Russians, who want to free the country of Germans. According to Americans who have been in the region, Trotsky has sent his best troops against the "Baltics." The Bolsheviks have fought like barbarians and according to reports have wiped out entire towns, when they were able to take them, to end the "Baltic" influence. It is claimed that more than five thousand were murdered when the Bolsheviks took Riga.

Entente officers have investigated many of the reports of cruelty, and verify statements that men, women and children have been victims of Bolshevik mercenaries, many of whom are Chinese. When an American food commission arrived at Libau, it found thousands of defenseless women and children put on islands and left to starve because they favored the "Baltics."

The American mission officers, who are doing their best to get food to the starving population, blame the Bolshevik armies for the atrocities. Photographs, too horrible to look at, show the awful methods of the savage mercenaries, who are not exponents of any idealism which the Bolshevik leaders may profess, but are fanatics.

The Baltic fighting is probably the most savage and barbarous in the world today, due to the bitter feeling on both sides. The "Baltics" have exploited the people, thereby provoking hatred unequalled anywhere. On both sides the armies are well fed from exploiting the land, while the population is starving.

Behind the "Baltic" army, the governments have changed from time to time in localities. At present the "Barons" are largely in control, though recently a republic was in away.

The Letts for the most part prefer to belong to Russia, but hate the Bolsheviks, and therefore are fighting for the "Baltics," and have preserved the numbers and names of the old Russian regiments from the region for the sake of stirring up national feeling. Some of the "Baltics" would prefer to adhere to Russia politically, but we are afraid of the Bolsheviks. Others are out and out Germans, and plans are under way for joining the provinces to Germany when an opportunity comes later.

How to distribute the food and which government to support is a puzzle to the food missions from the Entente sent to Libau and Memel to care for the populations. On both sides of the lines the populations are starving, while the military organizations of mercenaries are ravaging the lands.

DOCTOR ADVISED LITTLE INVALID TAKE NERV-WORTH

The Trouble Began When 8-Year-old Clifton Boy Fell and Crushed Arm.

Parents of small sufferers from nervous distresses will do well to weigh this clear proof of Nerv-Worth's remarkable power. It was given a few days ago by Mrs. L. F. Clifton of 1134 Central avenue, Zanesville Ohio:

Fogg's Drug Store—My little 8-year-old son fell from an apple tree and his left arm was badly crushed. The shock was severe and left him in a very nervous condition and his appetite was poor. The attending doctor advised me to give him Nerv-Worth and I noticed an improvement from the start. Now, after he has taken three bottles, his nervousness has entirely disappeared and his digestion is as good as new. Nerv-Worth is surely fine for nervous stomach troubles and I heartily recommend it.

MRS. L. F. CLIFTON. Your dollar back at Butler's Drug Store, Main and Kibby; The Central, Main and High; and Everybody's Main and Vine, Lima, if Nerv-Worth does not benefit you.

This Is the Tire We Will Build. See the Word Ohio

A Good Investment!

Now Means Independence in the Future

The men who make money are the men who invest in live and growing industrial companies. Here are Ten Reasons why you should invest in

The Ohio State Rubber Tire Co., Port Clinton Ohio

- 1 Because other Ohio rubber stock has brought its holders millions of dollars in a few years. The facts are staggering—almost beyond belief. But they are TRUE.
- 2 We have a real plant with real buildings, large enough space to make a thousand tires per day. We have plenty of ground for expansion. We have one mile of concrete foundation already in for future buildings.
- 3 We have bought and contracted for all our machinery, which we are now installing. Soon we will be in operation—making profits for our stockholders.
- 4 The location is unexcelled on account of the unlimited water supply, which is one of the largest assets in the rubber tire industry. Railroad and lake shipping facilities of the very best. Right in the middle of the automobile industry of the United States—between Cleveland, Toledo and Detroit, where eighty per cent of automobiles are manufactured in the United States.
- 5 We are near Akron,— the center of the tire industry, which is also noted for its manufacture of rubber machinery, where we have purchased most all of our machinery.
- 6 There will be a much larger demand from now on for tires in this country as well as in Europe. Europe is destitute of tires and they have come to this country to secure their supplies.
- 7 The Ohio State Rubber Tire Company has secured one of the best executive and technical organizations which can be found in the Rubber Industry for its working staff.
- 8 Those in position to know say that the tire industry in spite of its enormous size is still in its infancy. You don't have to guess about rubber. You have only to open your eyes and see the number of cars from day to day passing by. They ALL need tires.
- 9 A big field for tires that is just beginning to give evidence of its vastness is the motor transport field. Thousands upon thousands of trucks will be used in the next few years, transporting goods from city to city, competing with the railroads and also lessening the stress that has been placed upon them, especially in the freight department. The railroads also have utilized a perfect motor service for intra-terminal transfer of package freight which will require numerous tires.
- 10 A VERY STRONG REASON We are incorporated under the laws of the State of Ohio, under the supervision of the Commission of the Department of Securities of the State of Ohio, which has certified the sale of our seven per cent Preferred stock. Our Stock is non-assessable and a liberal bonus of Common Stock is given with each purchase of Preferred Stock, but for a short time only.

We invite the closest investigation.

CHURCHES PLAN A WORLD UNION

Lima Pastor Will Attend Big Meeting in Columbus This Week

A united movement on the part of the Protestant churches for the Christian conquest of the world is the upmost theme to be considered at a conference of representatives of all denominational and inter-denominational organizations in the state of Ohio, to be held at Columbus, June 23rd and 24th. At that meeting plans for a new World Inter-church movement program, so far as it affects the state of Ohio, will be formulated.

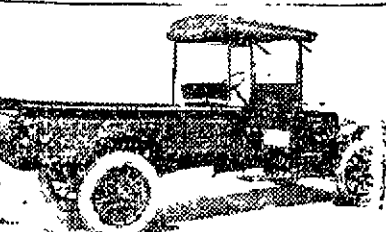

The session will be held in the Central M. E. church, and over twelve hundred pastors and officers are to be in attendance. Rev. Knox of the Market Street Presbyterian church, expects to go to the meeting Wednesday.

The purpose of the World Inter-church movement, which was recently organized in New York and which has received the approval of many Protestant churches, is to enlist all agencies possible in an united effort to fulfill the duties of the churches to the religious and social problems of the various cities and rural communities, and to spread the Christian message into the mission fields of the world.

Leaders of the movement emphasize that it is organized for the purpose of cooperation, not union.

First Congregational church, south Elizabeth street near Market. Bible school at 9:15 a. m., Scott Young, Supl. Rev. Chas. L. Fisk, Secy. of Congregational Educational Society of Cleveland, will occupy the pulpit at 10:30 a. m. Recital by Raymond Oliver, just returned from military service. The public is cordially invited to all services of this church.

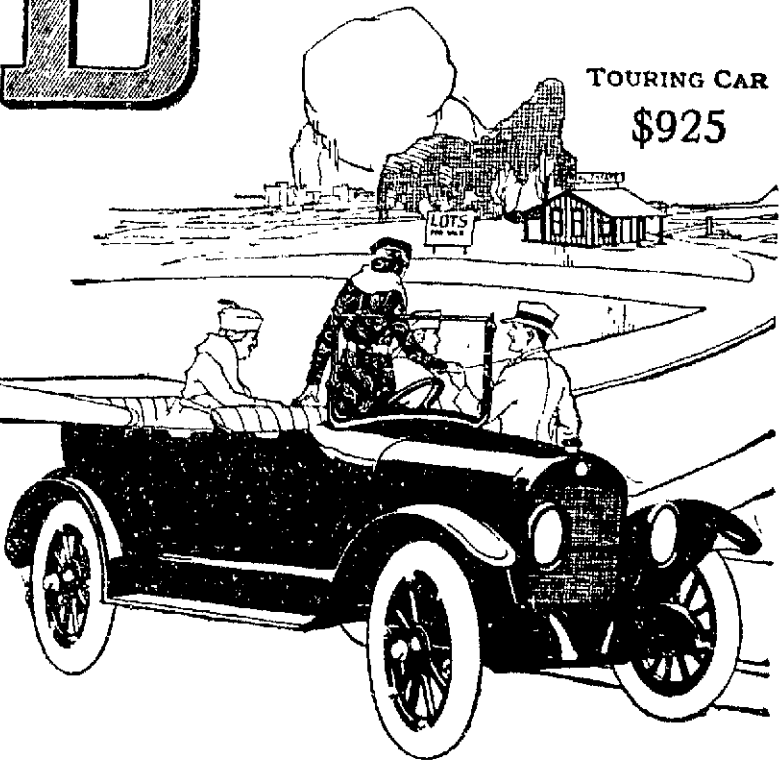

St. Paul Lutheran church, North and Elizabeth streets, John Keehley pastor. Sunday school at 9:15 o'clock. Main service at 10:30 o'clock, sermon subject, "Rivers of Living Water." Special quartette number, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," will be sung by Mrs. Joe Davison.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

You have observed that we frequently emphasize the accessibility and simplicity of Dort design.

We have good reason to believe that no car on the market is of more simple and accessible construction. Perhaps the best way to make clear the value of Dort accessibility is to say it this way:

When you desire to "tune up," or "dope up," or adjust this or that part you can do it yourself easily and at little cost.

And of course there's no need to point out that Dort simplicity means maximum freedom from mechanical trouble.

ual amount of government ownership, and second, that men and women vote by occupation rather than by residence district. For instance, if a voter is a coal miner he votes for a representative of coal mining. In the same way they intend to have doctors and druggists elect men to represent the medical profession in the legislative body. It is not communism—it is rather an advanced form of republicanism.

"In short, there is nothing to get excited about in Russia and nothing to go to war about. America would do well to establish a business camp in Moscow, in charge of business men of reasonably open outlook. They would be as safe as in New York and welcomed with music. They could have the protection of a million highly disciplined soldiers that are already on the ground. They are called the "Red Army," but don't let that worry you. The word "red" is just camouflage that the government used in order to smash up the old red guard and build an army that would take orders. The new army obeys. "How did the once fiery Bolsheviks come to such a pass? By a simple law of human nature. They built a State and then began to sacrifice everything to it, as people are always inclined to guard at all costs the existence of the things they have created."

BUILDING HALTED BY HIGH MONEY RATES, REPORT

Construction Material Prices
Not Retarding Factor, Is Claim

Freer Lending on Mortgages
Is Feature of Week on Finance Market

NEW YORK—That it is the high cost of money and not the high cost of building materials that has re-carded post-war building activity, is the opinion concretely expressed this week by a leading New York builder, according to the weekly review of THE AMERICAN ARCHITECT. It is felt by this authority that builders have held off from starting new building on a large scale, not because they expect materials and labor costs to drop within the next few years, but for reason of the high rate asked for money. A stumbling block has been the plan of many bankers for amortization of mortgages. Builders discourage the tendency to force this scheme, which, while it is good banking, absolutely repels the ordinary speculative builder.

Freer lending of building mortgage money, which has been scarce owing to the diversion of large sums into Liberty bonds, was a feature of the market this week, when many of the larger corporations showed evidence that now Government bankers are over it is their duty to divert at least some of their funds from other investments into helping solve the building problem. For the first time in months, many prominent mortgage companies showed a desire to use their own money, together with all the capital they could attract, with which to make building and permanent loans on apartments and office structures.

Loan money, because of scarcity, and like every other commodity, has advanced in value. It is logical that banks should desire to take advantage of opportunities to invest their money at more than the old rates of interest. There are many more attractive investments for them today than the 4-1-2 per cent loan from the banks' standpoint it can be clearly seen that with loans definitely restricted and limited and based on pre-war costs, there has come a prevailing insistence on amortization.

With the coming of an easier market for building loans, there is a more universal tendency to disregard the comparatively small average advance in the price of materials. At a money rate of 5 per cent and the certainty that it will soon reach 6 per cent, there came hesitancy on the part of speculative operators. In some quarters the opinion is very freely expressed that with mortgage loans at 6 per cent, bankers would be disposed to withdraw their insistence on amortization requirements and that building operations would at once gain impetus toward their normal condition.

There is not so much inconsistency as may at first be felt in arriving at a conclusion that an increased rate of interest would result in increased construction. With this condition revised, operators would be able to figure their equity and fix their price with a certainty that would inspire confidence. Another aid in overcoming the difficulties of the present building problem would be the establishment of a definite tax limit. Real estate for the past twenty years has borne an unfair proportion of the taxes of the cities. Thirty per cent of the rent from a house it at once paid for taxes. The difficulty has been that it has been hard to induce capital to build when a fair return cannot be assured and the landlord is held up as a rent profiteer.

Mantle of Taffeta with Velvet
Stripes.

THERE was a time when a good looking evening wrap was a necessary feature of every woman's wardrobe. Now, however, the smart fashionable has a collection of such wraps, from glimmering, glittering brocade to those of softest chiffon, laid fold over fold in a mystic maze of color.

Charmeuse in all its lustrous loveliness also comes in for a charming bit of display in these wraps of every shade and color from the gold of sunset to the first faint pink of dawn.

Velvet ribbon is used to span the thinner folds of chiffon in charming fashion and taffeta is also striped with the deeper note of velvet in the same shade or in a contrasting color.

Taffeta is one of the most popular fabrics for these wraps. This material takes "the drape" nicely and holds the folds. A lovely taffeta cape is made up in a dull shade of grayish rose, with an upstanding collar of moleskin. This fur is wonderfully sympathetic in color with rose. Another taffeta cape of lemon yellow carries the brown tones of kolinsky in its deeply rolling collar.

Fur Collars

Fur collars predominate on these coats, though a lovely one of old rose charmeuse displays a stunning collar of metallic gold brocade on a ground of gold. This cape is marvelously lovely. The old rose charmeuse is laid in three deep tucks across the shoulders which reach to the waist line.

The silhouette of these capes comprises the high collar, showing only the very top of the hair from the back view; the broad expanse across the elbow line and a narrow scantiness around the lower edge. This silhouette is accomplished by draping the fulness of the cape toward the front around the lower edge, and then cutting it away in a bias line where the fulness would naturally stick out if allowed to remain.

Beaded tassels are a characteristic trimming of these stunning cape models. These tassels are usually suspended by long beaded chains which tie the cape and act in the capacity of fasteners; sometimes the tassels are for the sake of their attractive appearance.

Glaze taffeta in shades of orchid and pink develop these evening capes in exquisite coloring because the two-toned quality of this silk reflects the light beautifully, shimmering into the crystalline whiteness of the high lights which give this silk its name.

White fox, black lynx, moleskin, kolinsky and skunk are the most popular furs for the high, straight collars which are ornamental features of these capes. The broadcaded fabrics are especially striking when combined with fur. Rose, brocade in silver, is lovely with a deep collar of black lynx; blue and silver brocade is girlishly youthful when topped by a white fox collar. Yellow and gold brocade tones beautifully with kolinsky, while moleskin is lovely with coral pink and gold brocade.

Some of these capes drape in straight folds from the shoulder line, others are gathered to a deep circular yoke, while still other models are draped under at the waist line in a way that emulate the Turkish skirt of yesterday. Below the looped drapery the narrower part of the cape falls in gathered folds.

A wonderful evening wrap is illustrated in the magenta taffeta cape which is strapped with velvet, picot edged to form ribbon. These straps of velvet run horizontally. The cape fastens at the left side in front, where it is held by clasps of magenta beads, set in silver. Two long strands of magenta beads emerge from the high collar of white fox and hang on either side of the front. These strands are weighted with heavy tassels of magenta and silver beads, which are visible from the back when the cape is draped around the wearer.

The other cape illustrated is a stunning model of black taffeta embroidered in metal threads and beads in shades of silver, cerise and coral pink. This cape illustrates the looped under drapery which reaches just below the waist line where the fulness disappears to emerge again into the narrow part of the cape. A lynx collar tops this cape with glossy black fur, beautiful in contrast with the dull tones of taffeta. A strand of jet beads falls to one side below this collar and is finished with a heavy jet tassel. The design of this embroidery is carried out in a rose pattern which takes the shading of cerise and coral perfectly. The leaves are silver.

Striking Effects in Black

Beneath this cape may be worn a striking black evening gown, Egyptian in its inspiration, which appears on the page. The long-waisted bodice outlines the figure with easy grace. This draped bodice meets a cincture of jet and silver at the hip-line and is laid snugly around the figure with Princess-like frankness.

At the centre front is a jet and silver ornament, from which fall two long strands of jet beads, weighted with jet tassels. You will observe that these beaded tassels appear in some manner on all these models regardless of whether they are gowns or capes. Over the shoulders of this evening gown run two rather wide straps of jet and silver embroidery which further suggest the Egyptian origin of this idea.

The skirt of this gown is draped in slightly bias lines. This gown is sleeveless, but the shoulders and arms are veiled with a scarf of black tulle, which contrasts beautifully with ivory white neck and shoulders.

On the other gown I have used dyed lace with interesting effect. Sapphire black charmeuse develops this model, whose charm lies in the flattering lines of the basque-like bodice which defines the figure beautifully. A cape-like scarf of tulle is laid over the shoulders to meet the bib front of the bodice. This bib is outlined with sapphire and rhinestone buttons. On one side is suspended a long chain of rhinestones and sapphire beads from which hangs a heavy tassel of sapphire and rhinestones. Again the beaded tassel, you observe.

The dyed lace to which I referred appears in the underskirt. Soft shadow lace is dyed sapphire blue to match the charmeuse. This lace is dotted with occasional rhinestones, that look like dewdrops nestling in the folds of lace. Over this lace underskirt is draped an overskirt of sapphire blue charmeuse, whose folds reflect the light beautifully, and earn for this shade the right to be called sapphire blue.

I have also developed this gown in orchid charmeuse with trimming of amethyst beads and amethyst tulle. With orchid, however, I use silver lace for the underskirt with charming effect. Pink taffeta also makes this model attractive when draped over cream lace and trimmed with crystal beads.

The Fashion Forecast

Poplin will be one of the beautiful fabrics strongly featured this summer for afternoon gowns. Ivory white, pale pink and gray poplin are exquisite shades in this fabric. The more brilliant colors make stunning slip-on sports coats, for wear with white silk skirts.

Simple Hints That Help Preserve Health

TOOTHACHE may be relieved by rinsing the mouth with water in which a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda has been dissolved.

A little warm boracic lotion takes away the tired feeling from the eyes and is an excellent remedy for eyes which are inclined to stick together in the morning.

Strains are caused by stretching of the muscles or tendons in severe exertion. Apply hot fomentations as soon as possible. Absolute rest is a necessity in all cases where a speedy cure is desired.

The skin should be kept clean and warm and should have air. To keep the body healthy clothes should not be tight. In cold weather lightweight clothes should be worn in the house. Upon going out of doors heavy outer clothing should be put on. Do not wear a tight hat; it cuts off the blood from the skin of the head and induces baldness. A soft hat is the best. Do not cripple the feet with tight shoes.

To prevent finger-nails cracking, rub in cold cream or vaseline at night. This will soften and nourish them and remove the dull shabby look.

A good remedy for corns is to take equal quantities of castor oil and vaseline, lay it on the corn and tie a piece of soft rag round it every night for a week, then the corn can be picked out by the hand.

Watercress contains much iron, and this is real blood medicine. People who desire a good complexion should eat it abundantly, because it is a destroyer of pimples and a cleanser of the entire system. Watercress will also neutralize chalk in the blood, which matter is a great cause of ageing and stiffening of the fibres.

CLUB AND SOCIAL ARRANGEMENTS

The month of June is here with all its festivities. Many entertainments have already been planned for brides-to-be and with the usual task of house cleaning over, the club women, whose activities in the literary world, have ceased, are putting all efforts in planning social events. Many are looking forward to the dinner dance to be given at the Lima club Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Austin, complimenting Mr. Austin's brother, Paul Austin, who has but recently returned from overseas. Another interesting feature of the week will be the outing of the Monday Knitting club at Furnas' cottage "The Oak" at Russell's Point. Mrs. Sealts will be hostess to friends with bridge Wednesday evening at her home on west Market street.

Several parties have been featured during the last week complimenting June brides. Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock, Miss Core, of Columbus Grove, entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner at the Shawnee Country club complimenting Miss Glenna Morris, who is to become the bride of Gale Dunton during the month of June. The engagement of Clara M. Zulliger to Robert Kemmer was made known at a miscellaneous shower by Miss Zulliger's sisters Mrs. Frank Mentze, and Mrs. Raymond Creviston Friday evening. Complimenting Miss Marguerite Feltz, who is to become the bride of Richard Berger, Miss Albra Finckh, of Atlantic avenue, entertained with a silver shower Wednesday evening. Rumors are that many other showers are being planned for these prospective brides.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Clara M. Zulliger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Zulliger, to Robert D. Kemmer, son of C. G. Kemmer, was made known at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Zulliger's sisters, Mrs. Frank Mentze, and Mrs. Raymond Creviston, at the latter's home on north Jameson avenue, Wednesday evening.

The rooms were made attractive with potted plants and baskets of Spring flowers. Much amusement was derived from a paper entitled "Don'ts" to the prospective bride presented by one of the guests. Quotations and toasts were given by each guest. At the close of the evening a delicious luncheon was served. The bride-to-be received a host of elaborate gifts, which were wheeled into the room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

Guests of the evening included: Misses Emma Meyer, Bertha Braun, Esther Kuechle, Emma Sammetinger, Helen Heil, Lena Kemmer, Hilda Braun, Wanetta Wendt, Esther Braun, Olga Gauss, Emma Rupright, Laura Uhrich, Clara Braun, Pearl Yant, Katherine Hyland, Louella Buck, Rose Buuck, Gertrude Hage, Lena Cooper, Mary Schneider, Mrs. Margaret Schultz, Mrs. Wilson Sammetinger, Mrs. Minnie Mann, Mrs. Carl Uhrich, Mrs. A. E. Day, Mrs. C. Creviston, Mrs. Margaret Zulliger, Mrs. Daniel Zulliger, Mrs. Frank Mentze, Mrs. Raymond Creviston and the honored guest.

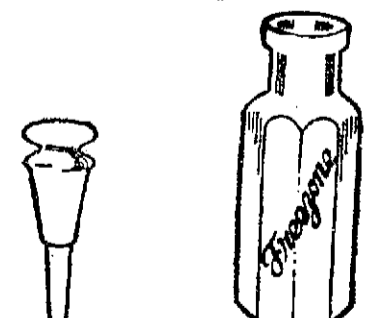

The wedding will be an event of June 15th. The ceremony which will be very pretty yet simple, will be performed at the Immanuel Lutheran church.

W. D. Newman of north Main street, D. H. Burgett and Oliver Burgett and family of west Spring street motored to Crestline and Gallon where they were guests of friends and relatives Decoration Day.

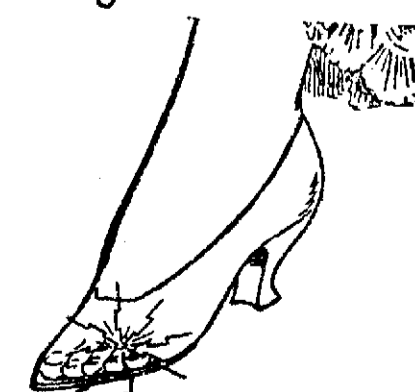

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Dunn and Miss Marlan of Shawnee Road, will leave Monday for Ashland and Cleveland, where they will spend the week.

NATION OBSERVES TWO CENTENARIES

The past week was a great milestone marking for May 27, 1819, was the day Julia Ward was born in New York City, her parents were both Rhode Islanders of the old stock on the Ward side she was the descendant of two Colonial Governors.

One of her grandmothers gave her this advice "Julia when you feel you cannot do a thing, always get up and do it." To one studying her life it is evident that she followed this advice.

She could preach as well as patch and never neglected doing either for she was a true philanthropist endeavoring to aid the whole world. She was a wonderful wife and mother, for she fell in love with a philanthropist of the right sort, married him and lived a long and useful life "Schools she scarcely knew but oh how she studied from youth until old age—this is what she wrote in her eighty-seventh year on "How to Keep Young." "Try to keep in touch with the best spirits of your time, with those who are raising instead of lowering the tone of the atmosphere in which they live."

Avoid the companionship of those who deride sacred things and are inclined to ignore the limits of refinement and good taste.

Remember that ignoble amusements react upon character.

Never forget that we grow like to that we contemplate. Keep it always in mind that it must be through our own efforts that our progress thru life shall bring with it the fulfillment of the best promise of our youth.

Mrs. Howe was an ardent Suffrage worker going to the State House in Boston yearly to plead her cause. She was an ardent believer in Peace and yet gave to America its greatest Battle Song of Freedom—a poem given to her by inspiration.

She was a playwright of much promise—had a fine musical education.

Brought up an Episcopalian she became a unitarian after marrying Dr. Howe—afterwards becoming a devoted member of the New church of the Disciples and until quite late in life preached in their pulpits. The key words of her life were "To learn, to teach, to serve and to enjoy."

As President of the New England Women's Clubs she was an inspiration to good work. She certainly was America's Grand Old Woman living until ninety-two years of age and active to the end. It is said of her that "What she said and did, and thought, and felt and aspired to, there is enough to set up all the women clubs in America in business for decades to come." Yesterday all over America literary people were doing honor to Walt Whitman America's most democratic poet, one who had a vision of world's to come giving more attention to the outcast and Criminal than any other poet.

He believed in "Not Liberty alone but in Union and Democracy."

It is claimed that it was not until he had seen Ohio and the Mississippi valley that he realized what this Democratic America meant to the people for this trip gave him a vision of America.

He was born a Quaker and remained a mystic all his life believing the crowning growth of United States should be spiritual and heroic.

Appearing in the Boston Transcript in honor of the Centenary of this Truly Great American was the following:

One hundred years ago

This coming week

Was born Walt Whitman.

Most picturesque of poets.

He stands distinctive

And above them all,

Not as great perhaps

As the greatest,

But what is sometimes

Better than greatness.

Individual and unique

He made his way

And now he stands

With none beside him,

Impressive and alone

THE bathing maid or matron trusts her dressmaker and beach togs are stunning this summer.

ALL PUFFED AND RUFFLED

By MARGARET ROHE.

Maud's bathing togs so stunning are, They simply make folks rave. She always looks a perfect dream, When she goes out to bathe. But that's because Maud never yet Has let her costume chic get wet. She takes great care That just her hair Alone is in a wave.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Even a Paul Swan or a Ted Shawn aren't anything to be mad about in a bathing suit and yet the male sex taken in toto and in surf attire seems to just dote upon itself. Portly diplomats love to be snapped before and after taking a dip and elderly heads of corporations fall all over themselves and every one else to get their corporations in the groups pictured on society sands for the Sunday supplements.

With the laving ladies its a different matter. A woman doesn't have to be an Annette Kellerman to look well in a bathing suit, provided of course she doesn't insist on wearing an Annette Kellerman costume. If the costume is pretty, it little matters if the maid be plain, if she has wisely chosen one adapted to her figure or her lack of it. That's the whole secret in a nutshell. Egotistic man supremely confident of his own natural charms, casts off his tailor completely and he is a perfect 38 or an imperfect 60, aged 21 or 51, he dons the self-same bathing model. Whereas wise woman fastens her faith as always to her dressmaker and fastens her bathing suit with the knowledge that she is a charming figure on the sands of these times.

A stunning marine blue taffeta model whose abbreviated skirt is just each scallop piped in vivid green, one scalloped ruffle after another, has a surprise waist, scalloped edges, and just an outlining of the scallops around the arm holes. A quaint taffeta hat with a broad scalloped brim, green edged, tops off the deep sea picture.

Like a hula hula maid, will be the bathers who affects the jersey suit of Copenhagen blue, its straight lines bound by deep orange fringe around the skirt, arm pits and oval neck.

An amicable agreement between the Chinese and Japanese is evidenced by the Chinese blue bathing suit cut after the long trousered and hip length coated fashion of a Chinese girl's usual apparel. A touch of black and scarlet embroidery finishes the sleeves, edges of the coat and high close-buttoned collar and frogs of black and scarlet fasten the coat. A dashing scarlet and black Japanese parasol and a perky little blue and black cap splashed with a scarlet tassel, completes this novelty in bathing attire.

As always, the black taffeta or black and white costumes are dear favorites and this year they are brought up to date with vivid touches here and there of yarn embroidery or fringe.

Large figured foulards in blue and white, black and white or more hectic colorings strike the newest notes in this season's bathing modes. Indeed they strike so loud a note that the deep sea fish will have to learn to swim wit their fins over their ears.

The stunning cape mantles, to be cast aside only at the waters edge, are usually of one-toned material whose surface is broken by applied or embroidered hieroglyphics in form of cryptic monograms and ways the linings are most ornate. Fringe now sprouts lively on some of the bathing ties, as on everything else.

Cute little silken bags, lined and monogrammed to match cape and the bathing suit, are fitted with mirrors and necessary adjuncts to the deep sea complete which needs first aid and read relief when waves have been run. All equipped with mantle, cap and parasol you can readily see nowadays one dons more for a than a ball.

BLUEM'S

Voile Frocks For Hot Weather Come In Enchanting Modes and Designs

When the mercury soars around the 90 degree mark as it has the last few days, it is folly to be attired in apparel that contributes to one's discomfort rather than minimizing it.

The very appearance of the voile dresses which we are now showing is just as cool as a north wind. Wonderfully soft fabric that has its beauty greatly heightened with lovely little floral effects—or with plaids—or with stripes. Sometimes the figured or stripes, or plaid designs are used in combination with plain white voile, effecting a most pleasing charm.

In the matter of mode, they are really too diversified to have any particular classifications, and in passing the fact was noted that many were collarless among the greater number that has pleasing collars of various new effects. The skirts on many were double hemmed.

The pricings are so reasonable on these lovely garments considering the quality of material and workmanship that one should not wait the coming of another day after Monday to choose their needs for the entire Summer.

THIRD FLOOR

SOCIETY

Only the assembling and binding of the Club Directory remains to be done. The pages are all printed on unusually good paper. The cuts of the winners on doughnut day are very good, and all is done by local workmen who have endeavored to make the entire book a credit to Lima.

In glancing through the little bits of Club history and in looking thru the names of active members, one is impressed with the great change that has come about in Lima club-world in the past two years. Nearly every club is doing philanthropic work. Many of them working on children's clothing, layettes, nurses supplies and others are giving of their means in helping along reconstruction lines. One can readily see all are working with heart and hand.

The report of former officers are necessarily very brief, because of the fact of their time in office, in nearly every case being very brief. The Treasurer's report is brought up to date in order that the state of finance may be understood. The preceding officer has only been in office about three months but has certainly endeavored to start the wheels moving, undertaking the big task of entertaining the North West District Meeting the very first month. This was made to move smoothly by the President of this district, Mrs. John W. Roby, being a Lima woman, was untiring in her efforts and the meeting was a great success.

The list of names in the back of the book must include nearly fifteen hundred women, who are active, associate or members at large; with their addresses making it a valuable list for merchants.

This probably is the first Directory ever published in the state without any advertisements and consequently is a most attractive book.

These Directories will be ready to give out next week, each club resident will be given her club quota. To club women they will sell at 15c each and any left over will be sold to Lima merchants or other interested parties.

The Independent Twelve were delightfully entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Iva Waters, of east Market street. Games, contests, and music afforded amusement for the guests. In several clever contests Miss Mabel Pence, Mrs. Green, Margaret Gordon, Minnie Saw and Mrs. Nellie Wilson, were awarded prizes. Mrs. Wilson, and daughter of California, were the only guests of the afternoon. At the tea hour delicious refreshments were served.

In three weeks the club will meet with Mrs. Davis Lefler of west Kibby street.

Mrs. T. B. Leigh, of south Scott street, gave a surprise complimenting her husband the occasion being his birthday anniversary. Guests of the evening included: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bidwell and three sons, Raymond, Ralph and Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, Mrs. Maud Dennis, Lee Warren, Emmet Munnigh, Harold Bell, Emmett Gray, Roy Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stein, Mr. and Mrs. Rain of Wapakoneta, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Emerson and Owen Glenn, of Findlay.

An all day meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Zion Lutheran church will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Klinger, of the Marion Road, Wednesday. This will be the regular business meeting. All members who have automobiles are requested to accommodate as many women as possible. The women are to meet at the end of the Bellefontaine avenue car at 11 o'clock. At 1 o'clock a surprise luncheon will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Austin of the Hughes apartments, will entertain Wednesday evening with a six o'clock dinner at the Lima club, complimenting Mr. Austin's brother, Paul Austin, who has but recently returned from overseas, after 20 months of service.

Miss Marguerite Orchard, of west Market street, left Saturday for Washington, D. C., where she will join her sister, Lucille Orchard. They will tour the eastern states for the month of June.

The following list of members of the W. S. S. Thousand Dollar club for 1919 indicates the popularity of the "Baby Bond."

Mrs. Elam Sherman, Mrs. J. E. Galvin, Mrs. T. J. Kaufman, Mrs. W. L. Parmenter, Minta V. Randall, Elizabeth Steiner, Mary A. Scanlon, Stella Schaffer, A. W. Wheatley, and Mrs. Katherine E. Stoner, all of Lima. Miss Laura M. Shenk, Mrs. Ella H. Swink, and Miss Little McCane, of Delphos; Elizabeth Spangler, of Bluffton; Mrs. Gustave Neimayer, Carrie Hummell, and Mrs. Clara Zimmerman, of Spencerville; Margaret Robuck, and Martha Thomas, of Gomer; and Mrs. Frank Hays, of Spencerville.

Other women in the county who have invested $1000 in War Saving Stamps since January 1919, should phone Mrs. Josiah Jones, secretary of the woman's Division, in order that their names may be included in the honor roll.

Mrs. Max Braun, was pleasantly surprised Thursday evening by a number of friends. The Braun family will leave soon for Cleveland where they expect to make their future home.

Those enjoying the evening: Mrs. Mark Myers, Mrs. Ralph Hayes, Mrs. S. G. Blattner, Mrs. Leonard Walther, Mrs. Charles David, Mrs. George Bower, Mrs. Julia Arthur, Mrs. Simon Morris, Mrs. Phil Schnabel, Mrs. C. E. Stiles, Mrs. C. Corelli, Mrs. Anna Long, Mrs. N. H. Hiner, Mrs. S. Kleinberger, Mrs. O. M. Prosser, Miss Mary Meyers, and Miss Amber Blackstone.

At the conclusion of the evening of entertainment Mrs. Braun, was showered with many dainty remembrances.

More than 75 couples attended the formal opening of the Shawnee Country club Friday, which took the form of a dinner-dance. The dining room and living room in which the tables were laid were made attractive with palms and Spring flowers. The tables were centered with baskets of red carnations and ferns. Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock, followed by dancing. A jazz orchestra furnished the music for dancing. Mrs. Fred Gooding delighted the guests with several beautiful vocal numbers.

The committee in charge: Mrs. Dwight Goodyear, Wallace King and B. F. Thomas put forth every effort to make this entertainment a successful one.

Ralph F. Mackenzie, of west Market street, entertained Friday evening with a dinner at the Lima club. The entire party then motored to West Cairo, where they attended the Memorial services at which Lieut. Franklin Cover and Earl Hope, told of their overseas experiences.

Covers were laid for: Miss Marian Sullivan, Mildred Eddy, Margaret Graham, Hazel Wright, Messrs. Benjamin Motter, Franklin Cover, Earl Hope, Bruce Selridge, Emmett Curtin Jr., and the host.

Mrs. Emilie Dorsey, and Miss Florence Dorsey, of the Kalm apartments, are spending several days in Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Many friends of Gibson Dilline, of the Buckeye Pipe Line, will be pleased to learn that he is slowly recovering from an operation. He is at the St. Rita's hospital.

Miss Jennie Mulady, of Kenton, is the guest of her sister, Miss Roda Mulady, of north Collett street.

Mrs. Everett Furnas, of west Market street, will entertain the members of the Monday Knitting club at her cottage "The Oaks" at Russell's Point. The car will leave the Ohio Electric at 9:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flint, and daughter, Vera, of Tiffin, O., is the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Steinmetz, of west Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Blair of Ft. Wayne, Ind., spent memorial day with Mrs. Blair's brothers, E. B. Mitchell and E. L. Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gregg and son Robert of west North street, spent Memorial day with friends in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Kelly, of Waynesfield, accompanied Mrs. G. M. McCullough to Cleveland over the week end.

Mrs. B. A. Gramm and daughter Katherine have returned from a trip to Toledo.

Mrs. Linda Roby of west Market street, is the guest of Mrs. Curran of Delaware, Ohio.

SOCIETY

A group convention of the King's Daughter Circle of the Hardin, Crawford, Paulding, Marion Wyndotte, Logan and Allen counties will be held at the Trinity church Saturday. Luncheon was to be served in the dining room of the church at 12:30 o'clock. The following committees have been appointed:

Transportation—Mrs. Harry Harper Jr., chairman; Mrs. Frank Haller, Miss Kate Reilly, Mrs. F. C. Beam, Mrs. F. J. Beam, Mrs. Oliver Steiner, Mrs. F. Kominski, Mrs. H. O. Bentley, Mrs. F. A. Durbin, Mrs. Kirk B. O'Ferrall, Mrs. Warren Melly, and Mrs. Chalmers Brown.

Entertainment—Mrs. M. P. Colt, Mrs. E. N. Zellitz, Mrs. George Newson, Mr. Charles Jast, Mrs. C. C. Mosher, and Mrs. Henry Each.

Registration—E. H. Palmer, S. S. Coleman, and Mrs. R. O. Bigley.

Reception—Mrs. John Roby, chairman; Mrs. T. R. Terwilliger, Mrs. C. O. Sullivan, Mrs. Gus Kalb, Mrs. Lester Pratt, Mrs. Frank Moke, and Mrs. M. P. Colt.

Music—Mrs. M. Hulsken.

All members are requested to notify the reception committee before June 4th as to the number of tickets they wish to purchase for the luncheon.

"We are going to try and make the women of this country grasp the saving idea," said Mrs. Kent Hughes in charge of the women's drive for War Savings Stamps in this county.

War Savings Stamp leaders point out that 50 per cent of all the money expected in the United States is spent by women. They contend that the thrift campaign is the biggest thing now before the nation.

"With the Victory loan over successfully and other war work agencies relaxing in their efforts there is no reason for women not getting behind the war saving idea," declares Dorothy Mae Burdell, state director of the Women's division. She contends that because women are spenders they should be more vitally interested. Miss Burdell stated that the money saved this year is going to be multiplied by three or five later on when commodity costs are readjusted and the purchasing power of a dollar is much higher.

The Lima Inter-Synodical Lutheran pastoral association will meet Monday at 10 a. m. in the Zion Lutheran church, corner of Wayne and Elizabeth street. An interesting paper on "Office of Keys" will be presented by Rev. John Kehley, of the St. Paul Lutheran church, here.

The St. Paul Lutheran church, here, Scott street

The Woman Foreign Missionary society of the Trinity M. E. church will hold their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the church parlor. As this is the final meeting of the third quarter a very interesting program will be given. Hostesses of the evening will be Mrs. E. Platte, Mrs. F. Blazant, Mrs. Mary Ashton, Miss Odette Lutz, Mrs. D. J. Kiplinger and Mrs. Otis McBride will act as ushers. Mrs. W. E. Courson is in charge of the music. Mrs. Frank Mullenhour will have charge of the intercession. The lesson, the second and third decade of the Jubilee Story, of the W. F. M. S. will be presented by Mrs. C. R. McCabe. Mr. Edward Kreite will act as mite box secretary. Mrs. Kalb and Mrs. M. Christ are in charge of the social hour.

Mrs. Henry Delsel Sr., of south Cole street, delightfully entertained the Monday Knitting club at her home Thursday with a luncheon-bridge. The center-piece of the tables were dainty baskets of lilies of the valley tied with tulle. The room was adorned with bowls of snow balls. At the conclusion of the afternoon of bridge it was found that Mrs. W. G. Graham and Mrs. Schoonover held high score. They were presented with dainty gifts.

Guests other than club members were: Mrs. Harry Wright, Mrs. Hemington, of Chicago, Mrs. T. R. Schoonover, Mrs. Fred Gooding, Mrs. Mark Koller, Mrs. Alfred Wemmer, Mrs. Henry Delsel Jr., Mrs. William Delsel, and Mrs. George Glover.

In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. W. G. Graham, of south Cole street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mackenzie, and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Selfridge, will entertain the T. and T. club with a 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Shawnee Country club Friday evening.

Prof. G. A. Lehman, of the Bluffton College will sing "He Shall Give His Angel Charge Overseers" at the morning services at the Market Street Presbyterian church. While in the city he will be entertained by Mrs. John Cable, of Lakewood avenue.

Social Circle club motored to Lake View Friday, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy for the day. At 12 o'clock a delicious dinner was served, and in the evening a picnic luncheon. Guests other than members were: Mrs. Hershel Sherrick, Mrs. G. Tremper, and Miss Florence Roush.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leatherman and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dauman, of Dayton, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Daymon, of Elmwood Place, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dickson, of Scott street.

TASTY DESSERTS
Date Sponge—Three cups scalded milk, four tablespoons cornstarch, one cup cold milk, one tablespoon butter, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, one-quarter pound dates, one teaspoon vanilla. Add cornstarch mixed smoothly with the cold milk to the scalded milk and stir until smooth. Add butter, salt and sugar, cook in double boiler twenty minutes; then add dates, stoned and chopped and the flavoring. Cook ten minutes longer, stirring continually. Pour into dish and decorate with whole stoned dates when cool.

Stuffed Baked Apples—Six apples, one cup raisins, one-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup water, one tablespoon butter, one spoon flour and one of cinnamon. Wash apples and remove centers. Fill with raisins, sugar, flour, cinnamon and butter; pour the water around, bake twenty-five minutes.

Caramel Junket—Two cups of milk, one-third cup of sugar, one-third cup of boiling water, one cup of whipped cream, one-half cup of chopped walnuts, one teaspoon of vanilla, one-eighth teaspoon of salt, one junket tablet. Stir the sugar and two tablespoons of water in a saucepan until melted and then cook without stirring until sugar is browned, but not burnt. Add boiling water and cook until thick. Then cool and add the lukewarm milk, powdered junket tablet, salt and vanilla. Pour into serving dish and let remain in a warm place until firm. When ready to serve garnish with whipped cream and chopped nuts.

Strawberry Trifle—Line a baking dish with slices of stale sponge cake. Over this pour one cupful of milk and one egg well beaten together. Place in a hot oven for a few moments when the custard will become firm. Remove and set aside to cool. When partly cool cover with a layer of strawberry jam and top with one cup of cream whipped stiff.

The Matron's society of the Market Street Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. R. T. Gregg, of west North street Tuesday afternoon. This will be the final meeting of the year and all members are requested to be present.

The Delta Alpha class of the South Side Church of Christ will meet with Mrs. Marie Rebley, of east Vine street, Friday evening.

Ladies Aid of the First Baptist church will hold their final meeting at the home of Mrs. J. S. Herring, of 704 Hazel avenue Friday all day. It will be in the form of a luncheon picnic. Mrs. Dunifon and Mrs. W. S. Fields, will act as assistant hostesses.

FOR Your Children

HOW ABOUT THE HEALTH OF YOUR BOY OR GIRL?

It has been my practice to study Nature and its work in the locality in which live, then when I find adverse conditions contrary to the Laws of Nature I endeavor to correct them, thus I observe that in a great majority of the Boys and Girls of this vicinity are effected with many conditions such as Pain in and around the eyes, nervous muscular twitching of the muscles of the face and body, which are as a rule forerunning symptoms of St. Vitus Dance, and Nervous prostration.

This should be corrected at once. Many theories which are practiced upon such cases do more harm than good and I do not know of one case where Chiropractic has been applied that there any bad effects resultant but show radical improvement.

No harm can come from the Chiropractic Adjustment such as I use.

GIVE YOUR SICK CHILD the benefit of The Better Way to HEALTH.

FACTS are worth more than theories. MY SYSTEM OF CHIROPRACTIC will put your child's health at premium.

Results are better than mere opinions.

Helping the sick established my system of Chiropractic in the city of Lima to the point where the men of integrity and broad mind know that it is an asset to the public health of the city.

When a Girl Marries

By ANN LISLE

When I promised Dr. Lucas that I'd tell any one who had to know that our Betty had only one chance in a hundred to recover the use of her right arm, I hadn't more than half an idea what I meant. And yet I suppose my decision rested completely formed and unchangeable in the back of my mind from the very beginning. Now I realize that my very next question showed that.

"Does Miss Moss know?" I asked. "Yes; she saw just now. It was a blow. Things looked so hopeful. She has too strong a sense of professional etiquette to say a word, but she begged me to tell you at once—because of the wedding, I suppose."

"Yes, Doctor, that's why. Well, then, if under the stress of her feelings when I told her about the wedding she didn't tell, I suppose we can count on her not to—not to spread the news?" I asked beginning to be half conscious of my purpose.

"We can count on her," said the Doctor studying me under intent brows. "And I suppose I can count on you to do the right thing?"

"Yes, I'll do the right thing." "Brave little friend," said the Doctor, smiling at me very gravely. He trusted me—I was sure of that. Then I left him and went in for a good-night chat with Betty. Her happiness—sweet, peaceful, undisturbed—fairly twisted my heart. Her gratitude to me, her faith in Terry, her joy in having his strength to lean on, and the depth of her love for him she was darning at last to acknowledge—were at once very precious and very painful.

Miss Moss let me have only a few minutes with Betty and then she bundled me off to a room in Greyfriars Hall. I lay there sleepless all through the long night, thinking of Betty, remembering each shy glance, each whispered word, each timid flush of blood under her smooth cheeks as she spoke Terry's name. How Betty loved him. How happy she was now that she dared at last to confess it!

At dawn I slipped into my clothes and went out to walk in the fragrant pine woods stretching away from the sanitarium to a little lake of gentle bluegray. And in the peace of outdoors, I stopped struggling and decided to do what all along I had known I must do.

I didn't doubt Terry. I didn't feel for a moment that knowledge of what Betty was facing would make him other than more tender, more loving. I knew the ugly truth wouldn't give him a moment's pause in the marriage into which he was rushing Betty.

But I wanted that marriage to start with good cheer and with high hopes. Terry had a right to his share of uncloudy joy.

Betty and Terry must start even—loving, hoping, dreaming together. I wasn't going to let Terry have a bitter secret to hide from Betty. I couldn't permit him to pity her—too much, and I refused to consider the day when they must both find out.

When that day came I felt sure Betty and Terry would forgive me and would understand that I had acted through love of them. I hadn't promised the doctor that I'd tell Terry. I had only said I'd tell whomever had a right to know. Well, Terry had a right to be saved from knowing. And then my thoughts insisted on focussing on the problem I had been avoiding all night long.

What I was planning to do meant gambling with human lives—gambling as desperately as ever Jim did at the games of chance to which I objected so bitterly.

Jim! What would Jim say? How would Jim, who had felt that he could forbid me forming friendships, that he could decide who were to be my friends and who not, react to my making so momentous a decision for myself and my friends?

Somewhere in the back of my mind was the feeling that things could never be quite the same between Jim and me again unless he understood and sympathized. Somewhere in my heart was a little prayer that he would fail me—that he would uphold me if our world criticized me for the silence I was going to keep.

Suppose even that when the day of revelation came, Terry reacted what I was going to do, felt that I hadn't trusted him, that I had been unwarrantably held in making his decision of him—would Jim help me make clear to him, would Jim stand by?

If Betty felt that I had owed it to Terry to give him the chance to chance his plans—would Jim help me convince her sensitiveness and pride that Terry never would have changed?

I didn't know. I couldn't be sure. I had to take a momentous step without consulting anyone. And once it was taken there was no turning back.

"It's for Betty's happiness," I said to the pines and the lake. "It's for Terry's happiness, also. They'll have their honeymoon lighted by the hope that he's nursing her back to health again. They must face their pain soon enough—and it's their right to face it together. Terry has longed for happiness and served for it and waited for it. Now I won't cloud it for him by telling him how Betty may have to suffer. He's going to believe she'll be all well. And she's going to believe that she'll be all well. And maybe a blessed miracle will make it happen."

Then I smiled sadly at the lake and the pines and went in to help the bride make ready for her day.

But as I retraced my steps there was black fear in my heart. Would Jim understand? Would any one understand? (To Be Continued)

Soft Drinks for Dolls

PURE fruit juices are very good for doll children and are delicious at afternoon tea parties. There's orangeade and lemonade, and strawberryade. Make this last by crushing the strawberries and putting a little lemon juice with the crushed fruit. Raspberries can be used the same way, but they must be very fresh. A little shaved ice in the glass makes the drink delightfully cool—and so refreshing.

Dr. Dollby

"Please tell Doctor Dollby all my dolls are in good health except Anna Rag Doll. For one night a mouse came and gnawed all over her poor face.

"Also tell him I am using his good advice. The other day my twin celluloid Kewpie fell off the boat in Venice at the Dollies' Willow Grove, but only received a shock and a bad cold.

"Anna Belle is extremely healthy, and she loves to pick flowers. However, I have to be very careful about her clothes, for she frets for socks, which, of course, she couldn't wear too soon.

"What's keeping Ted?" His father said.

DOROTHY ASHER.

Bathing Hints

Bathing does not agree with all doll children, and you should consider very carefully before allowing your child to go in. Of course china dolls or celluloid dolls or rubber dolls may go in where they like. Bisque dolls or rag dolls or jointed wooden dolls need to stay away from water altogether, as it is very injurious to their tempers, complexions and bodies. They may sit on the beach with you and watch, but don't, don't allow them to bathe.

Letters

All dollies should learn to write letters, and so the Knitted Gentleman has promised that he will send a drift stamp prize to the dolly writing him the nicest letter telling him what she expects to do this summer. You can send the letters to me and I will see that he receives them.

Woolen Stockings

Don't laugh, 'cause many a time they save a dolly from a bad cold. If her feet get wet, and she has on these stockings, her feet will stay warm, and she will not cough and snifle.

Caution

All dolls should be put on high places where stray dogs and cats cannot get at them. Mary Ann Ragdoll is minus a face this week because she was left on the gravel path, and a motor ran over her. I can probably give her a new one, but it will never be the same as the one she lost.

Chickens

Chickens are birds that never fly. At least not much. I wonder why?

About Giants!

DID you ever hear a giant sing? A giant song, I wonder? Some giants sing in hurricanes, And others in the thunder. (Really!)

The Story of the Four Little Orphan Rabbits

ONCE upon a time four little rabbits were left carrotless and salad-less by the sudden death of their parents. Though hardly old enough to marry and support themselves, the four little creatures set bravely out upon their adventures. They were not burdened with many possessions, for everything in the house had been sold by the hard-hearted hedgehog from whom they rented their cottage to pay what he claimed as back rent.

The four brothers hopped along in silence, each trying to plan a way to earn his living. The eldest brother, who had always been considered very clever at home, was the first to speak.

"Sad as it seems," said he, "we must separate, for were we four to apply for work altogether, for a night's lodging, or for food which we sorely need, we would surely meet with refusal. Let us follow the road till we come to a crossing. I myself will leave you at the first road branching off from this. Then let Peter take the next, Jonathan the third, and little Bill the fourth."

The other three saw the wisdom of their brother's speech and much as they grieved at the thought of parting agreed to follow his advice.

"Who can tell what riches may await us," he finished bravely.

"But shall we never meet again, dear brother," quavered little Peter.

"That will be as it may," said the oldest brother. "Fortunes are not made in a day, and 'tis a mighty large world we are faring in." Then seeing the little fellow so downcast he added:

"Suppose we agree to meet behind our old home two years from now and compare our experiences." The others joyfully agreed, and just then they arrived at the first cross road. Bidding them an affectionate farewell Terry, the oldest little orphan rabbit, started down the side road and was soon lost to sight.

Not long after that Peter's turn came, then Jonathan's, and last of all little Bill's. And by nightfall each was traveling a different road with all his wits about him.

Time passed and first thing you know two years had rolled by. The old hedgehog, who now lived in the little rabbit's house, nearly burst with astonishment one early spring evening, for approaching was a rabbit whose elegance and prosperity surpassed anything he had ever seen. He bowed as low as he possibly could, and wished the stranger a fine evening, but the rabbit never turned his head, but went into the woods back of the house and sat down after carefully dusting the ground with a blue linen handkerchief.

While old Mr. Hedgehog ran to fetch his wife two more rabbits appeared, even more elegant than the first one. The hedgehogs looking from a back window saw the three distinguished travelers embrace; then each turned expectantly toward the road, and to the astonishment of the old couple in the window, along came another young gentleman rabbit, fine as any of the others. All three rushed upon him, and such a hugging as they gave him! No wonder; it was Bill, the littlest orphan!

"We all seem to have prospered," remarked Terry, eyeing his brothers with pride and approval, and now let each of us tell his story."

"You begin," cried the three in unison, and thus Terry related his adventures. The king had looked led straight into an impenetrable forest, and though several times he tried to turn back, he was near to turning back. Terry ventured into its depths and blundered in the dark into a lion's cave. With every hair on end he waited for the beast to finish him, but when his eyes had become accustomed to the gloom he saw that the poor creature was rolling in agony.

At the door of the cave he heard mighty rumblings and roars, and being a rabbit of much presence of mind he hastily closed and double-bolted the big doors, and then turned to the growling lion. A short glance told him that the lion was suffering from epigastrosis, which he had often been troubled with himself. Finding every convenience and luxury in the cave he proceeded to ease the poor beast, and in the course of a few days had him up in a chair eating grapes. To the continual thumpings and scratchings at the door of the cave he paid no attention, and when the lion was able to talk—I mean to roar—he told Terry that he was a king, and that the other beasts were about to kill and depose him when he arrived and thoughtfully barred the door.

"Since then," finished Terry, fingering his gold watch chain, "I've been prime minister, enjoying every delicacy and privilege." The other brothers were delighted with Terry's good fortune; then all listened attentively to Peter's recital.

The road he had taken ran straight to a big city. Much confused by the noise and dust Peter darted into a low doorway. No sooner had he done so than he was seized by the ears and lifted into the air. Though much shaken, he wished the creature who held him a good day and inquired of what service he might be.

"If you will but make her majesty laugh, then my fortune and your own likewise made," said a voice, and looking up Peter perceived he was held by a poor though handsome youth. Declaring he was not averse to the work Peter required the

The Poky Hokey Pokey Man

APOKY hokey pokey man

Went idling down the street
With his hokey pokey wagon
And his cones of ice cream sweet.

An organ grinder with his "monk,"

Also his jerky tune.

Came grinding down the selfsame street—

'Twas sleepy afternoon.

And both the men were weary and

They stopped quite close together

And talked in broken English

Of the hokey pokey weather.

"No one's about; suppose we go

And have a glass or two Of lemonade!" And then each said,

"Well, don't care if I do."

"Now minda you the organ, Jock;

I'll take all the money."

Said the grinder to the monkey. "And Say, don't you geta funny!"

The little monkey wrinkled up

His forehead, shut one eye,

And the organ grinder tied him fast,

And wished him "Good-a-bye."

"Teddy!" sis called loudly, "Teddy, Hurry up, your supper's ready!"

youth to set him on the ground. The boy then explained that the queen, her majesty, had not smiled in seven years, and that the king had offered three bags of gold to the man who could coax her royal highness to smile. "You made me laugh so when you ran in here with your ears flying out behind that I know you can make the queen laugh in spite of herself." "So I did," chuckled Peter proudly, and now the boy has married the princess and we're court favorites. Imagine!

Now came Jonathan's story. He had followed the road down to the edge of a river, and not knowing how to cross had sat down upon the bank to think of a way to make his fortune. As he sat thus a fish thrust his head above the water, and wished him good evening. And in just no time they had gotten into a conversation, and like a flash came Jonathan's inspiration.

"Do not you people need a watchman?" Jonathan inquired breathlessly, and went on to explain how he would sit on the bank of the river and warn them below when fishermen were about. The fish was delighted and disappeared to consult the other creatures in the riverbed, with the result that Jonathan was unanimously elected watchman, and was so munificently rewarded from treasures of the deep that he had set up a wonderful castle (hidden from men very ingeniously by shrubbery), and there he lived in elegance and luxury.

Little Bill had been trying to conceal his impatience during the recital of his brother's adventures, and he now burst forth with his story. His road, he said, had gone on and on growing wigglier and wigglier until it finally disappeared altogether in a pretty green woods. Being tired he lay down beneath a tree to rest, and had just composed himself for slumber when the sound of some one crying made him spring up to search for the cause. Under a toadstool he found a little fairy who had lost his way. Bill, being lonely and lost himself, took the little fellow in his arms and they were both soon fast asleep. When Bill awakened he was in the most wonderful country in the world in the midst of a circle of charming little people.

It seems that the fairy's mother had found them and was so grateful to Bill for taking care of her baby that she wished him immediately in Fairyland, where he had lived ever since, "and the only animal there!" he concluded with great satisfaction.

The brothers were so delighted with the way their fortunes had turned out that they embraced all over again, and after promising to return to the same spot in one year Terry went back to the king of the impenetrable forest, Peter to the princess in the big city, Jonathan to his castle by the river and little Bill back to the finest place of all—Fairyland. Were they not clever little orphans?

Down the lane ran brother Ned Shouting crossly, "Ted, YO, TED!"

Summer Pastimes

ONE of the most interesting things about going away is the opportunity it gives to observe directly in old Mother Nature's big schoolroom. And I think she likes us to collect samples of her work to take back home with us—little keepsakes to remember her by.

Some boys and girls prefer to take pictures, and keep the snapshots to look at and laugh over in the winter, but most girls and boys love to poke about in the woods or at the shore for their keepsakes, and nothing is more delightful than making a collection, whether it be of strange shells, wild flowers, bits of queer rock, butterflies, or, if you are fortunate enough to find them, old Indian relics.

Rainy days pass very pleasantly when one is collecting, for on these days one can mount and arrange the various specimens. All sorts of queer treasures are left on the beach by the ocean, and some seaweed mounted on cards is very beautiful. Birds' feathers are interesting when mounted, too, though many that I found were mounted upon doll hats. I wonder what you are going to collect this summer. Tell me about your treasures, and how you found them.

No sooner had they disappeared
Than Jock untied the knot,
And jumped into the hokey pokey
Cart. "My, it is hot!"

"I'll just taste one of these," he thought.
And opening up the lid
He scooped out several ice cream cones
And ate them—very, he did.

Just then a crowd of children came.
"Some customers," quoth Jock.
And while the children almost lost
Their senses from the shock,

He gravely filled up cones and handed
Them around. "Please pay."
He chattered, holding out his hat—
They filled it straightaway

With pennies, shouting out in glee,
"Oh, isn't this a joke?"
And isn't he the cunning little Monkey hokey pokey?"

The men returned and in amaze
They view the gathering crowd;
But when they saw the business done
Oh, my! but they were proud
(Of that little monkey).

The Forgetful Poet Again

THE dear fellow came rushing in this week with the answers to the professor's puzzles. I rather think he was jealous, and he told me that I might dismiss the professor at once, as he would attend to the puzzles himself. So I did. The answers to the professor's insect puzzles are ant, beetle, bee, gnat, fly. Photographs are snapped, yet not broken. And now for some new fellows.

The Forgetful Poet says that a feature and a musical instrument will give you another musical instrument.

LITTLE THINGS

The June bug is about, they say,
Likewise the big —
Who do their best each summer time
To absolutely eat us.

The gnats and ants and bumble bees,
Of course, are little things;
But for their size they surely have Remarkably sharp —

I sit down 'neath a tree to think
And slumber in the —
But oh, dear me! quite soon I flee
Before the ant brigade!

And though I'm not a timid man,
To me it is appalling
To feel adown my quaking spine
A caterpillar —

Jerry barked, then winked as well;
Jerry knows, but he won't tell.

Be Sure!

BE SURE to have the PUBLIC LEDGER sent to your summer address, 'cause I'll miss you awfully if you do not. Besides, it is fine to have something to read, even in the summer, and let me tell you there is going to be the finest and funniest stories ever on the page for you. And I want you to look very carefully through the whole paper, 'cause there's a wonderful surprise for you coming.

And as soon as you find it, please write to me and tell me whether you like it, especially the cut. 'Pshaw! nearly told you that time. M-mmm, just wait till you see it!

And all the merry squirrels.

And sweet-grass cakes and mixed nut pies
Are served—and appleade;
Yes, that's a fact, and jokes are cracked,
And jolly games are played.

And now and then to vary things
They have a speaker, who Discourses on wood politics,
And other matters, too.

The Dream Elf

DOWN each night from the Milky Way
Floats the little Dream Elf at the close Of day.

Down he slides on the pale moonbeams
With his magic pack of beautiful dreams!
Dreams for the boys of bright little drums,
Of soldiers marching, of sugar plums!
Of steeds that prance and swords that glance.

Dreams for the girls of dolls that dance,
Of peppermint houses and fairy balls,
Of princesses bowing in stately halls.
Under each pillow a dream he slips
Then back to the Milky Way he skips,
To weave new dreams for children good—
I'd like to visit him if I could.

Comparisons

A JAPANESE man always carries a fan,
And quite often a big parasol.
I can't fancy my pa in a jirnikisha
With a fan and kimono at all.

The Paws and Claws Club

TEETH are funny things when you come to think of it, except when they ache; then they are decidedly not funny. Now people only have two sets—less they buy another set from the dentist. But fishes have dozens and dozens, especially Mr. Shark, one set right back of the other, and as fast as they wear down another set keeps coming.

So I don't suppose he is very careful with his teeth, nor brushes them twice a day. Maybe he even chews rocks, for all I know. But you and I must be careful, 'cause we only have two sets, and with proper care that is enough. But don't bite hard candy with your front teeth or crack nuts. Remember you are not a squirrel. (Or at least I hope not.)

And did you know that worms have teeth? One would never suspect it, and where do you suppose horseshoe crabs have their teeth? On their legs! Just imagine! I should not like one to tread on me. Guess they are all right to tread water. Ahem!

Dog travelers enjoy greater privileges in France than in America. They ride as passengers, not as baggage. One buys regular tickets for them with a dog's picture stamped on the face, and no one even suggests a crate. Fancy being crated across the country. No wonder doggies object to travel over here.

Little orphan elephants are often better cared for than little orphan children. As soon as a mother elephant dies, or is killed, another member of the herd adopts the calf and cares for it just as tenderly as she cares for her own youngsters. That is the right sort of spirit to show. Elephants are great animals, not only in size, but in courage, intelligence and nobility.

About now I begin to feel sorry for the cats. They are queer creatures and opposed to change, and even if they are taken away to the summer houses often try to find their way back to the old haunts. I do not need to tell any of my girls and boys not to go and leave the family cat unprotected for. Such a thing could not happen in our big pet family, but if you see any cats that are deserted try to help them, or notify the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

'Pshaw! here he is, don't tell a soul,
A-frisking in the swimming hole.

"SHALL WE IMMUNIZE AMERICA AGAINST BOLSHEVISM?"

W. Jett Lauck, Secretary of National War Labor Board, Proposes a Conference of Business and Labor Forces to Organize "League of Industrial Democracy" and Write "New Bill of Economic Rights"

By CHARLES PATRICK SWEENEY
Washington, D. C.

IN VARYING shades of intensity the minds of men all over the earth are focused upon the politics of industry. In Russia an economic experiment of staggering immensity writhes in a welter of blood and famine. Wretched and disorganized Germany struggles to re-establish a sound national existence, and in the effort the dominant emphasis from all sides is upon the degree to which the workers shall control industry and share in the distribution of produced wealth. Southeastern Europe rampantly overthrows every existing authority and institution in a great class war, the cry being "the world for the workers." Convulsions, all of them economic in their broader aspects, shake the old world to its foundations. Only in England has reason kept pace with passion. And even there an industrial revolution unparalleled in British history is taking place; in peace to be sure, but still taking place.

And what of America? Are we here to see a duplication of the events now threatening to scuttle Europe? Or does a distance of three thousand miles render us immune from the influences of these social and economic enormities? Are we to go on as we have in the past or is there a spirit for a change, for reforms, for readjustments, for a new deal in the relations of employer and employee? If so, how is it to be met in order that we shall be saved the waste of industrial warfare or a destructive period of bitterness and discontent? Or, indeed, is it possible that even as this is written industrial relations in America are undergoing a transformation and that we alone among the great industrial nations are destined to write the new chapter of industrial history under peaceful skies and in a spirit of harmonious co-operation?

Veteran of Labor Campaigns

These and related questions are forming the basis of much utterance in the United States just now. Theories vie with theories in a cross current of efforts to guide the course of industrial events. But there are a number of men who deal from day to day with the facts of American industrial life, whose business it is to meet and attempt to solve the complexity of problems arising in a land of 275,000 industrial employers and 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 industrial workers, who see passing events in their own life to one another and to the whole economic fabric, and it is with a keenness that the country might well examine the industrial state of the nation.

One such man is W. Jett Lauck, secretary of the national war labor board. Mr. Lauck's life has been spent in the industrial equation. As secretary of the war labor board he has handled virtually every strike, labor disturbance and industrial dispute in the country since it was formed in April, 1918. As war labor board, by the way, kept peace in American industry during the war. It handled 1246 controversies, involving more than two million workers. So great was the confidence of the country in this body that with less than a half dozen exceptions no strike lasted more than forty-eight hours. Mr. Lauck during the war has been connected with the wage adjustment board of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, which instituted the system of industrial relations in the shipyards and dealt with the industrial relations matters of the aircraft productive board. Prior to the war he was managing economist to the commission on industrial relations, director of industrial investigations for the congressional immigration commission, director of the Bureau of Applied Economics, professor of economics at Washington and Lee University, economic counselor for the railroad brotherhoods, author of "The Conditions of Labor in American Industries," "The Immigration Problem," "Wages and the Cost of Living," "Wages in Wartime" and "The British Industrial Experience During the War," the last named document of invaluable assistance in steering our own industrial course after we entered the conflict. He was chosen secretary of the war labor board, composed of employers and labor leaders in equal number, because so far as a man can be impartial he was considered to be impartial. In his office in Washington he has directed the work of the war labor board's large force of administrators, examiners and investigators scattered throughout the industrial sections of the country.

Mr. Lauck's position, therefore, is one that lends a unique importance to certain things he has to say respecting the present and the future of American industry.

Attitude of the Workers

He finds undeniable indications in America of widespread dissatisfaction among the workers with much that prevails in our present system of industrial relations. At the moment, however, he characterizes the situation as psychological, a condition, as he puts it, of waiting expectancy or suspended animation, based on the hope of the workers that the signing of peace and the return of President Wilson will bring something akin to an industrial inventory, a readjustment of relations corresponding to the spirit of the new age, a new understanding to accord with the as yet unuttered determination for a change. This desire for a change, Mr. Lauck says, is not concerned primarily with wages and hours, important as they loom upon the industrial horizon, but has to do most of all with the abatement of the right of arbitrary decision by employers in the matters of vital interest to the workers and the extension of a measure of self-government to industrial life. In other words, as clearly as this psychological attitude of the workers may be defined, the workers want a voice coordinate with that of the employer in the determination of wage rates, hours of labor and all other conditions of employment. They do not care about running the finances of a corporation and much less do they want to interfere with the sheer commercial side of industry. But on questions affecting their own lives and the manner and nature of their employment they would have something to say. Far-seeing employers, recognizing the trend and anticipating the future, are not only granting this voice to their workers, but are encouraging a universal application of the first step in industrial self-government, collective bargaining, which means, in brief, that the workers elect committees of their own number to deliberate with management on questions affecting the relations of the two, and through which the workers lay all grievances before the employer for adjustment. "A very simple process," says Mr. Lauck, "but one of extreme importance to workers and, unfortunately, one which many employers even now continue to resist as an invasion of their right of proprietorship and direction."

Principles of His Program

Nevertheless he sees the tendency toward self-government moving fast and points, on the one hand, to the growth of one union, the machinists, from 150,000 members in 1917 to 300,000 today; and, on the other, to such instances of co-operative effort as the federation of the newsprint paper manufacturers and workers into a national industrial council, representative of all the workers and all the employers, for a joint council in all questions of mill administration, the establishment of national uniformity of relations and conditions, discussion of operating methods, etc.; already this council is considering plans for the establishment of health and unemployment insurance throughout the industry.

"But," says Mr. Lauck, "while we had industrial peace during the war and have had apparent peace since the armistice, those who look beneath the surface see in our current quietude the most ominous harbinger of the future."

"To meet the situation," he continues, "something big needs to be done. And it is with more than a view to allaying unrest that we must act. The day for mere postponement is past. Our aim should be and must be to remove the conditions which cause unrest and which will continue to cause unrest until they are removed. We have crossed the threshold of a new age, a new spirit is abroad in the world. The necessities demand a general clearing of the minds of men and the establishment of a new understanding. A new bill of rights—a bill of economic rights—must be written. Justice and wisdom both demand it. Once it is written industry in America will go forward in an era of prosperity hitherto unequalled in our history. With permanent industrial peace will come greatly increased production, and that is what we are most concerned about. The one certain method of isolating and removing the causes that threaten industrial peace is for the employers and the workers of the country to meet in common counsel in what might be called an industrial conference or industrial congress, create an atmosphere for the evaporation of conflicting aims and ideas, and come to agreement upon fundamental principles for the future government of industry as a whole. This I would call co-operation plus sound industrial statesmanship. No sane man will disagree with the wish of employers to be free from bureaucratic government interference. None but the most confirmed bureaucrat would perpetuate the forms of government control obtaining during the war. Industry should and will be free to develop to its utmost capacity. But its development will be slow, indeed, until employers reckon with the new psychology of the worker, realize the need for his goodwill and co-operative effort and appreciate the value of his counsel in matters in which he is concerned.

"A national industrial conference might be convened under government auspices, called together by the President, for instance, as has already been suggested by some employers and some labor leaders. It should, in the first place, be composed of the most responsible representatives of both the employers and the workers, with men of the very highest caliber to represent the public. No section of industrial citizenship should be unrepresented. And, as industry is dependent for its expansion and its forward-looking policies upon the co-operation and sanction of bankers, the banking community, and especially private bankers instrumental in floating large corporations and in reorganizing and consolidating industrial enterprises, should also be represented.

"Inasmuch as they are the inevitable problems confronting industry today or promising to confront it in the very near future, these problems might form the general basis of the deliberations of such an assemblage:

"First. Need for the formulation of methods for the universal and uniform application of collective bargaining; encouragement of the establishment of shop and works committees and their federation into district and national industrial boards, representative of employers and employees.

"Second. Necessity for the determination of what shall constitute a proper working day, with due regard to the rights of the workers to health and sufficient leisure to enjoy family and social contacts and pursue the higher things of life, and the formation of means for application of a nation-wide uniform workday.

"Third. Provision for guaranteeing every worker a living wage, sufficient to sustain himself and his family in health and reasonable comfort, and the recommendation of legal means for insuring the guarantee, such as the imposition of a 10 per cent net profit tax on corporations not paying a living wage as has been imposed by Congress for the protection of child life or the enactment of a statute declaring an establishment paying less than a living wage to be a public nuisance.

"Fourth. Adoption of measures to safeguard the rights of women in industry, as to equal pay for equal work, conservation of health and strength and pensions or payments before and after child birth; also abandonment by unions of discriminatory practices against women in industry.

"Fifth. Consideration of a far-sighted industrial housing program, looking to protection by federal law of the workers' right to adequate housing facilities and to the establishment of means of affording the worker the opportunity of acquiring his own home; as well as measures for the constant encouragement of efforts toward a general raising of architectural standards with respect to the mills and factories in which men and women work and the homes in which they live.

"Sixth. Recognition of the importance of adult education and material encouragement of measures looking to a union of working class organizations and universities and other educational institutions for the purpose of extending the benefits of higher learning to the workers. The importance of providing higher educational facilities will be seen in the census revelation that only 144 children out of every 10,000 of our population get any continuous education after they are fourteen years of age.

"Seventh. Need for a permanent court of industrial jurisprudence, erected by mutual agreement upon sound principles protecting the rights of employers and workers alike, but above all the interests of the community as a whole; a court of last resort for the administration of justice and maintenance of production in cases where co-operative effort fails to achieve settlement of controversies.

Industrial Statesmanship

"I believe that nothing less than broad-gauged industrial statesmanship applied nationally will suffice in this period of transition.

"Once the national mind frees itself from the fears and prejudices of the old order and finds a new basis for co-operative effort, there will be a great quickening of the industrial processes of the country. Until then our most obvious industrial characteristic will be sluggishness. The most disastrous of all the possibilities, it seems to me, is that industrial leaders should seek a solvent in patchwork here and there. Concessions will prove boomerangs.

"The thing for all to bear in mind is that the labor problem is no longer the servant problem. Men are discovering that they ARE men. And, in the words of Alfred Zimmer, now an official of the British Foreign Office and one of the most astute of British social scientists, we must see industry not simply as a process of production, but industry were settled by force and blood, or lawyers were retained to procure injunctions, etc. More recently employers are observing that money thus expended would have been better spent in scientific investigations of their operating methods and in the application of measures designed to harmonize the psychological elements of the working group with the processes of production. Progressive employers now enlist the services of industrial research experts or industrial counselors and give close ear to their reports and recommendations. By the same logic they call in the doctor every so often to examine and report upon the state of their own health."

Analogy to French Revolution

"The development of industry in this country," he said, "has gone along quantitative, standardized lines of output, with the purpose in mind of eliminating individual skill and training. The machine has become paramount and the worker subordinate. The mining machine, for example, has supplanted the pick miner; the automatic loom takes the place of the weaver of skill and experience; the bottle-blowing machine is doing the work once performed by the highly specialized glass blower; the molding machine displaces the old-time hand molder. With the elimination of the requirements of individual skill the bargaining power of the craftsman has disappeared. For instance, a Slav immigrant, who never saw a coal mine, can be advantageously employed within two weeks after his arrival in this country at the side of and on an equality with a man who has spent years at the work. I know a man who was a skilled maker of trousers before the machine supplanted the journeyman tailor in the clothing trades. This man has been literally forced to seek employment in a steel mill, where his work as an unskilled laborer yields a larger income than he could now make at his trade. The advent of the machine means that labor can hope to bargain successfully only on mass, as it were, without regard to specific tasks, and that the unionism of the future will be industrial unionism. Probably it would be more clearly expressive to say that the one big union in each industry will be paramount. Thus the present craft unions must, and undoubtedly will, see the necessity of reshaping and reforming themselves to meet the changed conditions confronting them. That this has been fully realized by the American Federation of Labor is indicated by the present and highly successful campaign to form a federal or industrial union in the steel industry. This, I believe, certainly is true: that labor will be more highly organized under the new order than it ever could be under the old."

Mr. Lauck finds an interesting parallel in the French Revolution and the great war," he said, "marks the beginning of a new, if not revolutionary, era in its bearing upon industrial relations and conditions. The significance of the French Revolution was political. It marked the beginnings of political democracy. After a century's experience with political democracy the workers of the world seem to have reached the decision that political democracy without a corresponding measure of economic rights and freedom is a delusion. At any rate, in one way or another they are reaching out for means of adjusting economic institutions of democratic ideals. They are seeking to gain this end by a larger degree of control in the direct management of industry from within and by the coercion and direction of industry through political action. The effect by either method is toward industrial democracy. This is the really significant feature of the labor problem both nationally and internationally at the present time. The international labor problem will hereafter consist in the development and adaptation to our political institutions of industrial constitutionalism and industrial judicialism in the effort to realize industrial democracy.

Industrial Democracy

"While political democracy has achieved realization only through generations of slaughter, industrial democracy, at least so far as the United States is concerned, we may hope to become a fact through peaceful co-operation of the forces which, if we were to cling to conflict as the means of progress, would be at war with each other for the next twenty-five or fifty years, i. e., the employers and the workers. To make this possible the gospel of production must supplant the rule of profit as the impelling motive in the direction of industry, and ignorance and indifference must in increasing degree give way to intelligent understanding by the worker of his relation to the world. Under such auspices the industrial machine will lead more and more to operate from top to bottom for the single purpose of serving mankind, freeing itself with advancing frequency from every restriction and condition detracting from the highest possible volume of output. Importance attaching to class distinctions in industry—that is to say, owners, directors and the managers as distinguished from men—will then fade out into a common understanding of the fact of partnership, each man with an equal voice in decisions affecting his interests. What conflicts occur will be incidental and not epochal. What should be borne in mind by employers and workers alike is that industrial democracy, which means the highest possible production on the basis of absolute justice to all hands, is an evolutionary process, measured only in terms of progress, by the speed with which conflicting attitudes are eradicated in joint council and mutual understanding."

Only Woman Mountain Ranger in U. S.

THOUGH she is the only woman mountain ranger in the United States, Miss Clara M. Hodges, who teaches in Yosemite Valley when she is not on patrol duty, declares that her life as a ranger is not as wild and woolly as it sounds. She says that her love for the mountains eclipses all else.

Miss Hodges is the chief ranger's "right-hand man." She does whatever the chief wishes her to do, whether it be to answer his telephone, register tourists, assign camps to campers, issue auto permits, make rental points, seal firearms or to ride through the camp grounds noting conditions of the camps and counting campers.

Often she carries as much as $200 fastened inside her flannel shirt for the purpose of depositing the government money. The tolls of $5 which are paid when machines enter the Yosemite Valley were often collected by Miss Hodges, who rode to the farthest checking station, about twenty-four miles, to give the drivers their permits to enter the valley.

"Women can do all kinds of things and enter new fields of work if they care to," says Miss Hodges, who patrols mountain ranges with fearless dexterity and efficiency.

Short Shavings

She was weeping bitter tears into her afternoon tea. "Oh, my dear!" she said to her only friend. "I don't know what I shall do. Ted and I have only been married six months, yet he spends every evening at his club."

"Well, don't worry, darling," said the other. "Percy's just the same. But I shall never scold him again for spending so much time at his club."

"Why not?"

"Well, last night a burglar got into the house and my husband knocked him senseless with a poker. I've heard several men speak of him as a poker expert. He has evidently been practicing at the club for just such an emergency."

"Yes, I've bought a home at last and the wife and kiddies are the best pleased folks in creation."

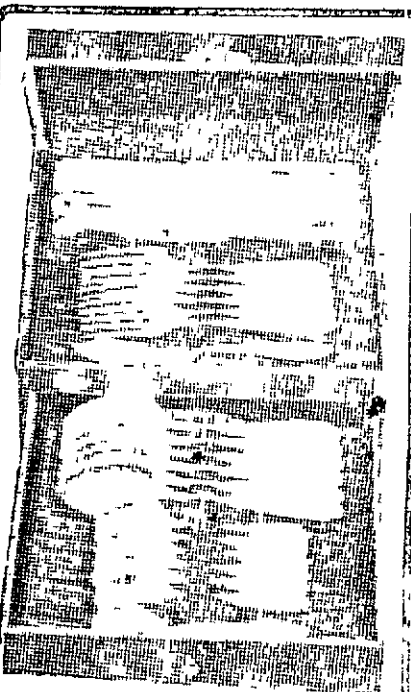

"You see it was this way; I'd always made good wages, but we lived pretty well; and I wanted to be a good fellow, so we didn't save much."

"Along came this war. I couldn't buy bonds like some of the fellows, but I did start on War Savings Stamps. Wife and children helped too. Soon we found we had a tidy sum in these baby bonds."

"Then Smith decided to sell his home. I never thought of buying it, you know; but my wife found we had more than enough for the first payment. THOSE WAR SAVINGS STAMPS had lifted me into the capitalist class. Now we have something to work for; and we have formed the habit of saving; so it's going to be easy to pay the rest."

"We've named our home the W. S. S. cottage, and it is a monument to us of what the Government has made possible, with the best investment ever offered."

Can you say that in 1924?

Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the Interior, at the annual dinner of the Publishers' association, told this story.

"When President Wilson and his physician Admiral Grayson, visited Buckingham palace, they were assigned to beautiful rooms, gorgeously decorated. Feeling tired Admiral Grayson stretched himself on a luxurious couch, when in walked a flunkey dressed in knickerbockers, wearing a wig and other equipment of the royal servant. In a cockney accent he asked if Admiral Grayson would have some tea. "No, I never drink tea," replied Admiral Grayson.

"Something else?" queried the servant.

"No doubt reflecting on the dry conditions rapidly spreading thru the United States, Admiral Grayson replied:

"Well, yes, I would like a little Haig and Haig."

"Certainly, certainly," promptly responded the flunkey, and four later he brought back two soft boiled eggs."
